RE: GODBY WOMAN MARRIES A WEATHERSBEE

By Nancy Tissot May 11, 2008 at 03:39:08
In reply to: Re: Godby woman marries a Weathersbee
9/15/01

"Virginia Immigrants and Adventurers 1607-1635" by Martha W. McCartney (VA historian) states that Bartholomew Wethersby married Dorothy ? who came on the "London Merchant" in 1620, both age 30 in 1625 muster and lived in Elizabeth City Co. He was adm. of Thomas Godby's estate; they shared a home with Robert Boulton.Albiano Wethersby, a male, also lived in Eliz. City Co. and died 8 Aug 1624. Bart. Wethersby & Godby were both Ancient Planters. Order of Descendants of Ancient Planter newsletter (Fall 1997) indicates there were three Thomas Godbys: Thomas I m. Joanne, d. 8 Feb 1626, had 100 acres for personal adventure.Thomas II assigned 200 acres 2 Mar. 1642; 1647 transported Ann Godby; will dated 8 Apr 1652, recorded 15 Feb 1653, m. Ann Bland d/o Edward Bland & sis/o Elizabeth (Bland) Bearre; 1665 250 acres given to Thomas III joining his own land in Lower Norfolk Co. Dates support three Thomas Godbys & inheritance of land in Lower Norfolk. See Nell Nugent's "Cavaliers and Pioneers" v. I.

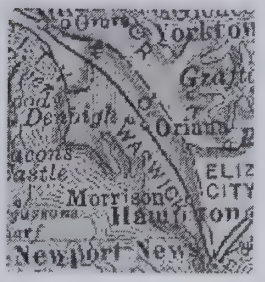
Warwick County, Virginia

Coordinates: 37°7′46.7″N 76°32′31.8″W

From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia

Warwick County was a county in Southeast Virginia that was created from Warwick River Shire, one of eight created in the Virginia Colony in 1634. It became the City of Warwick on July 16, 1952. Located on the Virginia Peninsula on the northern bank of the James River between Hampton Roads and Jamestown, the area consisted primarily of farms and small unincorporated villages until the arrival of the Peninsula Extension of the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway in 1881 and development led by industrialist Collis P. Huntington.



Warwick County (shaded in orange on this 1895 map) was originally one of the eight shires created in colonial Virginia in 1634. It was consolidated with the independent city of Newport News in 1958.

With the railroad came the coal piers, several local stations in Warwick County for passenger service and shipping produce and seafood to markets, and a branch link to the resorts and military facilities in neighboring Elizabeth City County at Old Point Comfort. The community at the southeastern edge on the harbor of Hampton Roads became Newport News in 1896, hosting the world's largest shipyard.

At the outset of World War I, the U.S. Army facility which became Fort Eustis was established in the county. After the war, Camp Patrick Henry, a former military facility, became the site of Newport News/Williamsburg International Airport. After sparring over annexations and exploring various plans to refine and/or combine local governments, by mutual agreement, after existing for over 325 years, the former city of Warwick was politically consolidated with the younger city of Newport News on July 1, 1958. The better known name of "Newport News" was assumed for the combined entity, forming one of the contemporary cities of Hampton Roads.

Skiffe's Creek formed the border of Warwick County and James City County beginning in 1634. It is a tributary of the James River

Warwick River Shire

From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia

Warwick River Shire was one of eight shires created in colonial Virginia in 1634. It was located on the Virginia Peninsula on the northern shore of the James River between Hampton Roads and the Jamestown Settlement.

During the 17th century, shortly after establishment of Jamestown in 1607, English settlers had explored and began settling the areas adjacent to Hampton Roads. By 1634, the English colony of Virginia consisted of eight shires or counties with a total population of approximately 5,000 inhabitants.

Warwick River Shire took its name from Robert Rich, second Earl of Warwick and a prominent member of the Virginia Company. Warwick River Shire became Warwick County in 1643. Rich's Richneck Plantation was located in the modern day independent city of Newport News, Virginia.

Whereas by an Act made at the Quarter Court in October there was a proclamation published to forbid any person of what qualitie soever to buy any com'odities aboard any shipp uppon the penaltie of 500 l. of Tobacco and the said com'odities or the value of the same, it is at this Court thought good to mitigate the sayd fine being too extreme, and now further ordered that every one yt shall offend as aforesaid in buying of any com'odities aboard any shipp shall forfeit one hundred weight of Tobacco and the saide

Virginia or elsewhere, after some legacies, was to be divided into two parts. One part to go to the children of Sir William Throckmorton, knight and baronet, deceased, and William Sanborne, and the other part to her friends and executors, Mr. Richard Hamby and Mr. William Shrimpton. Lady Dale was Elizabeth, daughter of Sir Thomas Throckmorton, and married Sir Thos. Dale in 1611.

tyme to spitt blowd nor ever heard him complayne of any hurt that he had receaved by means of the s'd Cooke.

Christopher Cutler sworne & examined sayth & affirmeth in all poynts as John Wayne aboves'd.

Edward Gaven, aged 38 years, sworne & examined sayth that about a monethe agoe in his going up w'th Thomas Lawley to his plantacon stayed for the tyde over nyght at Capt. Martyns. The tyde being come he called for his people to come abourd & spying the s'd Thomas Lawley to be behind he demanded of him why he would not go as fast as the rest, the s'd Lawley answered while he was aboard the shipp called the Plantacon ther was one gave him a blowe w'th his elbowe one his brest w'ch hath made me ever since then such a payne that it greaves me to goe & I can scarce fetch my breath, soe they went into the boate & the next day after arrived at the Shirley hundred & the where the s'd Lawley fell very sicke & being not able of himself to come out his bed this deponent helping him, the sayd Lawley sayd these words Oh Lord Master the blowe that Hobin gave me will surely be my deth, & then when one q'rter of an hower after he departed this life, this deponent sayth further that the sayd Lawleys brest after he was dead, seemed blacker than any other p'te of his body, this deponent sayth alsoe that he never saw the s'd Lawley at any tyme to spit blowd neither did ever hear him the s'd Lawley complain of spiting blowd.

John Fitz Humphreys aged 23 years sworne & examined sayth that about a fortnight before they made the land in the ship The Plantacon one Robt. Cooke and Thomas Lawley squabled aboard the shipp & were ready to fall by the eares wheruppon divers caled to this deponent & willed him to come & p't them,but before he came they were p'ted & stod wrangling & squabling together & suddenly after being in goeing to bed the s'd Lawley complayned to this deponent that his brest was very sore & sayd that Robert Cooke tripping up his heeles fell upon him w'th his kne upon his brest & the next morning the s'd Lawley shewed this deponent his brest wch he sayth was very black at that tyme & sayth that that day the s'd Lawley did spitt blowd & divers tymes after before he dyed in this deponts syght. This depont sayth that he willed the s'd Lawley the next day after he complayned to him to tell their Master of yt but Lawley answered he would not troble the M'r, he willed him to tell the Chirurgeon of yt that he might have some remedy for it; but he answered, I have had already something of the Chirurgeon for my ague, & calls to me for a note under my hand for yt, & I am loth to put my M'r to any more charges, & I will take noe more of his medicines. This deponent fourther sayth that the s'd Lawley being very sick at Sherly hundred often said both to him & others that the blow w'ch he had abourd the ship would kill him.

A Court at James Citty the 26th of March 1627, being p'sent

S'r George Yeardley, Knt., Govern'or Etc.
Mr. Doctor Pott
Capt. Smyth
Mr. Claybourne

At this Court Capt. Wilcoxes (1) made a request to have 500 acres of land granted unto him on the Eastern shoare uppon the old plantation creeke abutting on the Northeast uppon the land of John Blower, unto w'ch the Court hath condescended in favor to the said Capt. Wilcoxe & that he may not be unfurnished of ground to plant his servants uppon, w'ch he hath now brought over in the good shipp called the Plantation, provided that the said Capt. Wilcoxe doe as soon as may he make proofe that the said five hundred acres shall be due him by the transportation of the said servants or some of them or by any other way or means.

(1) Captain John Wilcox came to Va. in 1620 and was a Burgess in 1623. His will stating that he was formerly of Plymouth, England, was proved June, 1628. See this Magazine 11, 77. 78.

Sr George Yeardley Knt Gouernor &c. Mr. Doctor Pott Capt Smyth Mr. Claybourne.

At this Court Capt John Wilcoxes made a requeſt to haue 500 acres of land graunted vnto him on the Eaſtern ſhoare vppon the old plantation creeke, abutting on the Northeaſt vppon the land of John Blower; vnto wch, the Court hath condiſcended in fauor to the ſaid Capt Wilcoxe & that he may not be vnfurniſhed of ground to plant his ſeruants vppon, wch he hath now brought ouer in the good ſhipp called the Plantation, ꝓuided that the ſaid Capt Wilcoxes doe as ſoone as may be make proofe that the ſaid fiue hundred acres ſhalbe due vnto him by the tranſportion of the ſaid ſeruants or ſome of them, or by any other way or means.

QUARTER COURT
the 3th of Aprill 1627,

A COURT at James Citty the 3d of Aprill 1627, being ꝑſent

Sr George Yeardley Knt Governor &c. Capt Weſt Doctor Pott Capt Smyth Capt Matheus Mr Secretary Capt Tucker Mr Farrar.

It is ordered that Mr Jonas Stockden Miniſter & Mr. ffrancis Chamberlaine doe wthin fiftene dayes after yt date hereof giue in ſecuritie vnto yr Governor for the paiment of fiftene hundred ſixtie and fiue pounds of principall marchantable Tobacco in leaſe ſtript for the vſe of Sr ffrancis Wyatt Knt to be paid at or before the 25th day of November next enſueing at the Stores at James Citty vppon the forfeiture of three thouſand one hundred and thirty waight of the like principall Tobacco.

At this Court was deliuered in the laſt will & Teſtamt of Thomas Dunthorne deceaſed, and proued to be the true will of the ſaid Tho: Dunthorne by ye oath of Jonas Stockden miniſter, and that the ſd Thomas Dunthorne was at the making thereof in ꝑfect ſenſe and memorye.

At this Court Mr. Harmar deliuered vppon his oath vnto Willm Hambey an account of all the goodes and eſtate of the Lady Dale both of Cattle, Tobacco, corne, and of whatſoeuer hath remained in his Cuſtody ſince the time that he the ſaid Mr. Harmar receiued the ſame from Mr. Henry Watkins.

At this Court Mr. George Keth Miniſter did ꝓmiſe at his goeing downe to Kecaughtan (vppon an aſſurance made vnto him from Thomas Godby for 200l of Tobacco to be paid the laſt of October next enſueing) to ſeale and deliuer vnto the ſaid Thomas Godby, one bill of ſale of one hundred acres of land, to him y^e ſaid Thomas Godby and his heires and Aſſignes forever, being the divident of the ſaid George Keth & lyeing & abutting next vnto y^e Gleab-land at Elizabeth Citty.

It is ordered that Left Giles Allington ſhall haue a comiſſion of Adminiſtration vppon the whole Eſtate of Caleb Page deceaſed the 2^th of Aprill laſt paſt and that he the ſaid Giles Allington doe giue in ſecuritie to the Court to deliuer vp an Account and ſurrender the ſaid eſtate when it ſhall be lawfully required. And Robert Adams of Martins Hundred hath offered to be bound w^th the ſaid Giles Allington for y^e ſame.

L^t Giles Allington ſworne and examined ſayth that Caleb Page on Sonday laſt the day before his death ſaid theſe wordes before diuers y^t where then ꝑſent, Neighbours beare witnes that I giue vnto my man Henry Hart two yeares of his time.

Whereas by an Act made at the Quarter Court in October l[aſt] there was a ꝓclamation publiſhed to forbid any ꝑſon of what qualitie ſoeuer to buy any Comodities aboard any ſhipp, vppon the penaltie of 500^l of Tobacco, and the ſaid Comodities or the valew of the ſame; it is at this Court thought good to mitigate the ſayd fine being too extreerne, and now further ordered that euery one y^t ſhall offend as aforeſaid in buying of any Comodities aboard any ſhipp, ſhall forfeite one hundred waight of Tobacco and the ſaid Comodities ſoe bought or the valew of the ſame as often as they ſhall ſoe offend.

It is ordered that Mad^r Wilcocks for buying 12^l of ſuger aboard the Charitie doe forfeite one hundred waight of Tobacco and twelue pounds of Tobacco for the ſaid ſuger, and 30^l of Tobacco for going aboard.

Whereas there remaineth one trunke of apparell & linnen belonging vnto Cap^t Willm Holmes deceaſed of w^ch there is noe man to take charge, the Court doth thinke fitt for the good of his widdow, that Doctor Pott doe take the ſaid trunke w^th the apparell & linnen into his cuſtody, and to make ſale thereof to the beſt ꝓfitt, and to deliuer vp an account of the ſame vnto any Atturny for y^e ſaid widow.

Whereas notw^thſtanding an Order of Court made in October laſt paſt there be many that haue neglected to proue the Wills & Teſtaments and bring in the Inuentoryes of ꝑſons deceaſed, it is thought fitt and hereby ordered that M^r. Willm Claybourne Secretary doe in more eſpeciall manner take care and ꝓuide that the like negligence be hereafter ꝓuented; And further that M^r. Claybourne ſhall haue full power and authoritie to ſumon ſuch as doe offend in this caſe to appeare at the Court at James Citty before y^e Gouerno^r & Councell of State, there to anſwere vnto y^e ſame.

Whereas by ſome information now of late frō other Indians, we vnderſtand there is a purpoſe in theſe Indians o^r [our] Inimies to make a generall aſſault vppon all o^r plantations this Spring; it is ordered that notice be giuen by ꝓclamation through the Colonie that according to a former ꝓclamation publiſhed all dwelling houſes or plantations be ſtrongly paliſadoed about and that all men doe carefully ſtand vppon their guard, keepe ſentinell vppon their workemen by day, and keepe good watch by night, ſhutting and makeing faſt the gates of their forts, not ſuffering any ſingle man to ſtragle abroad, wherby all daunger may be ꝓuented.

It is ordered that Willm Lounge Yeoman ſhall not any further moleſt or trouble M^r George Keth concerning his ſuite of 500^l waight of Tobacco, w^ch the ſaid Willm ꝓtends to be wanting in the Eſtate of the Orphan Sara Spenc deceaſed, vntill ſuch time as any ſuch Inuentory may be found whereby anything may be ꝓued that the ſaid 500^l waight of Tobacco is vnpaid by the ſaid George Keth.

At this Court there was leaue graunted that M^r. Secretary ſhould haue a Comiſſion to goe w^th a boate & a ſufficient Company of men into the Bay And to diſcouer any riuers or Creekes w^thin the Bay vp to the heads of the ſame and trade w^th the Indians for Corne Skins or any other Comodities whatſoeuer.

ſame and all his right therein vnto John Jackſon Gunſmyth, the Co^rt hath thought fit that the ſaid Jackſon ſhall haue the overſight of the ſame accordingly and a Comiſs: of Adm̃iſtrac̃on is graunted vnto him thervppon.

Steven Barker of Neckoniand ſworne and exaied ſayth that not long before the death of Abraham Porter hee being in Company w^th the ſaid Porter and having ſome Conference w^th him concerning 500^li of tobacco w^ch John Rodis did owe vnto the ſaid Porter the ſaid Porter tould this depon^t that it ſhall pleaſe god to call mee Rodis ſhall bee the better for mee the ſaid 500^li tobaccoe

Edward Wigg ſworne and exãied ſaith that about Auguſt laſt Abraham Porter being ſicke hee this depon^t came vnto the howſe of the ſaid Porter and asked him how hee did who anſwered I am reaſonable well I thanck god afterward this depon^t tould the ſaid Porter yo^u ſhould doe well to remember John Rodis, wherevnto hee anſwered If I had lyed I would haue given him what hee owes mee or if I doe dy before I haue ſecurity for it I will giue it him

Vppon the Comp^ll of John Jackſon againſt Edward Wigg for taking awaie his Canoe w^thout his leaue the Co^rt hath thereuppon ordered that the ſaid Wigge ſhall paie to the ſaid Jackſon forty pounds of tobaccoe for his damages.

At this Co^rt vppon the Comp^ll of M^r Mynnard Late Miniſter of Martin hundred againſt the P̃iſhioners there for deteyning from him his tythes vppon full Conſiderac̃on therein taken the Co^rt hath Concluded and doe ordered that the ſ^d P̃iſhioners ſhall paie the ſaid Miniſter his tythes . Notw^thſtanding their agreem^t w^th M^r Ly . . . now miniſter

At this Co^rt Rob^rt Wright was Comitted priſoner at the ſuit of Francis Fowler for 200^li of tobaccoe recovered of him.

Rob^rt Wright and Rob^rt Hutchenſon were Comitted priſoners at the ſuit of Rob^rt Marſhall for 272^li of tobaccoe recou^red of them.

Rob^rt Hutchenſon was Comitted priſoner at the ſuit Edward Wigg for tobaccoe.

A Comiſſion of adm̃iſtrac̃on was graunted vnto Thomas Robicke vppon the eſtate of [illegible] third daie of March A^o 1628.

PULASKI COUNTY
HISTORICAL SOCIETY

To all the Godby-Kelly descendents we present greetings:

The attached Godby family tree data was produced for the descendents of the Barthenia Godby-William Edward Fox Kelly marriage that took place in Pulaski County, Kentucky on 18 Oct 1903.

As with the recently distributed Kelly family tree, we did not have access to the original birth, marriage and death certificates. Instead, we relied on the published work of others, who faced very difficult problems because of the limited record keeping and spelling capabilities in the Colonial and early American years. Nevertheless, this study should give you a pretty good idea of the identity of those of your ancestors who settled and helped build America. Keep in mind that in many cases specific dates and name spellings may not always be accurate.

While we did a great deal of background reading during this project, and again worked with the Family History Center at the local Mormon Church, much of this material was extracted from the "Godbey - Godby" book by Margie Richards published in 1969 and the "Godby - Godbey" book by Alice Pitts published in 1981.

Who are the Godbys and where did they come from? The name Godbey is said to be well known from early times in England. Originally it was spelled Goadbye, Godebye or Godesbye - which was the name of an ancient Danish settlement in Leicestershire, England (see English Family Names, Barber, page 132) and may have an association with the Danish word "Gud" or "Guth" which means "family." The first syllable of "Godby" is a very common element in Danish names, e.g. Gudrun, Gythorm, Godfrey, Godair, Godsal, Godloe, Godleigh, Goddard, Godwin, Godbard, Godall, Goodall, Godkin, and Godbed. The name "Goad" is commonly written as "Goode" in modern times. The modernized form Godbey, Goodby and Godsby is found in the earliest parish records which begin in the reign of Henry VIII, yet the older form "Goadby" is still found occasionally. On page 7 of the Richards' book there is an extract from pages 729 and 730 of the book "Godbey - History of West Virginia and Its People" by Miller and Maxwell, which reports: "There are various possible derivations of this surname. It may have been derived from the older name 'Godbid', which was derived from the Anglo-Saxon word 'biddian', meaning 'to pray.' It has also been suggested that it is a corruption of 'Godbert' a personal name which was also used in the 13th century as a surname. Another suggestion is that it may have sprung from the name 'Gotobed' from the old-German 'Gottbet' which means 'Pray to God.' This is the conjecture given in Talbot's 'English Etymology.'" At the moment, the actual derivation is anyone's guess.

There have been no Godbys of permanent national note in executive, legislative or administrative work in England except for a Colonel Christopher Godbey, who was for many years an officer in the Bengal Army. One other officer, Colonel John Godobey, was an officer in the failed attempt by Oliver Cromwell to do away with the monarchy in England. In 1651, two of his sons, Jonathan and Charles, along with their cousin Ezra, sailed from Whithorn on the good ship "Providence" headed for the American Colonies. At this time they allegedly dropped the second "o" from their name. They are not known to be part of this family tree.

As an aside, note in this work how often members of one Godby generation married partners with the same surname. This likely confirms the reports that groups of families often traveled and settled together, thus limiting the available market for marital partners.

The first known Godby in America, in our lineage, was Thomas R. Godbey of Blunt's Point, Virginia. It is with him that we begin our family tree. In order to understand the difficulties he encountered during his stay in the Jamestown area, read any of the many available books on the Jamestown Colony, particularly during his life there from 1608 to 1628.

THE GODBY FAMILY TREE

First Generation

1. Thomas R. Godbey b. 1587 in England married (reportedly but not confirmed) in 1623 to Joane Godbey who was b. 1579, probably in England. Thomas died on 9 Feb 1628 at Merrie Pointe, Virginia, leaving a son Thomas as indicated in the 1939 issue of Burke's Landed Gentry, see the citation on page 40 of the Richards' book.

Children:

* Thomas Godbey, b. 1623 (possibly).

NOTES ON THE THOMAS R. GODBEY (1587 - 1628) GENERATION:

1. Much of this Godby family tree comes from the Godby books by Margie Richards and Alice Pitts. However, many of the following citations come from the Huntsville Library Genealogical Section and the Mormon Family History Center.

2. In the Mormon records, Thomas is shown as a "Virginia Pioneer" in Elizabeth City, Virginia, as extracted from the 1624 Virginia census.

3. Although accepted in both of the above cited Godby books, it is really not fully clear that Thomas R. actually married Joane Godbey. Due to the dangers and stark living conditions in Virginia in the early 1600's, it is at least possible that their marriage took place in England before Thomas left for the Colony. Joane's surname is always shown as Godbey so she could well have been his wife or possibly some other type of relative when she arrived in the Jamestown area. The Richards' book shows on page 40 that the 1939 issue of Burke's Landed Gentry indicates that Thomas was married (wife's name unknown) about 1623 and left a son named Thomas. If so, the marriage would have taken place in Virginia, but as yet, no such record has been found.

* Children so identified are the next in line in the family tree.

4. Volume 31 of the William and Mary Quarterly, page 150-152, reports on the death of Thomas. The actual report covering this incident makes very interesting reading:

COLONIAL SURRY (On a modern map this is the area across the river from Williamsburg) - Surry People Before the Council and General Court - Page 81.

Death of Thomas Godby

Benefit of Clergy Claimed

In March 1628 in Virginia, a person found guilty of manslaughter escaped death because he could read and write. The persons concerned in the case are not Surry people, but it is thought this may be of general interest.

One William Bentley, who patented land in Elizabeth City in 1624 (C.P.), 50 was brought before the General Court on a charge of manslaughter. The first witness, Richard Rich, aged 25, who testified that on the 8th day of February last, Thomas Godby, the deceased, was at the house of William Parker at Merry Point, and that he, the deponent, and divers others, drank between them five pints of burnt claret wine, that Thomas Godby had consumed about 4 cups of the same. At which time William Bentley, who had just come ashore in a boat came into the house and asked if it were not their orders when they heard men call to come and help them out of a boat, thereupon Godby answered "Do you think we have nothing to do but to fetch you out of the water?" Bentley replied "Hold your peace" and Godby called Bentley a rascal and a rogue and Bentley did the like to him. Thereupon the said Bentley, sitting upon the bench on the left side of Godby, struck him from the bench and presently rose up and gave him a kick as he lay on the ground. Godby could not sit up but tumbled down crying out, "Oh Bentley, thou has killed me," and also said of him, "I am cruelly foxed," and in the morning Godby was found dead in the said house.

William Bentley had pleaded "Not Guilty" and had asked for a jury trial (Put himself before the Country (County?). A jury of 12 men of whom one was Francis Fowler of Surry "found the said Bentley guilty of manslaughter and he being asked what he had to say for himself that he ought not to die demanded his clergy whereupon he was discharged to the Ordinary." (Note: an Ordinary is a prelate exercising original jurisdiction over a specified territory or group).

Before the Ordinary in a church court Bentley would be required to plead not guilty and to produce witnesses who would state that they believed the defendant's oath. Nothing as to the fate of Bentley is shown but he probably escaped further punishment as no witnesses were heard against a prisoner in a church court and he was usually purged of the charge and set free.

Thus it seems that English doctrine of the Benefit of Clergy became part of Virginia's laws.

Christopher Smith, age 23, Arrived in the Returne in 1624.

Provisions in hand were: 7 barreles of corne, 200 ct. of fish, 3 peeces (arms), 3 swords, 1 armor, 1 lb powder and 20 lbs of lead.

6. In the "Original Lists of Persons of Quality," John C. Hotten, Genealogical Publishing Company, Baltimore, 1978, page 273 notes that "Thomas Godby had 100 acres at Blunt Point by 'pattent'." This appeared under the heading of James Cittie.

7. Reference "Southside Virginia Families," John B. Boddie, Pacific Coast Publishers, Redwood City, California, 1955. On Page 134, Thomas Godbye was cited about 1624 or 25 in reference to "Cavaliers and Pioneers."

8. Reference "Social Life in Virginia in the 17th Century," Philip A. Bruce, J. P. Bell, Inc., Lynchburg, Virginia, 1927. On pages 120-21, the following is cited: ". . . only about 15 persons were designated as 'Yeomen' in early Virginia land patents, one of which was Thomas Godby." It is not clear which Thomas this is, but the date indicates Thomas R. Godby.

9. Reference "Colonial Virginia, Its People and Customs," Mary N. Stanard, J. Lippencott & Co., Philadelphia and London, 1917. On page 19, the following is cited: "The Discovery arrived at what was soon to be Jamestown on 13 May 1607 after 5 months of misery and discomfort at sea." This is included in our tree data only because it may remind us of the difficulty in traveling from England to the Colonies only one year before Thomas made his journey.

10. The following extract from the 1939 issue of Burke's Landed Gentry, as cited on page 40 of the Richards' book is provided for those who do have a copy of that publication. This is as referenced in paragraph 3, above:

"LINEAGE: Thomas Godby of Elizabeth City Co., Va. reached Jamestown, Va., on the Deliverance, the second ship sent by the Virginia Company in 1608: b. 1587; m. ca. 1623, and was accidentally killed by the horseplay of a visitor, December 1628, leaving a son.

THOMAS GODBY, Planter, of Elizabeth River, Lower Norfolk, Va., b. 1623: m. Anne Beane (Bain) and d. 2-1653 naming his wife Anne as executrix. His son, THOMAS GODBY of Elizabeth River, Lower Norfolk, Va., Sailor-Trader, Colony promotor, brought over 32 colonists entitling him to 1600 acres of land; m. Anne Jacob, who was the sole heir and executrix of the estate of Captain John Jacob. The will of Thomas was proved 2-21-1686. His son, EDWARD GODBY, Christ Church Parish, Middlesex Co., Va., d. ca. 1707, leaving as his youngest child JOHN GODBY, large landholder in Caroline Co., Va. 1734-1761. Of his descendents, more than 100 are distinguished Preachers, Educators and Editors: baptised 4-2-1705.

11. The English records in the Mormon Family History Center indicate that there was a THOMAS GODBY who was christened in Chippenham, Wiltshire, England on 21 Dec 1591. Could this be our progenitor THOMAS? If so, it would make an interesting story since Elizabeth Kelly Eadon's husband has a great-grandmother, Charlotte Grist, who was born in Edington, some 10 miles south of Chippenham.

12. As cited on page 28 of the Richards' book, the Virginia Historical Magazine, Vol 1, page 191, has the following reference: "Thomas Godby of KICOUGHTAN, Elizabeth City, Yeoman, as his first dividend, received 100 acres between New Port News and Blunt's Point, on 1 Dec 1624." On page 2 of the Richards' book, she also notes that Thomas was referred to as "Godby of Blunt's Point or of Kiccaoughtan."

13. The Godby family of Lower Norfolk Co., Va., was closely associated with the Quakers. Thomas R.'s daughter-in-law was fined for attending a Quaker meeting, and she was left a number of books in the will of an old Quaker school teacher named Richard Russell.

14. Reference "Cavaliers and Pioneers, Abstracts of Patents and Land Grants, 1623-1666." On page 349, it shows that Samuell Edmonds on 9 May 1636 got 350 acres for transporting 7 persons, including Joane Godbrey. As is often the case, the spelling of her name is not quite right, but if this is our Joane, she obviously had made a trip back to England after Thomas R. died in 1628. This sort of travel back to England and returning to Virginia (for which 50 acres of land was awarded) was also done by Thomas R.'s son and grandson.

Second Generation

2. Thomas b. about 1623 in Lower Norfolk County, Virginia, m. Anne Bain. b. about 1625. Her surname has also been reported as Bean or possibly Bearre. Date of marriage is not known, but it probably took place in Lower Norfolk County.

Children:

* Thomas Godbey b. 1645.

NOTES ON THE THOMAS GODBY (1623 - 1653) GENERATION:

1. Reference "Bristol Registers of Servants Sent to Foreign Plantations 1654-1686." Peter W. Coldham, Genealogical Publishing Co., Baltimore, 1988.

On page 26 we find "In 1656, Joane Warden of Bristol, single woman, spinster, was sent to Anne Godbee, in Virginia, for 4 years;" also on page 28 we find: "In 1656, Joane Sturges of Bristol, single woman, sent to Anne, the wife of Thomas Godby of Virginia, a Planter, for 4 years."

Note: This was Anne Bain Godby and not Anne Jacob Godby, who would only have 9 years old at this time.

2. Reference "The Virginia Colonial Abstracts," Vol 31, Lower Norfolk County, 1651-54, notes on page 89: "The will of Thomas Godbye of Elizabeth River, Lower Norfolk Co., dated 8 Apr 1652, left all to his wife Anne except for one cow to Anne's sister, Elizabeth Bearre." Should Elizabeth Bearre have been her unmarried sister, her surname is of interest because all other references to Anne Godbey's maiden name indicate it was either Bain or Beane. This may also simply reflect the problems of inconsistent spelling and sometimes poor penmanship one finds in the records of that time.

3. Reference "Brief Abstracts of Lower Norfolk Co., and Norfolk Co., Wills 1637-1710," Charles F. MacIntosh, Colonial Dames of America, 1914. Page 27 indicates: "The will of William Bordas, dated 26 Sep 1667, proved 15 Oct 1667, cites Ann Godby as executor." This is likely Ann Bain Godby since Anne Jacob Godby would have been only 20 years old at that time - possibly a bit too young to be an executrix. Page 27/8 indicates: "The Will of Richard Russell, proved 16 Dec 1667 cites Ann Godby" again most likely referring to Ann Bain Godby.

4. Reference "The Lower Norfolk Co., Va., Antiquary, Part II," E. W. James and Peter Smith, New York, 1951, Vol III. On page 141 it notes: "Court was held on 20 Dec 1662 . . . John Sidney, High Shrieve (Scribe) of Lower Norfolk Co., could claim a levy of 200 lbs of tobacco from a group of Quakers who had held an unauthorized meeting on 15 Dec 1662. Included in the group of 20 was Anne Godby." This is most likely Ann Bain Godby.

5. Reference "The Virginia Colonial Abstracts, Vol 31, Lower Norfolk Co., Va., 1651-54." On page 29 it is noted: "Anne Godbey (clearly Ann Bain Godby) was fined 200 lbs of tobacco as she had 'conducted away' the maid servant of Lewes (sic) Farmall."

6. Reference "The William and Mary Quarterly," Vol II, page 29, which provides the following report on our Ann:

7. "The William and Mary Quarterly," Vol 25 notes on page 38 that Ann Godby was about 20 years old in 1648. This gives us an approximate year of birth for Anne Bain Godby.

Third Generation

3. Thomas Godbey b. 1645 d. 1686/7 in Lower Norfolk County, Virginia. He married Ann Jacob b. 1647 probably in Lower Norfolk County.

Children:

* Edward Godby b. 1671.

Cary Godby b. ?. He moved to North Carolina where he died 17 Sep 1758. His wife's name was Ann and his children were William, Sarah, Elizabeth, Rachel and Mary. Place of death was Onslow County, N.C..

NOTES ON THE THOMAS GODBY (1645 - 1686) GENERATION:

1. Reference "Brief Abstracts of Lower Norfolk Co. and Norfolk Co., Va. Wills 1637-1710," Charles F. Mackintosh, Colonial Dames of America, 1914:

a. On page 102 it is noted that Thomas Godby of Elizabeth River left a will dated 28 Sep 1671, proved 21 Feb 1686 or 87, leaving everything to Ann as executrix.

b. On pages 84 and 85, it notes that the will of Robert Barley dated 4 Oct 1682, proved 16 Dec 1682, left a still to Thomas Godby.

c. On page 77, it notes that "The will of John Jacob dated 2 Feb 1680, proved 12 May 1681, cites Ann Godby as the sole executor."

2. Reference "Colonial Virginia, Its People and Customs," Mary N. Stanard, J. Lippencott and Co., Philadelphia and London, 1917. On page 172, it reinforces the uncertainty of the date of Thomas Godbye's will, noting that it was filed in Norfolk County, Virginia in 1686 or 1687.

Fourth Generation

4. Edward Godby b. 1671 in Lower Norfolk County, Virginia. He married Frances (surname unknown) who was born in 1673 and died in Goochland County, Virginia in 1740. Edward and his family moved to Middlesex County, Virginia about 1700, where he died around 1707. After his death, Frances married Thomas Cheedle on 26 Jul 1708.

Children:

William (?) b. about 1697 in Lower Norfolk County, Virginia.

George b. 1699 in Lower Norfolk County, Virginia. He married Diana Minor b. 1699 on 13 Jan 1728.

Mary B. b. Oct 1701 in Middlesex County, Virginia and was baptised in Christ Church Parish on 27 Oct 1701. She married Henry Tuggle on 30 Mar 1722 and had children: John, Henry III and James. She died in 1749 in Goochland County, Virginia. Her husband was born in Middlesex County, Virginia about 1699 and died 14 March 1733. His mother's name was Mary Baskett. James, their youngest child, was born in Middlesex County on 20 Aug. 1732. The family move to Goochland County possibly took place sometime after either the birth of James or the death of her husband Henry.

Rebecca b. 1703 in Middlesex County, Virginia. She was baptised in Christ Church Parish on 2 Jun 1703. She married John Kidd b. 1703 on 21 Feb 1720. She also moved to Goochland County.

* John Godby b. 1705 in Middlesex County, Virginia and d. 1769.

NOTES ON THE EDWARD GODBY (1671 - 1707) GENERATION:

1. In time, Edward Godby moved northward from Lower Norfolk County to Middlesex County, Virginia. The old Christ Church Parish records there go back to 1653, but no Godby entries appear until 1701. Several of his children were married there in the 1720's. His youngest son John, of our family tree, was baptised there on 1 Apr 1705. There is however no marriage record there for John.

2. In addition to the data presented in paragraph 10 of the Thomas R. Godbey Notes, Margie Richards concludes on pages 4-5 of her book that the line from Thomas Godbey (1645-1686) continues as Edward Godby b. 1671; John Godby b. 1705; William Godby b. 1725-30 and John Godby b. 1752. Some of the above birth dates have been modified due to additional research.

3. The Middlesex County Quit Rent Roll for 1704 showed Edward Gobbee (sp) for 90 acres. Such transactions relate to the tenure of land by agricultural service fixed in amount and kind by payment of money rent only and not burdened by military service.

Fifth Generation

5. John Godby b. 1705 in Middlesex County, Virginia and d. 1769 in Caroline County, Virginia. He was baptised on 2 Apr 1705 in Christ Church Parish. A number of references place him in his adult years in both Caroline County and Goochland County after he left Middlesex County. No data has been recovered on the name of his wife or the date and place of his marriage.

Children:

* William Godby b. 1725-30.

Other issue, if any, remain unknown.

NOTES ON THE JOHN GODBY (1705 - 1769) GENERATION:

1. John is a fairly well hidden member of the Godby clan. Much of the key data points about him are missing, so we took the following data from page 4 of the Richards' book: The older children of Edward Godby: William (?) and George, must have been born before they moved to Middlesex County. John the youngest child, was born in Middlesex County and eventually settled in Caroline County. The John Godby, born in 1705, is probably the one who patented the 400 acres of land in Goochland County in 1734. John Godby appears in the few remnants of the Caroline County records from 1660 to 1664. Thus the line from Thomas Godby of Lower Norfolk is Edward b. ? (new data shows b. 1671) and died between 1705 and 1717 (more likely about 1707 as his widow remarried in 1708) John b. 1705 Middlesex County, settled in Caroline County and died there in 1769, and William b. 1725-30.

2. On page 41 of the Richards' book, John is identified as the son of Edward Godby and is shown as a large landholder in Caroline County during the period 1734-1761. Of his descendents, more than 100 are distinguished preachers, educators and editors.

3. The various Order Books of Caroline County show that John was an active member of the community during the period of approximately 1732 to 1758, serving on juries, road commissions and as a party in various court cases.

4. Reference "Colonial Caroline - A History of Caroline County, Virginia," T. E. Campbell, Dietz Press, Richmond, Virginia, 1954. On page 481, John Godby is shown as the decedent in 1769 with executors or administrators cited as William Dudley, William Chiles, John Buller and Richard Wyatt. One may presume that his wife had predeceased him and that his son, William, was also dead or otherwise unable to serve as his executor.

5. No Middlesex County or Caroline County records have been recovered regarding his marriage or the birth of any offspring.

6. Page 70, Vol 5 of the Virginia Genealogist notes that John Godby (cited as Godbee) witnessed the will of Thomas Kidd on 4 July 1727 in Middlesex County, Virginia. This Thomas and John were likely related by the marriage of John's sister Rebecca to John Kidd on 21 Feb 1720. This confirms that John was still in Middlesex County in 1727. If his marriage and the birth of his son William took place before 1727, it would have been in Middlesex County. If the marriage and birth of William took place after 1727, the events could have occurred in Middlesex, Caroline or Goochland Counties.

7. John's mother, Frances Cheedle, had a will recorded in Saint James Parish in Goochland County on 19 Feb 1739 in which she left John "one shilling" with the remainder of the estate going to members of the Tuggle, Baskett and Kidd families. Since her daughters had married into the Tuggle and Kidd families, this may imply that they left Middlesex County and moved to Goochland County as a group after the death of her husband in Middlesex County on 2 Jun 1724.

8. Frances Cheedle's estate was valued at 115 pounds as of 20 May 1740. Daniel Baskett was the executor. One wonders why she left her youngest son John only one shilling from an estate of this size.

9. In Mar 1741, John Godby of Caroline County deeded to David Davis his 400 acres in Goochland County for 46 pounds. Page 4 of the Richards book shows he bought this land in 1734.

10. From all of this, we may assume that John left Middlesex County most likely between 1727 and 1734 and lived in Goochland and Caroline Counties - mostly in the latter.

Sixth Generation

6. William Godby b. 1725-30. No data on the name of his wife or the date and place of his marriage has been recovered. He may have had two marriages as page 138 of the Richards' book notes that his son John b. 1752 (and implicitly his son William b. 1750) was a child of his first wife. There is no data on any other issue.

Children:

William b. 29 Sep 1750, most likely in Caroline County, Virginia. He died in 1833 in Montgomery County, Virginia. In 1768 he married Susanna (Zannah) whose family name may have been Dickenson. She was born on 10 Nov 1751. They had 10 children: John, Polly, William, Gabriel, Lucy, Francis, Sarah, George, Susannah and Benjamin.

* John Godby b. 1752.

NOTES ON THE WILLIAM GODBY (1725-30 - ?) GENERATION:

1. William is the most well hidden of all the Godbys. Although generally accepted, we have found no documentary data to support the contention contained in both the Richards' and Pitts' Godby books, as well as several other research works, that he was the son of John Godby born in 1705 and the father of John Godby born in 1752. No data whatsoever has been recovered about the names of his wives and the dates and places of his marriages.

2. On page 162 of the Richards' book, it indicates that William was born in either 1725 or 1735. Since it appears that his son William was born in 1750, it is more likely that he would have been born around 1725 or 1730. If he had been born in 1735, he would have been only 15 years old at the time of his son William's birth - somewhat unlikely.

3. On page 138 of the Richards' book, it is reported that John Godby b. 1752 was the son of William Godby and his first wife. This is also reported in three different places in the Pitts' book.

4. While there is very little data on this ancestor, page 4 of the Richards' book clearly states that William Godby b. 1781 had a father named John and a grandfather named William. This data was allegedly taken from old family documents by A. B. Godby, a grandson of William Godby b. 1781.

5. See paragraph 1 of the Notes on the John Godby (1752 - 1803) Generation. It is not clear or anywhere directly stated that the "considerable estate" received by John came from William, his father.

6. Reference the book "The Men, Women and Events, Institutions and Lore of Casey County, Kentucky," W. M. Watkins, The Standard Printing Co., Inc., Louisville, Kentucky. On page 187 it notes that: "A William Godby had two sons, John and William. John had two sons, John and William . . ." The last William shown here was the one born in Caroline County, Virginia in 1781 who moved west to Casey County and died there in 1786 - see the short vignette on him in the Seventh Generation data which follows. This is a confirmatory citation on the existence of William b. 1725-30, although no specific source is cited.

7. A study by Gladys Cotham Thomas of Casey County, Kentucky is annotated to show that this William lived in New River, Pulaski County, Virginia and that area ultimately became Wyeth County, Virginia. If correct, a search for William b. 1725-30 might also include a look at the available Wyeth County records.

Seventh Generation

7. John Godby b. 1752, probably in Caroline County, Virginia, was married twice. His first wife, name unknown, died while the family made an unsuccessful effort to move west to Kentucky. His second marriage may possibly have been to Elizabeth Harless on 24 Oct 1799, most likely in Montgomery County, Virginia. John was a Revolutionary War veteran.

Children:

* John Godby b. 1772, son of John's first wife, was born in Caroline County, Virginia.

Fanny b. unk d. unk and marital status is unknown. She was an offspring of John's first wife.

William b. 18 Jan 1781 in Caroline County, Virginia, the offspring of John's first wife. He died on 28 Apr 1876 in Casey County, Kentucky. His first wife was Sarah Smith b. 10 Mar 1783 d. 15 Sep 1836. They were married in Jan 1801. His second wife was Martha Curl b. 22 Mar 1793 and d. 15 Jan 1884. William and his second wife had no issue. The children born to William and Sarah were John G., Jacob, Fanny, Nancy, Ibba, Matilda, Sally, William, Henry Harrison, Joshua, Josephus, Josiah and Melissa. Josephus and Josiah were twins.

Joseph b. unk d. unk. He was the child of John's second wife and lived for a time in Tennessee and then Missouri. Marital status is not known.

Sallie b. unk d. 6 Feb 18[illegible] in Casey County, Kentucky, where she lived with her brother William. She was an offspring of John's second wife.

George b. unk d. unk. He was not married and died in either Kentucky or Tennessee as a young man.

NOTES ON THE JOHN GODBY (1752 - 1803) GENERATION:

1. Pages 12 - 18 of the Richards' book show a letter from Allan Howard Godby of Durham, N.C., dated 14 Aug 1939 relating to this John, his brother William and their issue. Of particular interest is his statement that his data represents material gathered over 40 years and that the names and dates are confirmed in two family bibles. Since Allan Howard Godby was a professor of Bible History at Duke University, I believe we can accept his report as reliable. Both this John and his brother William were Revolutionary War Veterans. (Note: No data has been recovered from the DAR files or the Revolutionary War pension files which confirm that John served in that war). A most interesting story appears on page 14 of the Richards' book indicating that John Godby was converted under the preaching of John Ashbury, and immediately took two radical steps. He had received his share of a considerable estate in slaves and immediately manumitted them. Under the laws of Virginia, he had to make some provision for the maintenance of those manumitted. W. B. Godby, in his autobiography, says that the total cost to his great-grandgather was about $30,000. John established a fervid household worship. An immediate consequence was that no descendent of his ever held slaves, though living in slave holding states. John further announced that for any house raising or log-rolling, no whiskey would be furnished. His Kentucky descendents held to this policy.

2. In the records of Caroline County, Va., for the year 1783, the personal property tax list reports that for John Godby there was: "1 tythable male (meaning a poll tax payer - himself), no negroes over 16, one negro under 16, 2 horses, 2 head of cattle, no wheels and no license to keep an Ordinary." This means that John had no son over 16, that he had no negroes except one under 16 who could not be manumitted under Virginia Law, and did not have a license to keep a dram shop. His brother William does not appear on this list as his land lay in one of the counties created from the western portion of the original, huge Caroline County. (Note: William's home was in Fluvanna County). This may explain why later there is no record of John or his children in Montgomery County, Virginia land grant records since he had no money and could not buy land. He had in effect dissipated his estate by the manumission and care of his slaves.

3. On page 41 of the Richards' book, it notes that John and his brother William decided to follow Daniel Boone into Kentucky, along with some of their neighbors. A major factor may have been that Virginia could not pay her returning Revolutionary War soldiers in cash, and instead offered liberal grants of land in "Kentucky County." However, the wagon train was attacked by Indians who stole some cattle and killed a few of the settlers. John's first wife died about this time. Her name is unknown. The wagon train turned back and John and his brother stopped on New River, Montgomery County, Virginia. Another story of this period indicates that John may have stayed in Greenbriar County and remarried there.

4. On page 35 of the Richards' book, it notes that at the time of the death of John's first wife, he was left with 3 children, who were accompanying him to Kentucky. Who the second wife was and where and when the marriage took place, and indeed when the reported initial move to Kentucky took place are all unknown. One possibility is that the marriage of a John Godby to Elizabeth Harless, widow of Emanuel Harless, which took place on 24 Oct 1799 involves our John. Since the dates of birth of John's last three children are unknown, we do not have a way of confirming that this is our John. An item of interest is that of the reported marriage of Elizabeth Godby to George Tawney on 19 Dec 1806. She is identified as a widow - possibly John's as he died in 1803. Since the marriage of Elizabeth Harless and John Godby took place most likely in Montgomery County, Virginia the reports of his remaining in Greenbriar may not be accurate.

5. On page 41 of the Richards' book, John reportedly moved to West Virginia (Greenbriar) in 1784. If this is true, the above cited marriage to Elizabeth Harless is brought into question, even though they could have had the three additional children from 1799 until his death in 1803. To remain unmarried for some 15 years or so with three children to raise is hard to accept. On the other hand, there could be a reporting error and the start of the trip to Kentucky could have been in 1794 rather than 1784. This lets the pieces of the puzzle fit together in a better way.

6. A John Godby was listed on the 1790 Montgomery County Tax list, noting that he had also been on the 1788 but not the 1789 list.

Eighth Generation

8. John Godby b. 1772 in Caroline County, Virginia and d. 1830-35 in Pulaski County, Kentucky. He married Elizabeth Walker on 8 May 1793, probably in Montgomery County, Virginia. Her dates of birth and death are unknown.

Children:

James Godby b. about 1795 d. unk m. Nancy Snead on 6 Jun 1828. Her dates of birth and death are not known. No known issue.

John Godby b. 1811 in Pulaski County, Kentucky d. 1894 in Boone County, Indiana. He married Mary "Polly" Lee, possibly in Dec 1832. They had 9 children: Elizabeth Jane, William C., Martha Ann, Mary E., Nancy S., Milton J., Tamsy F., Louisa and Walter.

Gabriel Godby b. unk d. unk m. Anna Lee on 12 Mar 1833 in Boone County, Indiana. They had 7 children: William W., James, Henry, Nannie, Jane, Daniel W. and Samuel.

Josiah Godby b. unk d. unk m. Polly Clair on 16 May 1838 and had 3 children: Harvey, John and Nancy.

* William Godby b. 11 Jan 1800 in Pulaski County, Kentucky.

Frances "Fanny" Godby b. 10 May 1806, Pulaski County, Ky. d. 12 Mar 1885 in Coles County, Illinois m. Hiram Washington Roy and moved to Coles County, Ill. No known issue.

Nancy Godby b. unk d. unk m. Thomas Meadows Roy and moved to Coles County, Ill. Had 6 children whose names are not known.

Harvey Godby b. unk d. unk m. Kate Barber on 28 Mar 1840. No known issue.

NOTES ON THE JOHN GODBY (1772 - 1830/35) GENERATION:

1. The Richards' book indicates that both John and his wife are buried in the Massey cemetery in Somerset, Kentucky. Reference "The Early American Adventurers on the Western Waters, Vol II," Mary B. Kegley, Green Publishers, Orange, Virginia. On page 171 of this book, it shows that John and Elizabeth were married on 8 May 1793. Further data on this couple might be recovered from information on the Massey cemetery located on Cabin Hollow Road, although the Pulaski County Historical Society book on Pulaski cemeteries shows no Godbys buried there.

2. John and his family lived in Pumpkin Hollow, Kentucky. On page 23 of the Richards' book, Pumpkin Hollow is defined as follows: "In the South corner of Pulaski County, just north of the Cumberland River, is a little village of Northfield, in the upper end of a little valley spreading south into the Cumberland River. That is Pumpkin Hollow, and immediately south of Northfield was the old Pumpkin Hollow schoolhouse near which Wayne Smith lived as a very small boy when the Godbys were there. Later he lived a mile northeast of the Cedar Grove railroad station where his father died. (Note: Wayne Smith is identified as Dr. Wayne Smith of the University of Idaho, whose wife, Agnes Faye Higgins, was a descendent of John Godby).

3. Page 24 of the Richards' book notes that: "John, brother of William, settled somewhere between Bethelridge and Somerset, on the east side of Fishing Creek, southwest of Science Hill, but only stayed there a few days and went back. He did not leave Pulaski County. (Note: When heading south in Pulaski County, he likely went to Pumpkin Hollow).

4. In relation to John and Elizabeth Godby, page 44 of the Pitts book says: "The Indians ran them over into Virginia, they came back to Kentucky and again ran back to Virginia, and returned again to Kentucky. (A true indication of Godby perseverence).

5. A family generation record compiled by Sarah Hammond of Indianapolis, Indiana in 1981, located in the Godby family file in the Pulaski County Historical Society, shows that John died in Pulaski County, Kentucky, sometime between 1830 and 1835. This may be about right, as his widow married Henry Farmer on 8 Dec 1835 in Pulaski County.

Ninth Generation

9. William "Billy" Godby b. 11 Jan 1800 in Pulaski County, Kentucky, and died in 1887. He married Eliza Massey in Pulaski County on 29 Sep 1831.

She was b. 1812 in Pulaski County and died there in 1887. He is buried in the Pumpkin Hollow cemetery.

Children:

John M. Godby b. 27 Apr 1830 or 31 in Pumpkin Hollow d. 7 Dec 1917 in West Salem, Indiana. He married Althena Sneed on 14 Mar 1852 in Pulaski County. Her date of birth is unknown and she died in 1916. They had 8 children: Eliza Ann, William Thomas, Cornelius Doolin, Josiah G., Neal, Nancy Rebecca, Althena E. and John S..

Martha Godby b. 7 Jan 1834 in Pulaski County d. unk, m. Ephraim Clark (1st) and Sam McPheron (2d), the latter on 9 Dec 1864. She had 11 children, not identified by name.

Sarah "Sally" Godby b. 6 Jun 1837 in Pulaski County d. unk m. William Richardson on 1 May 1857. His dates of birth and death are not known. They had 4 children: Shelly, Ferna, Sarah and Leroy.

Nancy Godby b. 15 Dec 1843 in Pulaski County d. unk m. Burl Hubbard on 8 Feb 1865. His dates of birth and death are unknown. They had two children whose names are not known.

Calvin Godby b. 18 Mar 1846 in Pulaski County (see his picture at the beginning of this study) and died 31 Dec 1927 in Pumpkin Hollow. Married Cicely Jane McPheron on 13 Apr 1869 in Pulaski County. She was b. 1 Sep 1850 and died 10 Nov 1912. They had 9 children: Nancy Addie, Rufus A., Charity L., Elie E., William Henry, Francis Arthur, Ollie May, Clarence and Susan - all born in Pulaski County.

Mary Ellen Godby b. 27 Apr 1849 d. 1 May 1885 m. John W. Jones on 16 Nov 1866. His dates of birth and death are not known. They had 5 children: Pierce, Joe Sally, John William, Paskal and Eliza.

* Nicholas Elon Godby b. 6 Mar 1836.

NOTES ON THE WILLIAM GODBY (1800-1887) GENERATION:

1. The date of William's marriage, his son John's birth date and the spelling of his son's wife's name were taken from the Mormon Family History Center.

2. The Richards' book gave two possible dates of birth for son Nicholas in 1834. These were rejected because his sister Martha was born in that year. Nicholas was born in East Somerset, Kentucky. The 1860 Kentucky census shows him as being 24 years old - therefore he was most likely born in 1836.

Tenth Generation

10. Nicholas Elon Godby b. 6 Mar 1836 in Somerset, Kentucky d. 28 Feb 1906 m. Emaline Hall on 14 Sep 1858. She was b. 11 Nov 1841 and d. 16 Aug 1921. Both are buried in the Bethlehem Church cemetery.

Children:

Elizabeth Godby b. 29 Jan 1872 in Pulaski County. Date of death is unknown. Married John T. Scales and had two children: Claybourne and Luther.

Sherman Godby b. unk d. unk m. Mary Bell Baugh date unknown at Science Hill, Kentucky. They had 3 children : Dewey, Curtis and Della Marie.

John William Godby b. 16 Oct 1862 in Bethelridge, Kentucky d. 21 Apr 1939 m. Amy Baugh b. 16 Jan 1868 d. 10 Feb 1964. They had 9 children: Virgil, Harvey, Richard, Oliver, Emaline, Josie, Alma, Roxie and Orval.

Marcell Sherdin Godby b. 15 Sep 1879 in Pulaski County d. 21 Dec 1964 m. Lay (?) (1st) and Lula Margaret Newell (2d) at Science Hill. The children of his first wife were Amos and Brusilla. Children of his second marriage were Mildred, Boyd, Dorothy, Loyd, James, Charles, Daisy, Emma, Nellie and Ola. He was a railroad worker.

Ephraim Furman Godby b. 24 Oct 1867 in Pulaski County. He married Louisa Massey on 29 Nov 1894. She was b. 10 Feb 1874 d. 30 Oct 1935. Ephraim died on 14 Aug 1932. They had 4 children: Stanley, Pearlie, John and Lincoln. He was a farmer and is buried in the Eubank cemetery.

Mary Godby b. unk d. unk m. John T. Scales (widower of her sister Elizabeth). Issue unknown.

* Barthenia Godby - For data on this 11th generation, see the material provided in the Kelly family tree.

NOTES ON THE NICHOLAS GODBY (1836 - 1906) GENERATION:

1. Some of the references show Emaline was born in 1837. However, the 1860 Kentucky census shows her to be 18 years old at that time, therefore she was most likely born around 1842. The same census shows only one child in their family. This was Louisa, aged 11 months. All other children for whom we have no birth dates must therefore have been born after 1860.

2. Following these notes on Nicholas and his family are copies of pages 62-68 of the Pitts' book which lists the available data on all the children and grandchildren of his marriage. We do this to give you a chance to recall the names of some distant and perhaps forgotten aunts, uncles and cousins.

HAPPY 400th BIRTHDAY BLUNT POINT!

Gloria Piland Rogers

Long ago, before the City of Newport News or old Warwick County existed, "Blunt Poynt" was part of the new English colony in "Ye Kingdome of Virginia." Located on a high bluff at the confluence of the James and Warwick Rivers, it is opposite and slightly below Mulberry Island.

An early state highway marker (no longer standing) stated "Blunt Point...was named for Humphrey Blount (pronounced Blunt) who was killed by the Indians in 1610." It is one of the earliest English place names in use in America today. By the 1930s "Blount" had become the accepted spelling by all but the older natives who would continue to spell it "the correct way."

It was on 9 Jul 1610 that Sir Humphrey Blount, while attempting to recover a drifting longboat, was attacked, tortured and killed there by Nansemond braves. Rather than taking revenge on that tribe at Dumpling Island near Chuckatuck, the settlers retaliated by attacking the Kicotans and driving them from their village in present day Hampton.

Needless to say, Native Americans had been at Blunt Point long before the Europeans arrived. On 18 Nov 1928, a Daily Press article stated, "Indian relics have been found both on the bank and the beach in the vicinity of the (Roscow) estate and on one occasion human bones were uncovered. Recent finds of pieces of clay pipe, pottery and a tommyhawk (sic) and arrow heads, after a cave in of the river bank led to the conclusion that the spot was an Indian camping ground in the very early days of Virginia history..."

Exactly when the English first inhabited the area is not known although most riverfront property had been "taken up" by 1621. When the colony was divided into four corporations, Blunt Point was in the Borough of Kiccowtan. At the first legislative assembly in 1619, this "savage name" was changed to Elizabeth Cittie.

In 1622, Samuel Each, Captain of the Abigale, convinced the Virginia Company that the plantations upriver could be better defended by building a blockhouse on the oyster rocks off Blunt Point. He was hired to do so but died soon after arriving in the Colony.[1] Governor Francis Wyatt felt constructing a fort in the river was impractical; however, a comparable defensive post was erected there on the mainland.[2] Its location may have been on the point just below the mouth of Fishers Creek for that land was long called "Bunker Hill".[3]

Virginia Company records state that in 1623 the plantations at "Newport's News and Blunt Point were very fruitful and pleasant seats, free from salt marshes, very healthful and upon high land."

"A List of Tithes and Landowners in Virginia" was prepared in 1625 by William Clayborne, the Virginia Company's official surveyor. It showed 2,200 acres at Blunt Point had been patented or granted by order of the court. Beginning on the north with the lands of William Clayborne and John Baynham at Potash Quarter, it included Edward Waters at Waters Creek on the south.[4] The tracts ranged in size from 50 to 500 acres.

Clayborne's list named property owners in the following order: William Clayborne, John Baynham, Captain Hamor, Gilbert Peppett, Francis Gifford, Captain Mathews, Thomas Hothersall, Cornelius May, Richard Craven, Richard Tree, Richard Domelaw, Percival Ibbison and Edward Waters. While the entire waterfront between Lucas Creek and Lake Maury seems to have been considered Blunt Point, only Hothersall's 200-acre tract was listed at Blunt Point.[5]

In 1628, John Laydon (1581-aft.1640) a carpenter who came with the 1607 settlers, patented 100 acres on the east side of Blunt Point (Fishers) Creek.[6] His wife Anne Burras, who arrived the following year as the 13-year-old maidservant of Mistress Thomas Forrest, was one of the first two women at Jamestown. Theirs was the first Anglican marriage in the colony and their daughter, Virginia Laydon, was the first English child born in the settlement.

Both Laydon and Richard Tree were Virginia Company carpenters who may have been sent to Blunt Point to construct the blockhouse. It is possible that Ann was related to the Anthony Burrowes who was two miles below Blunt Point on land adjoining Laydon's 1628 patent,[7] or to the John Burrowes who was killed near Blunt Point on New Year's Day of that same year.

The incident occurred at the home of Benjamin Jackson during a scuffle between Burrowes and a young laborer named William Reade. John Gay, Jackson's servant, testified that Reade "stabbed Burrowes into the belly below the Navell and about an hower after this Burrowes dyed." Reade insisted he was simply holding the knife when Burrowes came at him and "ran his belly upon the knife." A jury of the General Court convicted Reade of manslaughter but the records fail to state if he was hanged or branded.[8]

Warwick River Shire was created by 1634 when the colony was divided again for governing purposes. At that time Blunt Point, Denby and Mulberry Island were "fully settled" and were Warwick's centers of activity. In 1642, the county's boundaries were set and the name officially changed to Warwick County. Due to the destruction of county records during the War Between the States, little has survived of Blunt Point's early history or of the people who lived there.

FEHAA member, Richard Dunn has published a collection of all colonial Warwick records he was able to locate. Not only those in the archives of the Library of Virginia, the Virginia Historical Society and Swem Library are included but also some found in other repositories including the New York Historical Society. This book is invaluable to anyone interested in early Warwick County.[9]

A 1696 entry mentions "milo ffisher's creek". That year a small patent was issued to John Mallicote (pronounced Malicut) on a branch of Fisher's Creek and the following year James Floyd patented land on Merrie Point Creek. Col. Prichard's old field divided the two tracts, both of which bordered William Roscow and John Edwards thus placing them in the vicinity of Blunt Point.[10]

Mallicote's name appears several times as a witness on legal documents, a member of a grand jury, a plaintiff in a court case and as an estate appraiser. His will dated 1719, names wife Mary, son Thomas and deceased son William. An undated codicil indicates Mary had died and he had married Joan. He willed his land to grandson, John Mallicote, son of William, deceased. Other grandchildren were Elizabeth, Mary and William Mallicote, children of William; Moore, Francis and John Mallicote, children of Thomas; John and Mary Townsend and Anne Bates, daughter of Oliver Bates. All were underage. Witnesses to the will were ... Roscow and Joshua ... By 1729, Mallicote was dead and one of his granddaughters had married Robert Morgan.

In 1688, James Floyd petitioned the court to relieve him of a debt he had been ordered to pay to John Langhorne (pronounced Langon). He apologized "for his abuse" to Mr. Langhorne, stating he "was not himself" at the time and in the future would conduct himself civilly. The decision of the court is not known. A 1690 list of county expenditures stated Floyd was to be paid "for fetching bricks for the courthouse." Floyd was dead by 1700 and his orphan Richard was bound to Thomas Allerdes(?). After marrying Floyd's widow Rebecca, William Holden petitioned to have the estate appraised in 1714. Nath: Hoggard, Wm Bressie and Tho: Mallicoat were appointed to do so.

Thomas Merry and William Roscow appraised the estate of John Edwards on 21 Mar 1695. Payments were owed to James Floyd "for worke" and to John Mallicote. The settlement was presented on 21 Jan 1696/7 by John Mallicote who had married Mary, Edward's widow and administratrix.

Lieftenant Colonel Thomas Prichard was security for Edward James in 1663, when he administered the estate of Thomas Stevens, his brother-in-law. Prichard was a Warwick Justice who died by 1690, leaving a will. Richard Floyd and John Townsend, identified only as "two children", were each willed a cow calf. The remainder of his estate was equally divided between Jeffery Williams, Christopher Chrah(?) and Ann Townsend, a widow. It included furniture, numerous household items, linens, one old back sword, a parcell of old iron and livestock. Love, Kindly, Old Blossom and Young Blossom were among the names of his cows.

The date when William Roscow, Gentleman (1664-1700) of Lancashire, England acquired "Blunt Point Plantacion" has not been determined. It would seem he was there by the Christmas holidays of 1693/4 when Robert Roscow borrowed a dappled gray mare from Ralph Flowers of York County "to goe to his brother's in Warwick." Returning a week later without the horse, he said "he rid the mare to Maj. Wilson's in Kickatan and that there he had lost her." The court ordered him to pay Flowers 1000 pounds of tobacco.[11]

A WPA report erroneously states the Roscow property at Blunt Point was formerly called "Derbys" and was purchased from Mr. Langhorne. Derbys, however, was the name of a 700-acre Roscow tract "on the east side of Waters Creek."[12]

In 1694, William Roscow and Thomas Merry purchased the Waters Creek Mill from Maurice (pronounced Morris) Langhorne.[13] Roscow served as Warwick's High Sheriff, Justice, and Burgess. He was County Commissioner until 1696 when he deliberately failed to carry out an order of the Council concerning the Denbigh Parish and the Governor removed him from office. He was co-owner of the ship Prize of Harwich and served on "the committee to try pyrates" in 1700.

Roscow's wife, Mary Wilson, was the daughter of a wealthy Scottish merchant in Elizabeth City County. Reported to be one of the peninsula's most beautiful and charming young socialites, she did not live a fairy tale life. Married by age 16, Mary had four little children and was "big with" another when widowed at 25. By 1709, she had four more children and her second husband, Miles Cary, Jr. of "Richneck", was also dead. Three of her Roscow children died young. After the death of a third husband, Archibald Blair of Williamsburg, Mary is believed to have returned to Blunt Point and in 1741 was buried beside William Roscow.

Wilson Roscow (1692-1714), the eldest son, inherited "Blunt Point", married Euphan Wallace and died childless at age 22. His father's will had included a reversion clause to insure his fortune would remain in the family. Although Euphan had produced no Roscow heirs, she wanted Blunt Point! She soon married William Dandridge, Martha Washington's uncle, who supported her claim for the estate. After a lengthy legal battle, the property was rightfully returned to the Roscow family and William, Jr. inherited Blunt Point. He and his sister Mary, who married William Cole of "Bolthorpe", were the only Roscow children who left heirs.

William Roscow, Jr. (1698-1752) married Lucy Bassett, a daughter of William Bassett of "Eltham" in New Kent County. He rose to the rank of colonel in the Warwick militia, held the offices of Burgess, Justice and Sheriff and served on various committees including one to inquire into the condition of the battery at Point Comfort. In a 1755 deposition, Lucy stated their minor children were Elizabeth, James, Wilson, Mary, Martha, and Lucy Bassett Roscow. A record of some of the items belonging to William, Jr.'s estate has survived.[14]

By 1768, James Roscow was William's and Lucy's only living male heir and he was experiencing financial difficulties. Though he had inherited a great deal of land, it was useless for he had no one to work it. That year he petitioned the House of Burgesses for permission to sell "Derbys" and use the proceeds to purchase slaves. The bill passed and the House named a committee to sell that tract and purchase slaves for his other lands.[15] In 1770, he was still in trouble and wished to sell "Stanley Hundred" and "Blunt Point" for less than their value, enabling him to pay off his debts. In 1774 and 1775 he made two more unsuccessful attempts.

During this period, a "Great Fresh" struck the colony. The loss of human life, livestock and property along the flooding James River was unequaled. Crops in the fields were destroyed as was the tobacco stored in public warehouses. This surely added to James' problems and devastated others living along the creeks in the Blunt Point area.[16]

On 1 Jan 1777, the General Assembly passed a resolution that required those with certain connections to Great Britain to leave the Commonwealth and gave them permission to dispose of property.[17] Within days, Roscow advertised several tracts for sale in the Virginia Gazette and stated he was leaving for England as soon as he settled his affairs. Blunt Point was described as "containing about 1000 acres, on which is a very good two story brick house with four rooms on a floor, pleasantly situated on the river, a brick kitchen with two rooms above, a large stable, coach house and such."

The home also included a bricked in underground passageway about three feet wide that led from the cellar to a nearby ravine, giving access to the beach. This tunnel was not discovered until around the turn of the twentieth century when a mule, hitched to the plow of Edwin Vantley Wilbern fell in it.[18]

Wilbern's son, Wilmer Linwood Wilbern (1920-2008), had no memory of the mansion's brick walls for they had been torn down and used to build chimneys in nearby homes. He recalled that the cellar ruins had contained many eroded and mossy half bricks and smaller pieces. He believed the house had burned but had no idea when, or if it was occupied at the time. Combining recorded and oral history, the disaster would have occurred between 1777 and 1865.

It has not been determined if James Roscow was successful at selling the property or if the new government confiscated it. After the war, however, the Roscow name did not appear on Warwick's tax books.

Though few court records have survived, much can be gleaned from the land and personal property tax records that began in 1782.[19]

That year, John West was charged with the 1000-acre tract and after his death in 1786, it descended to Thomas West. It seems probable these Wests were members of the same family as Thomas West (Lord de la Warr) and his brother John. It was Lord de la Warr's party that met the evacuating Jamestown colonists off Mulberry Point in June of 1610 --- one month before Humphrey Blount's death.

Although the Roscows and Wests had listed their property as containing 1000 acres, it proved to be nearly 200 acres short when surveyed and divided in 1798. Perhaps it had never contained 1000 acres but perhaps it had...

Pearl Haughton Mason (1900-1995), who worked in the County Clerk's office in the 1940s, recalled the day a gentleman requested her assistance in locating a large number of acres at Blunt Point that had "just vanished" from the tax records. She told him she knew where it was but they could not find it in the books "because it had caved in the river."[20] Wilmer Wilbern stated that when he sold his riverfront tract at the end of Blount Point Road in 1992, at least 65 to 70 feet had eroded since he was a boy.

The 1798 records charged the land to five new property owners. West had deeded 350 acres to Richard McIntosh, 236 acres to William Haughton, Jr. and 128 acres to Thomas Patrick (who conveyed it to McIntosh in 1800). William Gray and Behathland Ridley each owned 46 acres.

William Haughton, Jr. (pronounced Horton) was the son of Peter Haughton (1724-1798). His grandparents, William Haughton (1691-c.1756) and Ann Manson (1699-aft.1757), of Charles Parish in York County, had moved into Warwick by 1737 when he received a patent for 27 acres. Bordered by Anthony Armistead, William Langley, Thomas Curle and Col. Roscow, it included a marsh and an unidentified dam. It, too, was on the east side of Waters Creek. The name of the Roscow tract there, which by 1768 was called "Derbys", may have been a corruption of Deberry or Dewbre for a 1697 patent mentions a Samuel Deberrie in that vicinity.

No record has been found of William, Jr.'s first wife who appears to have died by 1783, or of his occupation. Evidently he was a man of some means for at the time of his death, he owned nearly 1200 acres and one of the few "chairs" or riding carriages in the county. There are indications he may have been involved in the logging and/or lumber business.

In 1814, when the land books began to include a description and location of each tract, the McIntosh and Haughton lands were listed on the James River, seven miles south of the 1810 courthouse. The Haughton land began at Fisher's Creek and ran along the river to the Merry Point Creek or marsh where it joined McIntosh. The Gray and Ridley properties were east of Haughton. After this time, only the Haughton tract would be known as Blunt Point.

When William Haughton, Jr. (bef.1761-1801) married Mrs. Aphia Wallace in Norfolk on 8 Aug 1799, John West was his security. Any relation between Euphan Wallace Roscow and Aphia Wallace Haughton is unknown.

William and his bride enjoyed only a brief time at Blunt Point for he died two years later, leaving a will with Peter Haughton, Jr. (1769-1805) as the executor. Aside from the widow's dower, Peter and Robert Haughton inherited his entire taxable estate. The Blunt Point land was willed to Robert. Since slaves, livestock and vehicles were the only personal property listed and since the will no longer exists, there is no record of other relatives who may have been mentioned.

It appears that Robert Haughton (1771-1806) and his wife Ann (believed be a descendant of the aforementioned Anthony Armistead) relocated at Blunt Point. Their family included a daughter, Judith who died by 1818 and another who married George Mallicote and died before 1820. Other children were Armistead (1798-1864) who married Patience Godwin Langhorne (1799-1863) and John (1801-bef.1850) who left a daughter named Virginia Ann who married William C. Presson. Another daughter, Ann "Nancy" (1806-1857), married William Lee (1793-1863) and lived on the old Lee-Haughton tract below the James River Bridge.

Robert seems to have died intestate and his widow was the administratrix. A docket book[21] covering the years 1813 to 1818 lists several suits brought by and against Haughton administrators, heirs and orphans. With several family members having died in the previous decade and without court records for that period, it has not been determined if the Blunt Point property was involved.

When Robert's estate was settled in 1820, the land was divided among his children and Mallicote grandsons. The young men soon sold their shares to Hinde R. Dunn and William T. Wilbern while Nancy and William Lee retained her share on the riverbank at the end of Blunt Point Road.

As Two Dig Up Fort's History, Forefathers' Story Uncovered

May 14, 2007|By Mark St. John Erickson, merickson@dailypress.com | 247-4783

JAMES CITY — Ancient family ties give two scientists at the Jamestown Rediscovery dig something more than professional interest.

Not long after archaeologist Jamie May began working on the dig that unearthed the long-lost fort at Jamestown, her father told her she had a family connection.

Neither scientist makes much fuss about such rarified ancestral connections. But sometimes the close link between their bloodlines and their unusual place of work makes them stop and wonder.

Englishman Thomas Godby came aboard the Deliverance -- one of two makeshift vessels that carried a group of shipwrecked colonists from Bermuda -- when it landed here in 1610. Fourteen generations later, May is a direct descendant.

Conservator Michael Lavin, who joined the Jamestown Rediscovery project a dozen years ago, got similar news from his own dad just a few months back. Sometime in 1620, his 12th great-grandfather -- an Englishman named Thomas Leister -- stepped off the deck of the Abigail and walked onto Jamestown Island.

Mid-Sunday afternoon, Lavin walked down a sandy path not far from the fort site and the 400th anniversary crowds to visit -- for the very first time -- the place where his forebear lived. Over the years, he's passed by this grassy field off ancient Back Street on scores of after-work training runs. But that was before he knew why it might be important.

"There's an extra layer that I didn't have before -- and that's probably what draws me here now," Lavin said, looking back and wondering what the surrounding landscape and the nearby fort might have looked like when Leister arrived.

"It really does make me curious. He spent some time right here. But I was intrigued by a lot of the things on the island a long time before I knew I had this connection."

Both Lavin and May have experienced many moments at their jobs when they felt as if they could reach out and touch the people who lived on Jamestown Island in the past. On one occasion, May plucked a ring from the excavated soil and slipped it on her finger, then realized that the last person to do the same thing died some 400 years ago.

The archaeologist gets similar feelings from such simple everyday artifacts as the shoes recovered from a James Fort well. "This is something that somebody actually wore," she said. Even more compelling moments have occurred during the project's painstaking and sober efforts to study the mystery-enshrouded remains of Jamestown's dead.

"You're looking in the faces of the people who died here," May said. "You can't get much more personal than that."

Lavin ranks his connections with the artifacts here in much the same way. Even after conserving with with thousands of objects, he still marvels at the chance to touch certain kinds of weapons, hand tools and other personal items that some long-dead colonist actually held in his or her hands.

"They have more meaning. They have more significance when you know that they're personal," he said. "And being the first person to handle something like that after 400 years can really make you feel connected to the past." *

Brief bios of Thomas Godby and Thomas Leister

Though not yet 25 when he arrived at Jamestown in 1610, Thomas Godby lived long enough to be considered an "ancient planter." That entitled him to a land grant of 100 acres when the company's lands were divided after the 1622 Indian massacre.

He and his wife, Joan, patented a tract between Blunt's Point and Newport News in what was then Elizabeth City County. In 1629, Godby was visiting fellow planter William Parker at his Merry Point home when his party failed to aid boater William Bentley, who was stranded in the James River. The two men later argued, and Godby was killed in the resulting brawl. -- Adapted from "Virginia Immigrants and Adventurers 1607-1635: A Biographical Dictionary" by Martha McCartney

Thomas Leister might have been born in 1587 and come to Jamestown as early as 1620. The Muster of 1624 describes him as a servant of Dr. John Pott, the colony's physician general and, later, deputy governor. He would appear in the colony's court records several times and, in 1626, was accused of cutting another colonist's arm in a fight. -- Adapted from "Virginia Immigrants and Adventurers 1607-1635: A Biographical Dictionary" by Martha McCartney and other sources

BRIEF LIFE SKETCHES

OF THE

COX AND HAIL FAMILIES

BY

HENRY JEFFERSON COX; DECEMBER 1, 1940

In the following pages, I shall attempt to outline, to the best of my knowledge and belief, short sketches only, of my relatives, both ancestors and descendants, reaching several generations.

THE COX FAMILY:

My grandfather, William Cox, and grandmother, whose maiden name was Maria Claire, were living in Pulaski County, Kentucky, near Somersat at date of my birth, 1860. However, it is thought both were born in Virginia.

They continued to live there until the year 1873, at which time, after their children were all married and scattered, and they, themselves, being considerably age moved to Southwest Missouri, to be near their eldest son, Marcellus; who at that time was located there on a farm, two miles southwest of Marionville, Lawrence County.

They had reared a large family; Marcellus, William Perry (My father), Ballard, Jake, Sciatha, Winford, Brent, Frank, and James.

Grandfather had been a farmer, and a schoolteacher in Kentucky; but at that time had retired.

Their remaining years were spent in a small cottage almost at the door of their son; they were well cared for to the close of life; both, aged more than three score and ten years. Grandmother died July 2, 1880, aged 72; and grandfather in 1883, aged 84. Both were interred in the Grammer Cemetery near Marionville. During their later years, our family was located on a farm nearby.

Grandmother's brother, Daniel Claire, and family, Aunt Maria, and son, Frank, lived only a short distance from them.

Grandfather Cox, at that time, had two brothers; Jake and Squire, living in Indiana.

THE HAIL FAMILY:

Stephen Hail, Jr., who was my mother's grandfather, moved from Virginia to Kentucky in 1806, and in the latter state, according to the court records, he owned, at one time, 1200 acres of land (probably Government grants for services during the Revolutionary War.)

My grandfather, Christopher Hail (son of Stephen Hail, Jr.) was born in 1802. He and grandmother, whose maiden name was Nellie Neale, were living near Somerset, Kentucky, when our family left the states, in 1863.

I never saw either of them thereafter, and I remember very little as to their personal appearance.

My age, at that time, was only three and one half years. Yet I can still vision their old home, and especially the two story house; and the nearby family spring, and the brook that flowed from it; in which I so often played.

Mother visited them several times, and kept in close touch with them by letter after we moved to Missouri.

Grandfather Hail had two brothers: Bill and Russell, also one sister, Cynthia; for whom my mother was named.

Grandfather Hail and Grandmother reared a large family: William Wade, Christopher Susannah, Cynthia (my mother), Amanda, and Hannah.

I now have a letter, of date October 17, 1879, written by grandfather Hail to my mother and his son-in-law, Marcellus, while we were all living in Southwest Missouri; in which he closed with the following:

> "Farewell to you, all,--children and grandchildren. This is my last letter ever to write."

Only a few months thereafter, he passed away, aged 77. Grandmother had died a few years before. Both were interred in cemetery out four miles north of Somerset.

TWO COX BROTHERS AND TWO HAIL SISTERS

My father, William Perry Cox, married Cynthia Ann Hail, and his oldest brother, Marcellus Cox, married Susannah Hail; all of whom were residents of Pulaski County, Kentucky. Both families continued to live in Kentucky till the fall of 1863, at which time, there were five children in each family. Those of our family: James Franklin aged 10, Christopher Marion, 8, Mary Margaret, 6, Henry Jefferson, 3½, and Daniel Winford, 1. In Uncle Marcellus' family, were the following: Ella, aged 12, Doc[illegible]iam), 10, Amanda, 8, Lucy, 6, and Thirza, 3½. Their mother had died three years

My father and Uncle were both farmers, and having [illegible]

Sir William Berkeley, Knight, Gov.

Act xx

Whereas there is and has been great neglect in the payment of quitt rents vpon the motion of the treasurer, for remedy thereof, Bee it enacted and declared as followeth, That the delinquents in the payment of any quit rents shall be destranyed vpon the lands by the treasurers receivers by direction and warrent from vnder his hand, And that if any will repleavy their goods, then giving good good caution, their allegations shall be heard, either at the countie courts or before the Governour and Council, And the Kings suits and debts be preferred any other, And that all courts and officers ought to be assistant therein and proceed according to the laws of England.

Hening Statutes, I, 351

At a General Assembly
Begun and Holden at

The Capitol in the city of Williamsburg, on the second day of November, in the seventh year of the reign of our sovereign Lord George the first, by the grace of God, of Great Britain, France and Ireland, King, defender of the faithetc, and in the year of our lord 1720.

Chapter ii

Every sheriff at November court yearly is to divide his county into precincts, appoint and publickly, one place in each precinct, --set the time of his appearance there before February 20th annually, To these places the people are to bring their quit rents either in current money or in tobacco at one penny per pound. If the sheriff dont do the people justice by these appointments the county courts are to direct and order others. And if the people fail the sherriff makes distress and sale for satisfaction of the quit rents, The sheriff or collector to be answerable for all quit rents, if sufficient distress can be had vpon the lands liable. To pay the sweet scented tobacco in hogsheads of seven hundred nett, and the Aranoka six hundred nett, and paid vpon demand. If the proprietor lives out of the county, the sherriff is to notify the collector of the other county. And if the proprietor lives out of the Collony, his attorney is to be notified, if none, then a notice is to be put on outside of court house, - etc, Double quit rents are levied against this property. All persons concealing any part of his land shall pay double quit rents. For better discovery of such persons, the moiety of such double quit rents is given to the person discovering the concealment.

NOTES ON THE GODBEY FAMILY

By A. H. Godbey
The name Godbey is well known from early times in England. Originally it was Goadbye, Godebye, Godesbye, the name of an ancient Danish Settlement in Leicestershire, (Barber, English Family names, p. 152) and meaning the town, village, or community of the Goad or Gode (Danish Gud, Guth) family. The first syllable is a very common element in the Danish names, (e. g. Gudrun, Gythorm, Godfrey, Godsir, Godbold, Godsal, Godloe, Godleigh, Goddard, Godwin, Godbard, Godall, Goodsli, Godkin, Godbed, etc.). The name "Goad" is commonly written "Goode" in modern times. The modernized form Godbey, Goodby, Godbye, Godsby, is found in the earliest parish records which begin in the reign of Henry VIII; yet the older form "Goadby" is still found occasionally, even in modern New York; Godsby is also still in use.

There has been no figure of permenent national note in executive, legislative or administrative work, except Co. Christopher Godbey, for many years an officer in the Bengal Army. Some of the family attained genteel rank very early and have been in minor official positions and the Godby coat of arms and crest are well known in English Heraldry. (Fairbairn, Vol. 1 p. 206; II, p. 118, fig. 44) (Book of Family Crests, Vol. II, p. 202: I, plate re, fig. 3) The crest is a chevelier in full armor, proper, with visor down. The "Edward Godby" or Godsby is found repeatedly as that of one of genteel rank. Perhaps an Edward Godbey was first to bear arms.

The Godbey family has been in London for more than 400 years, as shown by the various parish registers. Thomas and John are the prevelent baptismal masculeine names. Peter, Robert, Mark, Georges are known. James Godbey of London attained national distinction as a stipple engraver, 1790-1815; but the Dictionare of National Biography knows nothing of his antecedents. London directories show that the Godbeys are still there; some in courtly circles.

The first Godbey in America was "Thomas Godby of Blunt's Point." The Virginia census of 1624 tells us that he was then 38 years old (hence born in 1587) and that he came over in the ship Deliverance in 1605 (1608). The other members of the household are Joane Godby, aged 42, who came over in the Flying Berte in 1621, and John Curtis and Christopher Smith, aged 22 and 24 years. It is not possible to tell from this record if Joan was wife or sister of Thomas Godby; if married to him after she came to America, or if she had married in England waiting for her husband to make his fortune. He had stood by the side of Captain Smith, and had seen all of Jamestown's hardest days; had been a shareholder in the Virginia Company, and received his first dividend of land from Sir Thomas Wyatt Dec. 1, 1624. This 100 acres was at Blunt's point, a little below Kecoughtan or Elizabeth City. Hence he is spoken of as "Godby of Blunt's Point", or Kiccaughtan. In the census of Elizabeth City 1623, the names are given as "Thomas Godby" and Joan Godby.

He probably made two or three trips to England, as the laws of the time allowed a colonist 50 acres of land for each time that he crossed the Atlantic. Hence we consider that the Thomas Godbye who is shown by the records as landing in 1637 in the Isle of Wight County, just across the bay from Blunt's Point, is the same man, while the extant records of Lower Norfolk shows another Thomas Godey who landed in that county more than once a little later and had connections of a business sort in Isle of Wight County.

The will of "Thomas Godbye, Planter" of Elizabeth River in Lower Norfolk was drawn April 18, 1652 proved Feb. 15, 1653, "Anne, my Deere and loving Wife" is the sole executrix. Codicil five days before death, made legacy to wife's sister Elizabeth Beane, (George Bain was witness of will of "Allexander Rose" proved the same that Thomas Godbye' was.). But nothing further has been published relative to the Bain family in Norfolk. The tendency of neighbors to move in groups is illustrated by the Bain family appearing alongside the Godbey family in other counties, for a hundred years) signed by Thomas R. Godbye, and (?), indicating a coat or crest. It is doubtful if the "Ann" of this will is "Joane" of the Elizabeth City census.

Then the Norfolk records show us "Thomas Godbye" among 60 persons brought over by Cornelius Lloyd in 1642 and again one in three in 1647 again by Frances Empercar in 1653. (Fifty acres of land was allowed for each man or woman who crossed to America, as often as he did so). In 1655 this traveling Thomas Godby himself imports several. The will of this Thomas Godby, drawn 9-23-1671, was proved 2-21-1686. And also leaves everything to the disposal of his "wife Ann." It is impossible just now, to tell the relation of the second Thomas Godby to the first; the will of Mr. Bordas, a ship-captain, in 1667 leaves his book and instruments to Ann Godbey, wife of Thomas Godbey; she is executrix. The will of John Jacob, 1681, leaves her his chest, and also makes her executrix. Probably she was only daughter of Jacob, only grand-daughter of Burdas.

The Godbys were closely associated with the Quakers and with leading men of the colony. They got fined for attending a quaker meeting at a neighbor's. They are warmly attached to an old Quaker school teacher Richard Russell, who in his will in 1667 leaves a bequest for educating the poor, and a number of books for various friends, including Ann Godbey. Ann Godbey talked too much. She charged a neighbor with being a witch. The clear headed authorities were not going to have any Salem craze and had passed an ordinance that any one making such a charge should be fined. It cost Tom Godby a tidy little bunch of tobacca, 300 lbs., and cost.

Of the next generation, we know two. I. Cary Godby or Godbee, as the records frequently spell it, and Edward Godby. Cary Godby moved into Chowen Co., North Carolina. Records show he had children by 1700. The Cary Godby who lived in Newbern, Carteret County and was one of his Majesty's Justices, 1749-1758, must have been son of the first Cary; and the Nathaniel Godby, George Godbey, Bliss Godby, John Godby, who are active patriots in Pitt. Co., N. C. a few miles from Newbern during the Revolutionary War, are probably sons of this second Cary Godbey, while the John Godbey who is an old soldier in the N. C. Colonial Militia may be brother of this second Cary. This branch need not be traced.

II. Edward Godby or Godbee, as the old record spell it, moved in time from Lower Norfolk to Middlesex Co. The old Christ Church parish register dates back to 1653. But no Godby entries are in it until 1701, when we have "Mary, daughter of Edward Godbee and Frances his wife, born 10-13-1701, Bapt., Oct. 23, 1701. Rebecca, bapt. 6-2-17-3; John bapt., 4-1-1705."

Edward dies soon after; and Frances Godby and Thomas Cheedle are married 7-26-1708. There are no Cheedle entries; but the family remains there, for we find the marriage of Mary Godbee and Henry Tugwell, March 30, 1722, Rebecca Godbee married John Kidd, 2-21-1720. Their descendants in the Middlesex Register are many, also George Godbe (Godloe?) married Diana Minor, 1-13-1728.

Older children of Edward Godby, William? and George, may have been born before Edward came to Middlesex. These -- John, the youngest child, probably settled in Caroline County. Certain groups moved together; Godby Cunter, Farmer, Tomson are neighbors in Middlesex, again in Caroline, late in S. W. Va. The John Godby born in 1705 was probably the one who patented 400 acres of land in -- and 1734. Thomas Godby patented 1200 there in --. Probably neither resided there long. John Godby -- in the few remnants of the Carolina records, from --. His children cannot be certainly named, but he -- the same John was born 1705.

-- my great-grandfather William Godbey was born in -- County, Va., in 1781 (so sketch of Rev. Josiah --- published in Cooper Co., Mo. in 1862 declares). -- documents show his father's name was John and grand-father's was William and that he was a Revolutionary -- The almost total destruction of Caroline records -- to conjecture between John, born in Middlesex -- and settling in Caroline, and William born 1651 -- John. Boes this 76 years cover two generations or three? All probabilities favor the latter. The pioneers married early. John, father of William -- probably the grandson of John, born 1705, and was -- born after 1750. Thus the line from Thomas Godby -- Norfolk is Edward, born ?, died between 1705 and -- John, born 1705, settled in Caroline; William born 1725-30. We do not know the names of wife and other children, at present. But from old family papers we know that the oldest son of this William was also named William, that he was born in 1750, and his wife Zannah was born in 1751, (as a specimen of the early marrying habit, notice that Wm. Godbey and Zannah were married in 1768, and their oldest son, John, was born in 1769, when his father was 19 years old, and this son John himself married at 16, Naomi Bain). The second son of this first William was also named John, and is our own ancestor.

These two brothers, John and William, came to Southwest Va., probably just after the Revolution, for John, oldest son William was married in Montgomery County, in 1783 (the marriage bond to Naomi Bain is still on file). Russell and George Godbey came to Halifax County about the same time. All four were Revolutionary soldiers from Caroline County. Russell and George were pretty certainly brothers of William and John, (although they may have been cousins.). We know of three George Godbeys in Revolutionary Army; two Virginians, one N. Carolinian. There was a John

Godbey in New York before the Revolution, Probate Judge, and secretary to Sir Henry Clinton. N. Y. records show no descendants. (He may have been a Londoner.)

The descendants of the brothers William and John are now very numerous. William settled near New Berne, in the present Pulaski County, then in Montgomery, purchasing land there in 1797. He died in 1833; his will mentions his wife Zannah; sons Benjamin, Gabriel, Francis, (Marion), George, William; daughters of Sarah Cunter, Patsy Farmer, Lucy Redge, Susanna Covey. (The John who married Naomi Bain died in 1803 intestate; personal appraisement $1330.55; equal to $5,000 these days.)

The Godbey Family in America
Biographical Sketches
By John Emory Godbey

Thomas R. Godbey, born in England 1587, came to Jamestown, Va. in the ship Deliverance in 1608.

As the Colonists were required to practice military drill, the muster rolls are among the earlier historic data. These rolls, in the case of families, give staches of the families.

The muster roll of Elizabeth City, Va. for 1624 has "THOMAS GODBEY, his muster. Thomas Godbey came over in 1608 in Deliverance age 38, Joane Godbey came over in 1621 in Flying Heart Age 42, John Curtis came over in 1621 in Flying Heart age 22, Christopher Smith came over in Flying Heart age 24." It is presumed that Curtis and Smith came over with Joane and after she was married remained a time with the Godbeys. The ages were at the time of the muster.

Land Grant or Bred: The Virginia Historical Magazine Vol. 1, pg. 191 has this record: "Thomas Godbey of Kicoughtan, Elizabeth City, Yeoman, as his first dividend, 100 acres, between New Port News and Blunts Point, granted 12-1-1624. Thomas Godbey, born 1587 came to Va. in Ship Deliverance, 1608 and Joane Godbey, 42, came in Flying Hart 1621." The above record indicates that Thomas Godbey was a member of a land syndicate. His will shows that his property was in land on Elizabeth River, Lower Norfolk Co.

The will of Thomas Godbey, of Elizabeth River, Lower Norfolk Co., Va. Planter Book C. p. 76 Apr. 8th, 1652 Recorded 2-20-1653. (This is actually the second Thomas' will. Details of the first Thomas' death will be found in one of the subsequent excerpts) The estate is bequeathed to "Anne my deere and Loving wife, sole Executrix." There is a codicil date 2-10-1653. From these dates we may fix 2-15-1653 as within a few days of the date of Thomas Godbeys death. The will is certified by X, showing that Godbey was illiterate. This accounts also for the varied spelling of the name, which one finds in early official records, as Godbey, Godbye, Godbee, Godby. The name was evidently pronounced to the recorder who spelled it according to his own judgement.

There is no direct proof that any children were born to Thomas and Joan Godbey. Their names appear in a Census of the date Feb. 16, 1623, but there are no children, and none are mentioned in the will. This latter circumstance, however, is not very significant, for the wills of those times show that is was the custom, rather for a man to leave all his property to his widow.

Thomas R. Godbey died 66 years of age, and had been married 28 years. (This is incorrect due to the confusion between the first and second Thomas Godbey.)

THOMAS GODBEY II (This is actually the third Thomas Godbey)

The colony records show another Thomas Godbey, of Elizabeth River, Lower Norfolk, Co., who was as I assume, from many evidences, the son of Thomas R. being of proper age for a son, and evidently connected with the emigrant of 1608, as indicated by his home and property. This is the record of his will. His wife also is named Ann. "Will-Thomas Godbey of Elizabeth River, 9-28-1671, recorded 2-21-1686. "Unto Ann, my deare and loving wife all my lands and tennyments, which I now possess at the head of a branch that comes out of the sothern branch of Elizabeth River, in the County of Lower Norfolk, Va." Witness Francis Sayer, Richard Whittle."

The above dates show that this will was made and signed 9-28-1671, and was put on record 2-21-1686 which latter date we may accept as about the date of the death of Thomas Godbey, the son of Thomas R.

Of the doings of this second Thomas Godbey we find scant record. He was a land holder, and tobacco raiser, and the fact that a friend bequeathed to him a distillery suggestive.

But Tom's wife, Ann made herself interesting to the Colonists. She was fined for attending a Quaker meeting at the house of Richard Russell and Tom paid the fine with 200 pounds of tobacco. This was in 1663.

William and Mary Quarterly Vol. 1-p. 59. The bound volumes of a paper published by the students of William and Mary College, in the Carnage Library St. Louius, in an article on Witchcraft tells us that Ann Godbey, wife of Thomas Godbey, was hailed before the court and fined for calling Nick Robinson's wife a witch. Again her husband paid the fine with 200 pounds of tobacco. The evidence that Ann Godbey was an -- woman, and a person of mark in her community is found in a number of wills in which she is named as executrix. Richard Russel the Quaker, leaves her books, William Bordas, in his will bequeaths "my books and instruments of navigation to Ann Godbey, wife of Thomas Godbey." He directs that Ann Godbey or John Porter shall execute his will; evidently Ann Godbey if living. This will was put to record 10-15-1667. Our dates will show that Ann Godbey lived many years after this date. John Jacobs of Elizabeth River whose will was recorded 5-12-1681, left "to Ann Godbey my chest all that it contains in it," and he makes Ann Godbey sole executrix of his will.

The will of Bordas, and the will of Jacobs, the peculiar character of the bequests which they make to Ann Godbey, and the fact that she is executrix of each, sets us guessing that Ann was the daughter of one of these men. Our guess is that she was the daughter of Bordas for why should he leave her his books and instruments of navigation but as an heirloom?

New England History and General Register has this entry: Cornelius Lloyd hath due three thousand acres for farms, of persons whose names are underwritten,". Thomas Godbey is the 43rd name in this list. The date 12-15-1642. It is probable this record refers to the first Thomas Godbey. The records of the Virginia Land Office show the entry of land by Thomas Godbey in 1653 in Lower Norfolk Co.

BREAK IN THE HISTORY

Reckoning the death of the 2nd (3rd) Thomas Godbey as occurring in 1686, whose will mentions no children, (as we have noted was common in the will of the times) we cannot, for lack of names trace the family line. We have a lot of fragments which might be put together, if official records were more thoroughly searched. I can only preserve the fragments, watchful for links which will unite them.

Fragments: The Register of Christ Chuch Middlesex Co., Va. contains this record: "Edward and Frances Godbee" (The index has it Godbey) have their children christened: Mary born 10-10 baptized 10-27, 1701. Rebecca Baptized 5-2-1703, John Baptized 4-2-1705. In the same Register I find marriage of Thomas (Sir name indistinct) and Frances Godbey and that this note, which I pick up in the St. Louis Library points to other records in Middlesex Co., which would if I could obtain them, connect the chain. I suspect however that the most valuable records were those of Caroline Co. which were burned in the Civil War. My grandfather was born in Caroline during the revolution, his father being in the army.

GODBEY'S BLUFF: An article in Harper's monthly Vol. IV Dec. 1857 describes a bluff on New River, VA., named for the Godbey settlement on the bottom lands opposite. The article states, "The Godbeys grandfather, father and son have lived here for the but end of a century." The river makes the boundary between Pulaski and Montgomery counties. The place is about three miles from Newbern. The Godbey settlement was on the bottom lands in Montgomery County opposite the bluff.

Influenced by the magazine article I addressed a letter to the postmaster at Newbern to give me the name of some one best acquainted with the Godbeys. He gave me the name of F. M. Farmer. I wrote him in 1905 and he answered with this statement. "Godbey's Bluff or Looking Glass - so called from a great pannel in the Cliff is on the opposite side of the river from the farms. My grandfather, Francis Marion Godbey was born and died on the place. His brother Ben, inherited a place joining in. That place was sold sixty years ago. The old home, from what I can learn, has been in possession of the Godbeys for 150 to 200 years. The last heirs sold out in 1900. The county owns the place now as a poor farm."

From such data the time of the Godbey settlement on New River can only be approximately guessed. It was some time before the revolutionary war. The picture of the first house has been furnished me. It was built with beams set upright with portholes, like a stockade. This was for the defense against indians.

It is interesting to know that the Godbeys were in America 124 before the birth of George Washington.

FAMILY OF WILLIAM GODBEY, MONTGOMERY CO., VA

Through the aid of Mr. Farmer, and my nephew Dr. A. H. Godbey, now professor in Duke University, I secure the following record of the family of William Godbey, who it appears, was the first settler at the Bluff on New River, Montgomery Co., Va. and hence known as Godbey's Bluff. William Godbey born in Hallifax Co., Va., 9-28-1750, Zanna his wife born in Hallifax Co., Va. 11-10-1751. Their children: John born 3-30-1769 married Nannie Bane 12-10-1785, Patty born 12-10-1773 married Townsend Farmer 1792, William born 6-6-1775 married Nancy Dickerson, Gabriel born 11-15-1778 moved to Casey Co., Ky., Lucy born 3-13-1783 married Mr. James Hedge, Francis Marion, born 6-24-1784 married Roda Whitt, Sarah born 2-9-1789 married John Gunter, George born 2-28-1791 married Nancy Elswick, Susanna born 6-1-1793 married Sam Covey, Benjamin born 6-7-1798 married Nancy x x.

Resin Vermillion Godbey reported to me in 1906 that his grandfather William owned several farms at the Bluff. Besides the home place he had the horse shoe farm, the Pocket Farm and others.

The will of William Godbey is dated 10-28-1829 proved 1-1833. The records show that the property was appraised at $4679.55 and was sold at $5008.00 and the children shared alike, except Benjamin whose property was held in trust to go to his children at his death, he having life use of it.

I have not been able to trace out all the branches of the family of William Godbey of Montgomery Co., Va. Here are some notes: John of the family of John, the eldest son, I have no record, official entries show that he remained at the Bluff. William born at the Bluff, 6-6-1775, married Nancy Dickerson of Montgomery Co., and in 1800 removed to Logan Co. (Now in West Va. in which section many of his descendents still remain. Chapmanville is the P. O. address of several.)

The names of Williams children were: Polly born 4-6-1799, Russell 12-2-1800, John 8-3-1802, Wm. F. 6-11-1805, Obed 6-22-1807, Letitis 6-20-1810, Eliza 12-2-1814, Nancy 6-17-1818.

My last correspondence with this group was with John H. Vickers of Chapmanville. He said the family was noted for its old people. He says the entire list given above lived to be very old.

Russell-named in the list, left Logan Co. and settled at Curtis, Ills. in 1830. An article in the Petersburg, Ill. Democrat, celebrating Russells' 88th birthday says, "His land at Curtis was surveyed by Abraham Lincoln, for which service "old Abe" received in payment two buckskins, tanned by Mr. Godbeys own hands. Mr. Lincoln utilized them to add to the serviceableness of his pantaloons."

Gabriel the third son of William of Montgomery moved to Casey Co., Ky. I doubt if I have full record of his family. His sons were: John a Baptist preacher, Timothy, also a preacher whose home was at Waynesville, Ky. He was born 1813, David of whom I have only the name. John the Baptist moved to Missouri in 1848 and settled at Cherry Valley, Crawford Co., He had a son William, born 1-17-1834, also Grabriel T. who died in 1865. George R. was a son of William, born 1850. He moved from Crawford Co. to St. Louis.

John W. (or Jr.) son of Gabriel T. was born 1864. He lives at Sligo, Mo. As Descendants of Rev.

Timothy Godbey of Waynesville, Ky. I have his son J. C. and grandson J. F. who is my informant, resident at Joyce, Ky. He has only furnished me intials and no dates.

George 5th son of William of Montgomery, born 2-28-1791 has left us a tolerably definite history. He was converted when 19 years old and joined the Methodist Church 7-9-1810. He was licesnsed to preach 9-1828, ordained a deacon by Bishop Emory at Winchester Va. in 1835, and elder by Bishop Morris at Cincinnati, Ohio in 1840. He removed to Tenn. and mad his home at Cleveland where he died, 8-11-1875, being 84 years of age. He was never member of a confrence but was an earnest and efficient preacher. His children were Rev. Crockett Godbey, a member of the Tenn. Confrence, Jackson, Mariah, Julia, Rachel. These children were born at the Bluff. Jackson settled at Jacksonville, Va. where he spent his life. He served as Clerk of the Court, lived to be old and reared a large family. I was entertained by his son Walter at our general conference in Memphis 1894. Walter afterward went to California. Rev. Crocket Godbey's children were Rev. Crocket C. a member of the Alabama Conference, and E. W. a lawyer of Decatur, Alabama. E. W.'s only child was Gladys.

Crockett C.'s children were: Eva born 1900, Edgar 1902, Luther 1904, Charline 1906, James McCoy and John C. Kilgore twins born 1912.

Jackson Godby's children born at Jacksonville, Va. were Nannie Pick, Alice Lee, Josephine Gay, Walter Henry, with whom I lodged at Memphis. Julia Ann married Rice Montague and they now live at Portland, Oregon.

Francis Marion, son of William Godbey of Montgomery Co., Va. His children were: William, Archibald, John, Resin V., Susan married a Briggs, Hannah married Ike Carpenter, Amanda married James Rankin, Rhoda married Andrew Miller, Mary married John Lenkhouse, Rachel married James B. Farmer.

I have not the order of birth or the dates for the above list of names. But I am of opinion that we have here a most remarkable record of longevity. F. M. Farmer, the son of Rachel, in the above list wrote me in 1906 that all this list had passed 80 years. Four were still living all past 80, six had died all past 84. The father Francis Marion, died at 86, the mother at 94. F. M. Farmer who gave me this information was living in the old home neighborhood at Godbey's Bluff. About 1915, and after his death, I took up the case with his daughter, who assured me her father's statement was correct. All the persons were dead at that time, but she could not give dates. I doubt if any else can be found to equal; father 86, mother 94 and ten children all passing 80 years of age at time of death.

With these notes I close the sketch of that branch of the Godbey family descended from William of Godbey's Bluff, New River, Montgomery Co., Va. One who would investigate the official records must seek them chiefly in Pulaski Co., for Montgomery, though presently the home of the Godbeys was in Pulaski until 1839. I have a good deal of matter from Christiansburg, Pulaski representing will and deeds recorded there which are not included in the sketch here given. The article about Russell Godbey of Ill. in the Petersburg, Ill. Democrat states that his grandfather William of Montgomery was a soldier of the Revolution.

FAMILY OF JOHN GODBEY 1752, Godbey's Bluff, New River, Va.: William Godbey whose descendants I have sketched had a brother John. This John Godbey was also a revolutionary soldier, so stated by John Monroe Godbey who had it from the statement of William Godbey or Casey Co., Ky. the son of John whom we are considering. As his brother William was born in Halifax Co., Va.

1750 we assume that John was born there in 1752. After serving in the Revolutionary War it seems that John Godbey started to Kentucky. He had at the time a wife and three children. His wife falling sick he stopped in Greenbriar Co., now in W. Va. When his wife died this caused him to abandon his purpose. He remained in Greenbriar, married again and there spent his days. His children were: By his first wife: John came to Ky., Wm. Also, and Fannie. By his second wife: George, Joseph, Sallie. George I understand never married. He went to Tenn. Sallie never married, she lived with her brother William in Casey Co. and died 2-6-1856. John came to Kentucky and settled in Pumkin Hollow on the Cumberland River. He had a son Josiah, who was killed under the harrow, while harrowing his field. He also had a son John but I know little of this branch of the family. William Godbey, son of John of Greenbriar, being my grandfather, I have given attention especially to his immediate line.

WILLIAM GODBEY who came from Virginia to Ky. 1804. I observed that the obituary of Wm. Godbey of Casey Co., Ky. stated that he was born in Caroline Co., Va. 6-18-1781. This was during the War of the Revolution and I understand the father John, who was my great-grandfather, was in the army at the time of William's birth. An unsettled question is whether said John Godbey had his home at the time in Caroline or at the Bluff in Montgomery Co., Va. on New River. (It must be noted that Montgomery County really was not then in existance, as it was formed of a division of Pulaski in 1839. The official records of the Godbeys, deeds, wills, and marriages, are chiefly found at Chritiansburg, the county seat of Pulaski). Those records name many Godbeys not mentioned in my sketch of William of Montgomery.)

Monroe Godbey of Bethelridge Casey Co., Ky. says John Godbey lived on New River and left there to go to Kentucky. Wm. Godbey came from Greenbriar Co., Va. to Kentucky about 1804. He reached Pumpkin Hollow on the Cumberland River with one dollar, a wife and three children. (I think Pumpkin Hollow was in Pulaski Co.) After some years he pruchased a farm four or five miles east of Somerset in Pulaski Co. where he lived until 1831, when he removed to Casey Co. and remained there (at Bethelridge) til his death 4-2-1876 being 95 yrs. old. Wm. Godbey's first wife was Sarah Smith, she was the mother of all his children and died 9-15-1836. Mr. Godbey then married Martha Curl who survived him eight years. The family record is on the following page.

WILLIAM GODBEY'S FAMILY RECORD: William Godbey b. 1-18-1781 d. 4-2-1876, wife Sarah Smith b. 3-10-1783 d. 9-15-1836, 2nd wife Martha Curl b. 3-22-1793 d. 1-15-1884. John Godbey, son of William of Casey, moved to Missouri in 1865 and settled at Smithton, Petis Co. and was killed by lightning aged 84. His children were William Buck, a Methodist Preacher and noted evangelist and writer, died 88, Josiah P. a Methodist Preacher now ('26) is superannuate, resident, Fayette, Mo. Sallie married John Pierce, Smithton, Mo., Martin deceased, died at Smithton, John K. deceased. He was a Baptist Preacher died at Smithton.

Jacob Cox Godbey, son of William of Pulaski spent his life near the old home. His children were Thomas Jefferson, a Methodist Preacher of the Ky. Conference, now deceased, Ephraim-Hustonville, Ky., Elizabeth - married Robt. Moore, Caroline, Matilda - deceased, William - lived at Humphrey, Ky., Fanny Reece's children so far as I knew them were: John, Sam, Shelton, Sallie, Baber and Lizzie. There were others no doubt. John came with Josiah Godbey to Missouri in 1852 married and settled in Monitor Co. Nancy Deboard. I know nothing of this branch. Ibba Haynes moved to Pettis Co., Mo. Had but one child Sarah who married Robert McFarland. Matilda Gastaneau I know nothing, Sallie Cundiff I know nothing, Wm. son of William, I know nothing, Harrison died early leaving an only son Monroe brought up by his Grandfather. His son Perry, I met in 1905.

Joshua, son of William of Casey born 12-5-1815 died 2-12-1905 age 91. His children were John born 8-11-1838, Josiah, Nimrod, William, James, Alexander, Jeremiah, Perry, Susy, Josephus, Joseph, Ibby, Eli, Timothy. I do not think this is a full list or that the names are in order of birth. Joshua, the father, John, Josiah, James, Eli, Timothy were all Methodist Preachers. Of the sons of Josiah I record L. A. Dante, Va., George, Tipton, Ind., Josiah Jerngan President of School at Arlington, Tex., Cisco ?, Ardmore, Okl.

JOSHIAH GODBEY'S FAMILY: Josiah, son William Godbey of Casey Co., Ky. born 6-30-1817 died 4-20-1890, aged 73 years married Sena Kelly born 5-25-1818 - 10-27-1836. Their children were: William Clinton born 9-15-1837, John Emory 8-11-1837, Martha Jane 6-16-1842, Milton April or Sept. 10, 1845, Sarah Hellen 11-13-1847, Samuel McGinnis 8-3-1850. In 1852 they moved to Missouri. Josiah 6-26-1853, Nancy Margaret 10-10-1856, Thomas Kelly 2-16-1858, Alice 5-26-1863. Alice had infantile paralysis and was the first to go away. She died at the age of 26. Josiah was next. He graduated from Central College, Fayette Mo., was licensed to preach, joined the Conference. Married Annie Priest of Pettis Co. was transferred to Texas and died of tuburculosis at Monterey, Mexico, aged 30 years. Milton was a Physician. He married Roberta Simpson, practiced medicine there and died at the age of 50. Nancy Margaret married Nathanniel Gower of Pettis Co., Mo. had three daughters and died of Tuburculosis at the age of 34. Samuel McGinnis graduated at Central College, Fayette Mo. Was licensed to preach, served various charges in Missouri, transferred to California, edited Pacific Methodist, returned to Mo., transferred to Ark. taught Prarie Grove Academy, Located to Texas, President Cappell Hill Female College, returned to S. W. Mo. Conference, made associate Editor Christian Advocate Nashville, Professor in Hendrix College. Moved to Fla. and died at Waldo, Fla. 69 years of age. His children one son and two daughters graduated at Vanderbilt. His son Robert was a drill officer in the World War. His daughter Lena translator of War orders into French and German and out of these languages into English in War Office Washington, D. C. Lois was domestic science demonstrator in which she is still engaged. The widow and two daughters live at Barton, Florida. William C. was a preacher and college President and he died in Chicago at the age of 79. Martha Jane married Gerrase Smith, a Methodist Preacher who died many years. Martha died aged 83. Sarah Hellen married David Shy of Pettis Co., They reared a large family, two sons and five daughters. Both sons Physicians. One died last year the other Dr. Milton Shy is in Sedaria or Sedana where his mother is still living.

Thomas K. married in Cooper Co., Mo. and went to Waldo, Fla. where he has prospered as a horticulturalist and is called the Burbank of Fla.

A matter to note is that of the six sons of Josiah Godbey only William the eldest leave a child to perpetuate the Godbey name. Williams sons are Allen H. Prof. of Semetics in Duke University, Durham, N. C., Victor A. Presiding Elder of Marshall District E. Texas Conference. Prof. Ernest Godbey principal Public School Houston, Texas. Walter A. Principal of Shepherd School St. Louis. J. ?. Godbey - my first wife and four children. I leave now to perpetuate the Godbey name. I was married to my second wife in 1911. We are in good health and comfortable circumstance and would be delighted to have a visit from Josiah Jernigan Godbey.

COLONIAL SURRY - Surry People Before the Council and General Court - page 81

Death of Thomas Godby

Benefit of Clergy Claimed

In March 1628 in Virginia, a person found guilty of manslaughter escaped death because he could read and write. The persons concerned in the case are not Surry people but it is thought this incident may be of general interest.

One William Bentley, who patented land in Elizabeth City in 1624 (C.P.), 50 - was brought before the General Court on a charge of manslaughter. The first witness was Richard Rich, age 25, who testified "that on the 8th day of February last, Thomas Godby, the deceased, was at the house of William Parker at Merry Point, and that he, the deponent, and divers others, drank between them five pints of burnt claret wine, that Thomas Godby consumed about four cups of the same. At which time William Bentley, who had just come ashore in a boat came into the house and asked if it were not their orders when they heard men call to come and help them out of a boat, Whereupon Godby answered "do you think we have nothing to do but to fetch you out of the water,"  Bentley replied "hold your peace" and Godby called Bentley a rascal and a rogue and Bentley did the like to him. Thereupon the said Bentley, sitting upon the bench on the left side of Godby, struck him from the bench and presently rose up and gave him a kick as he lay upon the ground.  Godby could not sit up but tumbled down crying out, "Oh bentley, thou has kelled me", and also said of him "I am cruelly foxed."  And in the morning Godby was found dead in the said house."

William Bentley had pleaded "not guilty" and had asked for a jury trial (Put himself upon the Country). A jury of 12 men of whom one was Francis Fowler of Surry, "found the said Bentley guilty of manslaughter and he being asked what he had to say for himself that he ought not to die demanded his clergy whereupon he was discharged to the Ordinaray."

Before the ordinary in a church court Bentley would be required to plead not guilty and to produce witnessess who would state that they believed the defendant's oath. Nothing as to the fate of Bentley is shown but he probably escaped further punishment as no witnessess were heard against a prisoner in a church court and he was usually purged of the charge and set free.

Thus it seems the English doctrine of the Benefit of Clergy became a part of the Virginia laws.

In England, when a prisoner claimed benefit of clergy, the text usually selected by the Court for him to read was the first verse of the 51st Psalm beginning "Miserere mei deus", "Lord have pity on me".

GODBEY - GODBY

THIS BOOK IS DEDICATED TO THE MANY INTERESTING PEOPLE OF THE GODBEY-GODBY FAMILY - LIVING & DEAD

John Buckles Sr. has been recorded as saying: "How little attention we who are in the land of living pay to the claims of posterity is too often made apparent when for any reason we seek to learn an important name or date, only to be met by an absolute lack of reliable information. To set down in black and white a few facts for our children's future reference occupies but a little time and the writer conceives it his duty as well as pleasure to put this short article where it may be preserved by those to whom it is of interest."

PREFACE

Have gathered information from many sources, Libraries, Cemeteries, and Relatives, and want to especially thank: Daisey Godby of Science Hill, Ky, Duke Godbey of Danville, Ky., Edgar Godbey of Evansville, Indiana, Rev. James M. Godbey of Boaz, Alabama, Virginia Godbey of Springfield, Ills., W. F. Hilton of Salem, Indiana, Joyce Kinder of Peoria, Ills., Sadie Sweet of Bethelridge, Ky. and my husband John for his cooperation.

Some of the information has been handed down through the generations and as in all geneology there is some information that is contradictive. I have tried very hard to get the right information but sometimes it is impossible to determine which is right, so I put both.

This book is in groups who are related and John's group and William's group - sons of William are seperate but related. The relative of the Godby blood line is always listed first in the parents although some are related to the Godby line through both parents. Each female that has been married will be listed under married name.

It has been said that the Godbeys are related to Abraham Lincoln and that George Washington's grandaughter married a Godbey, and that one Godbey was a King's Magistrate at New Bery, N. C. away back yonder. It has also been said that there is a sum of money left in England for the Godbeys but that it would cost considerable to get it. If anyone wants to look into this, I suggest you look in the place the first Thomas Godbey was from.

I believe all people in the U.S. by the name of Godby and Godbey are descendants of Thomas I.

I recently received the following in a letter: "Since I can remember, there has been a legend in our family that we, (our family on my Grandmother the Godbey Kelly side) are related by blood to Jesse James.

It is said that he once visited the family at Science Hill, Ky. with the intent of robbing a bank in Somerset, but left after his scouts reported the "law was laying in on them" when actually there was a foxhunters convention in town and his presence in the area was not known. To this day there is a sign there proclaiming "Jesse James Slept Here!"

I also recently received word from The Genealogical Society of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints of Salt Lake City, Utah that their file contains 63,915 Surname entries on the Godbey family for Casey & Pulaski County, Ky. and is growing rapidly.

NOTES ON THE GODBEY FAMILY

By A. H. Godbey

The name Godbey is well known from early times in England. Originally it was Goadbye, Godebye, Godesbye, the name of an ancient Danish Settlement in Leicestershire, (Barber, English Family names, p. 152) and meaning the town, village, or community of the Goad or Gode (Danish Gud, Guth) family. The first syllable is a very common element in the Danish names, (e.g. Gudrun, Gythorm, Godfrey, Godair, Godbold, Godsal, Godloe, Godleigh, Goddard, Godwin, Godbard, Godall, Goodall, Godkin, Godbed, etc.) The name "Goad" is commonly written "Goode" in modern times. The modernized form Godbey, Goodby, Godbye, Godsby, is found in the earlies parish records which begin in the reign of Henry VIII; yet the older form "Goadby" is still found occasionally, even in modern New York; Godsby is also still in use.

There has been no figure of permanent national note in executive, legislative or administrative work, except Co. Christopher Godbey, for many years an officer in the Bengal Army. Some of the family attained genteel rank very early and have been in minor official positions and the Godby coat of arms and crest are well known in English Heraldry. (Fairbairn, Vol. 1 p. 206;; II, p. 118, fig 44) (Book of Family Crests, Vol. II p. 202: I, plate re, fig. 3) The crest is a chevalier in full armor, proper, with visor down. The "Edward Godby" or Godsby is found repeatedly as that of one of genteel rank. Perhaps an Edward Godbey was first to bear arms.

The Godbey family has been in London for more than 400 years, as shown by the various parish registers. Thomas and John are the prevalent baptismal masculsine names. Peter, Robert, Mark, Georges are known. James Godbey of London attained national distinction as a stipple engraver, 1790-1815; but the Dictionare of National Biography knows nothing of his antecedents. London directories show that the Godbeys are still there; some in courtly circles.

The first Godbey in America was "Thomas Godby of Blunt's Point". The Virginia census of 1624 tells us that he was then 38 years old (hence born in 1587) and that he came over in the ship Deliverance in 1605. The other members of the household are Joane Godby, aged 42, who came over in the Flying Berte in 1621, and John Curtis and Christopher Smith, aged 22 and 24 years. It is not possible to tell from this record if Joan was wife or sister of Thomas Godby; if married to him after she came to America, or if she had married in England waiting for her husband to make his fortune. He had stood by the side of Captain Smith, and had seen all of Jamestown's hardest days; had been a shareholder in the Virginia Company, and received his first dividend of land from Sir Thomas Wyatt Dec. 1, 1624. This 100 acres was at Blunt's point, a little below Kecoughtan or Elizabeth City. Hence he is spoken of as "Godby of Blunt's Point", or Kiccaoughtan. In the census of Elizabeth City 1623, the names are given as "Thomas Godby" and Joan Godby.

He probably made two or three trips to England, as the laws of the time allowed a colonist 50 acres of land for each time that he crossed the Atlantic. Hence we consider that the Thomas Godbye who is shown by the records as landing in 1637 in the Isle of Wight County, just across the Bay from Blunt's Point, is the same man, while the extant records of Lower Norfolk shows another Thomas Godby who landed in that county more than once a little later and had connections of a business sort in Isle of Wight County.

The will of "Thomas Godbye, Planter" of elizabeth River in Lower Norfolk, was drawn April 16, 1652 proved Feb. 15, 1653, "Anne, my Deere and loving Wife" is the sole executrix. Codicil five days before death, made legacy to wife's sister Elizabeth Beene, (George Bain was witness of will of "Allexander Rose" proved the same that Thomas Godbye' was.) But nothing further has been published relative to the Bain family in Norfolk. The tendency of neighbors to move in groups is illustrated by the Bain family appearing alongside the Godbey family in other counties, for a hundred years) signed by Thomas R. Godbye, and sealed, indicating a coat or crest. It is doubtful if the "Ann" of this will is "Joane" of the Elizabeth city census.

Then the Norfolk records show us "Thomas Godbye" among 60 persons brought over by Cornelius Lloyd in 1642 and again one in three in 1647, again by Frances Empercer in 1653. (Fifty acres of land was allowed for each man or woman who crossed to America, as often as he did so). In 1665 this traveling Thomas Godby himself imports several. The will of this Thomas Godby, drawn 9-23-1671, was proved 2-21-1686. And also leaves everything to the disposal of his "wife Ann". It is impossible just now, to tell the relation of the second Thomas Godby to the first; the will of Mr. Bordas, a ship-captain, in 1667 leaves his book and instruments to Ann Godbey, wife of Thomas Godbey; she is executrix. The will of John Jacob, 1681, leaves her his chest, and also makes her executrix. Probably she was only daughter of Jacob, only granddaughter of Burdas.

The Godbys were closely associated with the Quakers and with leading men of the colony. They got fined for attending a quaker meeting at a neighbor's. They are warmly attached to an old Quaker school teacher Richard Russell, who in his will in 1667 leaves a bequest for educating the poor, and a number of books to various friends, including Ann Godbey. Ann Godbey talked too much. She charged a neighbor, wife of Nick Robinson, 1659, with being a witch. The clear headed authorities were not going to have any Salem craze and had passed an ordinance that any one making such a charge should be fined. It cost Tom Godby a tidy little bunch of tobacco, 300 lbs., and cost.

Of the next generation, we know two. I. Cary Godby or Godbee, as the records frequently spell it, and Edward Godby. Cary Godby moved into Chowan Co., North Carolina. Records show he had children by 1700. The Cary Godby who lived in Newbern, Carteret County, and was one of his Majesty's Justices 1749-1758, must have been son of the first Cary; and the Nathaniel Godby, George Godbey, Bliss Godby, John Godby, who are active patriots in Pitt Co., N. C. a few miles from Newbern during the Revolutionary War, are probably sons of this second Cary Godbey; while the John Godbey who is a soldier in the N. C. Colonial Militia in 1754 may be brother of this sedond Cary. This branch need not be traced.

II. Edward Godby or Godbee, as the old record variously spell it, moved in time from Lower Norfolk to middlesex Co. The old Christ Church parish register reaches back to 1653. But no Godby entries are in it till 1701, when we have "Mary, daughter of Edward Godbee and Frances his wife, born 10-13-1701, Bapt., Oct. 23, 1701". Rebecca, bapt. 6-2-17-3; John bapt., 4-1-1705. Edward dies soon after; and Frances Godby and Thomas Cheedle are married 7-26-1708. There are no Cheedle births; but the family remains there, for we find the marriage of Mary Godbee and Henry Tugwell, March 30, 1722, and Rebecca Godbee married John Kidd, 2-21-1720. Their descendants in the Middlesex Register are many, also George Godbe (Godloe?) married Diana Minor, 1-13-1728.

Older children of Edward Godby, William? and George, must have been born before Edward came to Middlesex. These with John, the youngest child, probably settled in Caroline Co., Va. Certain groups moved together; Godby, Cunter, Bain, Farmer, Tomson are neighbors in Middlesex, again in Carolina, late in S. W. Va. The John Godby born in 1705 is probably the one who patented 400 acres of land in Goochland in 1734. Thomas Godby patented 1200 there in 1732. Probably neither resided there long. John Godby appears in the few remnants of the Carolina records, from 1760-64. His children cannot be certainly named, but he may be the same John was born 1705.

But my great-grandfather William Godbey was born in Caroline County, Va., in 1781 (so sketch of Rev. Josiah Godbey published in Cooper Co., Mo. in 1862 declares). Old family documents show his father's name was John and grandfather's was William and that he was a Revolutionary soldier. The almost total destruction of Carolina records leaves us to conjecture between John, born in Middlesex in 1705 and settling in Carolina, and William born 1651 son of a John. Does this 76 years cover two generations only? or three? All probabilities favor the latter. The rough pioneers married early. John, father of William 1781 is probably the grandson of John, born 1705, and was himself born after 1730. Thus the line from Thomas Godby of Lower Norfolk is Edward, born ? died between 1705 and 1717; John, born 1705, settled in Carolina; William born 1725-30. We do not know the names of wife and other children, at present. But from old family papers we know that the oldest son of this William was also named William, that he was born in 1750, and his wife Zannah was born 1751, (as a specimen of the early marrying habit, notice that Wm. Godbey and Zannah were married in 1768, and their oldest son, John, was born in 1769, when his father was 19 years old, and this son John himself married at 16, Naomi Bain). The second son of this first William was also named John, and is our own ancestor.

These two brothers, John and William, came to Southwest Va., probably just after the Revolution, for John, oldest son of William was married in Montgomery County, in 1783 (the marriage bond to Naomi Bain is still on file). Russell and George Godbey came to Halifax County about the same time. All four were Revolutionary soldiers from Carolina County. Russell and George were pretty certainly brothers of William and John, (although they may have been cousins). We know of three George Godbeys in Revolutionary Army; two Virginians, one N. Carolinian. There was a John Godbey in New York before the Revolution, Probate Judge, and secretary to Sir Henry Clinton. N. Y. records show no descendents. (He may have been a Londoner.)

The descendents of the brothers William and John are now very numerous. William settled near New Berne, in the present Fulask County, then in Montgomery, purchasing land there in 1797. He died in 1833; his will mentions his wife Zannah; sons Benjamin, Gabriel, Francis, (Marion), George, William; daughters of Sarah Cunter, Patsey Farmer, Lucy Redge, Susanna Covey. (The John who married Naomi Bain died in 1803 intestate; personal appraisement $1330.55; equal to $5,00 these days.)

The older brother, John, settled for a time, it seems, in Botetourt. With his wife and three children, William, John, and Fannie he started to Kentucky through West Va., then known as the Greenbrier District. His wife died; he stopped in Greenbrier for a time, married a second time, and had three younger children, George, Joseph & Sallie, the first and last died unmarried, at advanced ages. (One family legend has it that William, the older brother of Montgomery, also started with John and others to Kentucky. That the emigrants were attacked by Indians and some killed--therupon William turned back and settled in Montgomery).

John's oldest son, William was our great grandfather. He was born in 1781; records say in Carolina County; though one paper claims his father had come to S. W. Virginia earlier. William married Sarah Smith in Virginia, and came when quite young to Pulaski County, Ky. Their children were John, who married Orpha Kelly; Jacob married _____, Fannie married James Reese, Nancy married Edward Deboard, Ibby married Eli Haynes, Matilda married _____ Cascenean; Sarah married _____Regan; William Henry Harrison married _____: Josiah L. died in infancy; Josiah and Josephine, twins; melisea married Miles Wesley. Three sons were Methodist Preachers.

Josiah, our grandfather, was born June 30, 1817. He married Sene Kelley 10-27-1836. He joined the Methodist Church 9-7-1833, was licensed to exhort in 1840, and to preach in 1841. He travelled five years in Kentucky, superannuated, moved to Cooper County, Mo. in 1852. reentered Conference 1853, travelling 23 years, then superannuating; died April 20, 1890.

The Godbey family is now numerous in West Virginia, and Kentucky, and is found in the directories of the larger cities of the West and South, from Florida to Portland. The family clings to the farm, or takes to preaching and teaching. W. H. Godbey of Evansville, Indiana, tells me that a Rev. Alex Godbey, near him, has compiled a list of 87 Methodist preachers of the name. The names in city directories are chiefly those of employes The recent election return Martin V. Godbey as elected to Congress from West Virginia. A John Godbey was once in Kentucky Legislature, from Nelson County. Andrew Jackson Godbey was long clerk and sheriff of Floyd County, Va. But politics is not a controlling interest of the clan.

Pages 729 & 730

There are various possible derivations of this surname. It may have been derived from the older name Godbid, which was derived from the Ango-Saxon word, biddian, meaning to pray. It has also been suggested that it is a corruption of Godbert, a personal name, which was also used in the 13th century as a surname. Another suggestion is that it may have sprung from the name Gotobed, Old German, Gott-bet, "Pray to God." This is the conjecture given in Talbot's "English Entymology," but we may as well perhaps take this name literally and assume that it was given as a sobriquet to people more than ordinarily attached to the couch. A similar collocation of words forming a surname occurs in the Hundred Rolls of England, viz., Lerio Go-to-Kirke, which was borne by one of the cotters of the hundred of Treppelow, county Canbridge, in the time of Edward I., most probably an allusion to his attention to his public devotions. The name Godbey may in some cases have been derived from Goodbody, meaning a portly person, like the French Beau-corps, or from a mediaeval oath, "By God's Body". The orthography in the Hundred Rolls is Godbodi, which rather confirms the latter derivation. On the other hand, the name Godbey may be an anglicized form of some name like it in some other language than English. The name is by no means common in England, and is little known in America. Burke's Armory gives only one family of the name as having the right to bear arms. The Armorial bearings of this family are thus heraldically described: Sable, a chevron argent between three men's head proper. Crest: A tree. This is stated to be from the seal of Hugh de Gondeby, of County Sussex, in the time of Henry IV of England.

(I) William Godbey was of English ancestry, and was in the revolutionary War. He received a note in recognition of his services in the war, which Mr. Errett P. Godbey, his great-grandson, has in his possession today. The note had a value of thirty pounds, or one hundred dollars, and was dated 1779, and was signed by Grant Smith, H. Randolph and J. Hopkins. The note reads as follows: "One hundred Spanish milled dollars, or the value thereof, in Gold or Silver, to be given in exchange for this Bill at the treasury of Virginia, pursuant to an Act of Assembly, passed may 3, 1779."

(II) Francis B., son of William Godbey, was a farmer, and resided in Pulaski County, Virginia. He died at the age of about 87.

(III) Rezin V., son of Francis B. Godbey, was born in Pulaski Co., Va., 6-22-1822 and was an abolitionist preacher of the Christian Church. He was a farmer, and was a man of very large frame, and on that account was not recruited for service in the Civil War. He married Catherine E., daughter of John Miller, who was a farmer of Craig County.

(IV) Errett P., son of Rezin V. and Catherine E. (Miller) Godbey, was born in Pulaski County, Va. 12-15-1857. He received his preliminary education in the common schools, but is a self-educated and self-made man. He spent three years in teaching school, and at the age of 21 commenced life on his own account, being from that age self-supporting. He has since fought the battle of life independently, having nothing to commence with but his own will-power and energy, combined with his uprightness and ability. In 1890 he took a position as clerk in a store with H. M. Nash, and after two years bought him out. From that time he has been in business for himself. He had reverses at one time, but he has slowly recovered and is now very comfortably situated. He was elected a justice of the peace in Bluefield in 1908, and still holds that position. He was mayor of Bluefield for one term, and was police judge for two years. He was employed for one year in the post office in Bluefield. He is a Republican in politics, and a member of the Christian church. He belongs, among other societies, to the Improved Order of Red Men.

He married, 8-5-1880, Eliza J., born in Bland Co., Va., 10-10-1862, daughter of Solomon and Fanny (Hurt) Tickle. Mr. Solomon Tickle was buried the day that his daughter Eliza J. was born. Children: (1.) John S. born 8-29-1883 in Tazewell County, Virginia; was educated in the Bluefield High School; is a machinist by trade.

(2) Bessie M., 12-8-1886, in Tazewell Co., Va.; educated in the Bluefield High School, spent one term in Washington, D. C. in Washington Christian College, and took a business course at the National Business College, Roanoke, Va., graduating with the highest honors of any student in the college but one. (3) Donald, born 8-8-1888, at Bluefield, West Virginia, is a printer. (4) Frances Maude, 5-8-1889, at Bluefield, W. Va., now at home with her parents.

Martin Van Buren Godbey, M. D., is one of the very able members of the medical profession in Charleston, Kanawha Co., W. Va. He is constantly broadening his sphere of usefulness, and demonstrating his superior ability and his deep interest in his calling from the humanitarian as well as the scientific standpoint. His success is an assured fact, and his professional bretheren accord him a prominent place in their ranks. The family is an old one in this country and lived for many years at Godbey Cliffs, Pulaski Co., Va. At the present time there are many members of it in the United States.

(I) William Godbey, the founder of the family in America, was a native of Scotland. Upon his arrival here he settled in Virginia, where as was the general custom of the time, he engaged in farming, and was the owner of considerable tract of land. He married _____ miller and had eleven children.

(II) Alexander Campbell, son of William and _____ (Miller) Godbey, was born in Newbern, Pulaski Co., Va. about 1850. For many years he engaged in the profession of teaching, and in addition to this cultivated his fine farm. He removed to Raleigh County, W. Va., where he is now living on his farm, in retirement. He married Elizabeth C. Pettry, who was born within the present bounds of West Virginia, in 1851 and died 5-29-1909. She was the daughter of Jacob and Celia (Gore) Pettry. Jacob Pettry was one of the earliest settlers in Raleigh Co., and was a miller by occupation. He owned a large number of slaves, and of his eleven children, one was in active service in the Confederate Army, was taken prisoner, and died in captivity at Camp Chase. Mr. & Mrs. Godbey had children: Annie Laurie, who married H. F. Davis; Martin Van Buren, see forward; Araminta, married _____Biggs, and lives in Raleigh Co.; James W., also lives in Raleigh County; J. Q., a physician at Gauley River, W. Va., Lacy living at Charleston, W. Va.; Elizabeth, lives in Raleigh County; one died in infancy.

(III) Martin Van Buren, son of Alexander Campbell and Elizabeth C. (Pettry) Godbey, was born on the family homestead in Raleigh County, W. Va., 12-19-1879. His educational opportunities were meager, but being naturally of a studious disposition and ambitious to a marked degree he made the best possible use of these, and at the remarkably early age of fifteen years was himself engaged in teaching, and thus earned the means to further his own progress along the roads of learning. Three years were spent in arduous study at Marshall College, West Va. & were supplemented by two years of study at Grant University, Chattanooga, Tenn. Upon the completion of this preparatory course of training he matriculated at the Baltimore Medical College, from which he was graduated in the class of 1905, the degree of Doctor of Medicine being conferred upon him. He had decided upon Boone Co. W. Va., as the scene of his future activity, and there established himself in the practice of his profession, remaining until the year 1909. While living in Boone Co. he became greatly interested in public matters of a varied character and the intelligent and progressive ideas entertained and spread by him attracted the attention of the Republican leaders of that section, and he was chosen as candidate for the legislature. He was elected to this office, being the first Republican leaders of that section, and he was elected to that office from the county in question since 1863. This was in 1907-08, and having been chosen chairman of the committee on medicine and sanitation, he aroused more interest in and attention to these subjects than had ever been the case before this time. He served as a member of a number of other committees and in each of these his work earned the highest commendation. Upon the termination of this public service he returned to Boone Co., but not long afterward located in Charleston, Kanawha Co., W. Va., where he has since been engaged in professional work. To a certain extent he has specialized in the surgical branch of medical practice, and his ability has been recognized by a number of organizations, who have tendered him official honors. In May, 1909, he was appointed a member of the state board of health, by Governor Glasscock, and in 1910, secretary of the board of examining surgeons. Dr. Godbey is a member of the County, State and American Medical Associations, before whom he has frequently lectured, and his contributions to the literature of the medical profession are always read with the closest attention by his colleagues. The time which Dr. Godbey is not obliged to devote to his professional duties is generally devoted to research work of various kinds, directly and indirectly connected with his profession. He spends as much time as he can spare to reading, and he has a very fine collection of books in his private library.

Dr. Godbey married, at Madison, W. Va., 11-16-1905 Florrie (Barrett) Smoot, the former of whom was a teacher of note for many years, was at one time sheriff of Boone Co., and had also filled other offices of importance. Mrs. Godbey was educated in Madison Co., and had been successfully engaged in teaching before her marriage. Dr. and Mrs. Godbey have had children: Ella Smoot, born 3-31-1907; John Lamoyne, born in 1910.

To Wayne W. Smith, H. V. Godbey, Ephra S. Godbey,
Miss Elizabeth Rule, Mrs. Margaret Godbey Smith,
H. Perry Godbey:

This circular statement will put together what has been gathered during 40 years concerning the migration of William and John Godbey, brothers and Revolutionary soldiers, from Caroline Co., Va., in 1783; their settlement on New River, Montgomery Co., Virginia; and the migration of three descendants to Pulaski County, Ky. Two family Bible records fix dates beyond dispute, as will appear. This statement will show that no branch of the family has preserved more than a fragment of the family history. It will correct mistakes in memory of some, and the great mistakes of others who have assumed that some John, or William, or Thomas of no known date, was the person they were particularly interested in: when in point of time the person claimed was sometimes as much as 100 years away from the date of the one known. In fifty years of work I have never met two old people who agreed about some family event 100 years before. This should hurt no one's feelings. Age brings notable losses to all of us. As for mistaken identifications, I have several cases where a claimed Revolutionary soldier was really the grandson of a Revolutionary soldier of the same name. Rigid attention to indisputable dates will eliminate such mistakes as were pointed out in the recent circular concerning the legends of a Timothy Godbey.

Next, all should remember that certain important facts may be well preserved in one branch of a family, and entirely lost in another, for good reasons. That brings us at once to the story of the migration from Caroline Co. Va. It has been minutely preserved in Missouri: no trace of it has come in all the forty years from any other source. The Missouri branch was founded by my grandfather, Rev. Josiah Godbey, in 1852, and by his oldest brother Rev. John Godbey, in 1868. Both were preachers; each had four sons that were preachers; each had grandsons that were preachers. Then each had married a Kelly. Now the Kelly family came from Montgomery Co., Va. (several times in the published Annal of Southwestern Virginia 1769 to 1800) and settled both in Northern Pulaski Co., Ky. and in Wayne Co., Ky., and Fentress Co., Tenn. The marriages of my grandfather Josiah and his brother John were made in Pulaski Co., Ky. Now it should be remembered that women are much more tenacious of family history and tradition than men are -- as Wayne Smith knows by this time! Elizabeth Rule is another proof. So when John and Josiah got into the same Missouri neighborhood with their Kelly wives, those two women were not going to let the religious preeminence of the two families be lost. For there is another factor in the situation. My grandmother Sena Kelly, had five brothers that were Methodist Preachers, and members of the Kentucky Conference. Two of them followed the early push into Oregon: and in Portland Oregon today the Clinton Kelly High School perpetuates the memory of a Methodist preacher pioneer: my grandmother's oldest brother. The Kelly family has produced other eminent preachers to this day. But every one can now see why this fervid Godbey-Kelly group, cut off from their Kentucky contacts, cherished their ancestral religious past.

Some one will ask of my personal knowledge of the story. Rev. John Godbey's oldest son Rev. William B. Godbey, the famous "Sanctification" champion, told the story sometimes in his preaching. He printed it partially in newspaper articles. More of it he told in his autobiography. But his brothers Rev. Josiah P. Godbey who did not follow him in his Sanctification theories, was educated at Central College, Fayette, Mo. Joined the Missouri Conference, and lived and died a member of it. He was my circuit neighbor between 1888 and 1894, and next door neighbor for three years, 1899-1902, when he was educating his children in Fayette, where I was teaching. So I had intimate first-hand talks with him of his family past. Josiah P. himself had known and talked with his grandfather William, the Kentucky pioneer up to the latters 87th year, when Josiah P. came to Missouri.

The story then is that our Revolutionary ancestor John Godbey was converted under the preaching of Francis Asbury, and immediately took two radical steps. He had received his share of a considerable estate in slaves. He immediately manumitted his slaves. Under the laws of Virginia, he had to make some provision for the maintenand of those manumitted. W. B. Godbey in his autobiography says the total cost to his great grandfather was about 30,000. John established a fervid household worship. An immediate consequence was that no descendant of his ever held slaves, tho living in slave-holding estates. John further announced that for any house-raising or log rolling no whiskey would be furnished. His Kentucky descendants stuck to that policy.

Now there is important corroboration. The records of Caroline Co., Va. were nearly all destroyed in the burning of Richmond, 1865. But a personal property tax list for the year 1783 escaped, and was published in the William and Mary Quarterly Vol. 27, Pg. 161ff. John Godbey is the only one in that list. And the list reports 1 white tythable (--Poll-Tax payer, John himself). No negroes over 16: one under 16; 2 horses, 2 head cattle; no "Wheels": No licenses to keep an Ordinary. Which means that John had no son as much as 16 years old (taxable): No negroes except one under 16 who could not be manumitted under Virginia law: did not hold a license to keep a dram shop. A widowed cousin or Aunt ? Judith Cheadle, had seven negroes over 16 and seven under, 3 horses, 25 cattle. I mention this merely to show that Godbeys in Caroline Co. had been holding slaves. John's brother William does not appear in this list: his land then lay in one of the counties cut off the west side of the original huge Caroline Co.

But this shows how little Revolutionary John had to face the frontier with. If he reaches Montgomery Co., Va. he has no money to buy land with. And his older children will have none. This will clear for everybody the long puzzle over the fact that no trace of any of them appears in Montgomery County land records.

Now continuing the story of migration: it is that the two brothers John and William, with some neighbors, decided to follow Daniel Boone into Kentucky. A chief factor in this was the fact that Virginia was unable to pay her soldiers in cash; and offered instead liberal grants of land in her "Kentucky County",, - But the emigrant train from Caroline County ran into an Indian ambush, somewhere near the Kentucky frontier. Some of the party were killed. The Indians got some cattle. The party turned back for a time. John and William stopped on New River, Montgomery Co., Virginia.

Here is the place to introduce the Family Bible record of William and Zannah Godbey of Godbeys Cliffs or Godbey's Window Glasses, on New River. It was copied by a Grandson, Russell Godbey 1-20-1860: as follows.

William Godbey of Montgomery Co., State of Virginia was born 9-29-1750 d. 1833. Zannah his wife was born 11-10-1751. Children: John born 3-30-1769, Polly 12-15-1773, William 6-6-1775., Gabriel 11-15-1778, Lucy 3-13-1782, Francis 6-24-1786, Sarah 2-9-1789, George 2-28-1791, Susannah 6-1-1793, Benjamin 6-7-1798.

Now all of these with one exception, appear again and again in the Montgomery records. For the present objective these details must be omitted. The one exception is Gabriel. He appears in no record of any kind. He left the county early and married either in Fentress Co., Tenn. or in Kentucky, as shown in the preious circular statement concerning Timothy Godbey. His father William died in 1833 and Gabriel soon after deeds away his share in his fathers estate. He did not have to return to Virginia to do that. Gabriel's marriage to Sarah Crockett recorded at Christianburg, Va.

Next, observe the oldest son John. He married Naomi Bain, 12-10-1785, when not yet 17 yrs. old; emulating the example of his parents. He raised a fmily; appears in various transactions.

Then who is the John Godbey whose little estate is appraised Aug. 11, 1803 at $1330.00? Six horses, three cows or oxen, seems a major part of it. William Trigg

Charles Brown, & Michael Brown are the appraisers. None of the William--Zannah family seem connected with the settlement. On the face of the published records, this must be Revolutionary John. There is no other John in the County records. The next spring 1804 his son William appears in Pulaski Co., Ky. with a wagon and team and one dollar. Probably part of John's estate is represented by that team.

Since I have used the term "Godbey's Cliffs" and "Godbey's Window Glasses" above, this needs explanation. In 1904 an aunt of mine living at the time in Nashville Tenn., called the attention of my Uncle John Emory Godbey to an article in Harpers Magazine that mentioned "Godbey's Window Glasses". The article is in Harpers Magazine 9-1857 one of a series of "A Winter in the South". On page 444 the artist of the party, Larkin, leaves the train and walks from Newbern to see the famous "Godbey's Cliffs". Take a Rand-McNally map and draw a line from Newbern in Pulaski Co. a little south of east to Snowville. Where that line crosses New River, is the still famous "Godbey's Cliffs". Somewhere around there Revolutionary John lived and died. In the article the artist Larkin says "Grandfather, father and son" lived there in succession. This was perplexing. But a cue from Mrs. Margaret Godbey Smith, of Rich Creek, Va. identifies the three. "The grandfather" was William with wife Zanna: "The father" was William's 6th son, Francis Marion, then past 71 years old. "The son", who is the host in the story, was Reason Vermilion Godbey, then living with Francis Marion, and some years later sole legatee of the old homestead. All will be better pleased to get the old fact clear on the map.

Now we want the story of William and John Godbey coming into Kentucky. To know who is talking, it is best to give first the Family Bible Record of William Godbey.

William Godbey was born in Caroline Co., Va. 1-18-1781. His first wife, and mother of all his children, Sarah Smith, was born 3-10-1783. His second wife, Martha Curl, was born 3-22-1793.

William Godbey and Sarah Smith were married in January 1801. Their children were John b. 12-23-1801 married Orpha Kelly, Jacob b. 3-1-1803 m. Tavia Jones 2nd?, Fanny b. 7-18-1804 m. James Reese, Nancy b. 1-23-1806 m. Edmund Debored, Ibby b. 3-29-1807 m. Eli Haynes, Matilda b. 12-20-1808 m. William Gastineau, Sally b. 8-12-1810 m. 1st Samuel Reagan, 2nd John Cundiff, William b. 2-10-1812 never married, Henry Harrison b. 10-28-1813 m. 1st Sarah Jones, 2nd Eliza Richardson 3rd Catherine Barber, 4th Martha A. Randolph, Joshua L. b. 11-5-1815 m. Sally Randolph, Josiah b. 6-30-1817 m. Sena Kelly, Josephus b. 6-30-1817 died 9-29-1817, Melissa b. 1-27-1820 m. Miles Wesley.

This copy was made by Henderson Valentine Godbey of Cynthiana, Indiana, from his Grandfather's bible. It agrees with a copy made much later in 1907 by John Monroe Godbey, oldest half brother of Henderson Valentine. It appears that John Monroe Godbey owned the bible at that time, since it is now in the possession of his youngest son Ephra Slavins Godbey.

We may now compare the foregoing Missouri tradition of the migration of Revolutionists William and John to get from Caroline Co., Va. into Kentucky with the Kentucky story of the final success of two sons of John, the Kentucky pioneers William and John. I have no reports from any descendants of Gabriel. Of the descendants of John, Dr. Wayne Smith's wife, (University of Idaho) is my only contact. Of above children of William, I have four independent reports at different times, from descendants of Jacob, two descendants of Henry Harrison, and one descendant of Joshua L. That these all agree on certain starting points will probably satisfy everybody.

Now the above mentioned article in Harpers Magazine, 1857 resulted in my Uncle John Emory Godbey getting in communication with Francis Marion Farmer of Newbern, Va. about the old Godbey homestead on Godbeys Cliffs: and then into communication with John Monroe Godbey, son of Henry Harrison Godbey, about our forebears arrival in Kentucky. It is necessary for everybody to know that I worked in office with my Uncle for years. I have typed copies of two letters he wrote to John Monroe in 1907. A word from Henderson Valentine caused me to write last April to Ephra Slavine Godbey, youngest son of John Monroe. he answered at once that he had a copy of the letter and later sent a typed copy of it as follows.

Bethelridge, Kentucky

John Emory Godbey
Prescott Arkansas

Dear Cousin:

A few days ago cousin John Godbey, of Bethelridge showed me a letter from you asking information as to the Godbey family. After we talked the matter over cousin John requested I write and give all the information I could. To begin I tell you who I am.

My name is John Monroe Godby, son of Henry Harrison Godby, who was brother of Josiah Godby, your father. My mother died when I was in my 6th year, then I went to our grandmother and remained in the home until 1860. I have heard him give his history so often that I have recollected a portion of it. There were two Godby brothers, William and John, that lived on New River Va. William, I think, the elder, John who was our great-grandfather was in the Revolutionary War, when our grand father William Godby was born. Great grandfather was twice married, by the first marriage there were three or more children, William, our grandfather, the oldest one named John, one daughter named Fanny. This I can name - great grandfather started for Kentucky, when he got to Green Brier County, Va., great grandmother took sick and died, after a time great grandfather married his second wife and there was born to them three or more children, two sons and one daughter - Joseph, George and Sally. Joseph lived for a time in the state of Tennessee. George I think, came to Kentucky, and was never married, I think he died a young man. Sally came to Kentucky and lived with our grandfather, William up to her death, 2-6-1856.

Grandfather William married Sarah Smith in Green County Va., about the first of the year 1801. About the year 1804-5 grandfather moved to Kentucky and settled on Cumberland River, Pulaski Co. in what was called Pumpkin Holler. I have often heard him say that when he got to Pumpkin Holler he had a wagon, team, a wife, three children and one dollar in money. He then lived in Pumpkin holler for some years. He purchased a farm some three or four miles east of Somerset, Pulaski, Co., Ky. and remained at that place until about the year 1831-2. He then moved to Casey County and remained there until his death, which was on the 28th day of April 1876. To Grandfather and Grandmother was born 13 children, seven sons and six daughters, all except one lived to maturity. Grandmother died on the 15th day of Sept. 1836. Grandfather then married Martha Curl, who survived him about 8 years. As I have the family record of grandfather I will give record as I have it, beginning with Grandfather. William was born 1-18-1781. First wife Sarah born 3-10-1783. Second wife, Martha born 3-22-1793. Children John born 12-23-1803 married Orpha Kelley, Jacob born 3-1803 married Travis Jones. Fanny born 7-18-1804 married James Reece. Nancy born 1-23-1806 married Edmond Debord, Ibbs born 3-29-1807 married Eli Haynes. Matilda, born 12-20-1808, married William Gastineau. Sally born 8-21-1810 first married Samuel Rexgon, second married. Henry Harrison, 10-28-1813 married Polly Jones. Joshua born 11-5-1815 married Sally Randolph. Josiah your father born 6-30-1817 married Semis Kelley. Josephus born 6-3-1817 died 9-29-1817. Malissa born 1-27-1820 married Miles Wesley.

Grandfathers' brother John emigrated to Kentucky but I do not have the date. He too settled in Pumkin Hollow and several of his descendants are living in the county now. Joseph wo was a half brother to grandfather lived some years in Tennessee and then moved to Missouri. Fanny, I never knew anything about her. Well that takes our line of family as far as I can go.

We will now go back to New River, Va. William Godby, brother to our Great grandfather, John, I think was the elder, I can give but little description of his family.

He had one son named Gabriel, whose family moved to Kentucky. Of Gabriels family there was Timothy, Annie married Josb Rigney, Zaner married Robert Ellison, the other daughter married Thomas Edwards. There is several of Gabriel's descendants living in Kentucky in Casey County. One of Timothy's sons is a Baptist preacher. There is a great many preachers in the Godby family. Wishing to hear from you soon. From your Cousin

John Monroe Godby

Prescott, Ark.

Dear Cousin Monroe:

It was a great pleasure to get your letter and the information it contained, I remember you. Saw you at grandfathers about 1845. I think there was also a young man ther named Dan Barnes. Is that right? I remember Aunt Sally also. You have given me a good deal of information. But it showed me I had an incorrect record at some points. I think with the help of your letter I can get it straight. I will give you what I have, Study it and correct as far as you can.

The original name is Godobey and it originated in the time of Cromwell. There was in Cromwell's army one of our descendants Col. John Godobey. The "O" is now dropped.

Two sons of Colonel John Godobey, Jonothan and Charles, with their cousin Ezra came from Whitehorn England, to America in the Ship Providence in 1651.

The family is there lost sight of for a time. There are many of the name in Central New York but I do not know their history.

An article in Scribners magazine, found in Carnegie Library, Nashville, dated 10-1857 gave a description of Godbey's Bluff on New River, Pulaski Co., Va. and states that at the time the Godbys, grandfather, father and son had lived there" for the best end of a century, this set me on the right tract.

I wrote to the P. M. at Newburn, Va. and he put me in communication with Frances Marion Farmer, grandson of Frances Marion Godby, on his mothers side. It seems that his great grandfather was William, the brother of John, your great grandfather. He owned several farms on New River on the Bluff in Pulaski Co. On these his sons lived for a time, one on the Horse Shoe farm, one on the Pickett Farm, one Frances Marion on the old place. So we have Frances Marion on the farm when the Scribners article was written, in 1857, and his father William before him and now we like but the name of the grandfather mentioned in the article, who is our great great grandfather, the father of William and John. If you can get the name of your great great grandfather, put him down as the first settler of Godby's Bluff, New River, Pulaski Co., Va. And we shall also conclude that William and John were born there. William remained and John went to Green Briar, and thence his son William our grandfather went to Kentucky.

The sons of William Godby, at the bluff were Frances Marion, who stayed on the place, Benjamin who settled on an adjoining farm, William, who went to Montgomery Co., Va., Gabriel whose descendants you know, George a Methodist preacher, who went to Alabama and was the father of Crockett Godby, also a preacher of North Alabama Conference. I saw the widow of Crockett last May in Alabama. She told me her husbands father was George, born 2-2-1791, died 8-1873, 82 years old.

I thought that George was your grandfather's brother until I got your letter. I am now clear that he was William's son.

William's family, I find went largely to the Baptist and Campbellite Church. Frances Marion was a Campbellite. He has a son W. V. in West Virginia, 84 years old, a Campbellite preacher.

It seems that our ancesters were long lived. Frances Marion died at the Bluff, 86 years old. He had 8 children all passed 80, two yet living.

I and my brother very much desire to come up to your neighborhood. I go to Louisville every April or the 1st of May to our Church extension Board Meeting. I may get around to visit you.

Your Cousin,
John Emery

One corrective comment is necessary. John Monroe is emphatic about William and John both living on New River. Then how does Green Brier Co. get into the story? Godbey's Cliffs on New River are not in Green-Brier Co., and never were, as any one may see by looking at the map. Further, at the time of the migration from Caroline Co. there was no Greenbrier Co. The whole west half of Virginia was unsurveyed: subdivision was just beginning.

The explanation is that in that early time the whole undivided Virginia between the Greenbrier River and Ky. was popularly spoken of as "the Greenbrier Country"! Methodist pioneers wrote in Advocates as late as 1840 of the Greenbrier Country including Green River, in Ky. John Monroe's story is a corroboration of the Missouri legend that the emigrants got into an Indian ambush in the Greenbrier Country, somewhere near the Kentucky Co. line and had to turn back. He suggests that Revolutionary John's wife died of the hardships before they could get back to New River. Later generations, forgetting what Greenbrier Country once meant have turned it into Greenbrier County.

Next John Monroe's statement of the two wives and six children of Revolutionary John is exactly the same that was told me forty years ago by Josiah P. Godbey, son of John Godbey and Orphe Kelly. In both accounts the names of the two wives are missing: and neither one knows what became of Fanny. Some one may be found who can tell more.

A letter written by Dr. Lemuel Jones Godbey of Beres, Ky. 12-30-1917 came into my hands some years ago. He was grandson of Jacob Godbey (3-1-1803) who married Tavis Jones. In explaining his family relationship, he said that he had approved and kept the statement made by John Monroe Godbey.

On 1-23-1939, Melvin Godbey wrote that he was a grandson of the same Jacob Godbey, who was born in Va. 3-1-1803 and brought into Ky. when he was a baby. That reduces John Monroe's time of arrival by a year. He did not mention John Monroe's narrative, but notified me that Ephra S. Godbey had Great-grandfather William's family Bible, 150 years old, with all family records.

Next John Monroe's mention of Pumpkin Hollow is of first importance. In fifty years of correspondence I had never heard of it, till Wayne Smith wrote me that his wife's Godbey forebers, who settled in Northern Indiana about a hundred years ago, had come from a place in Pulaski Co. called Pumpkin Hollow. No correspondent then could tell me where it was. No postmaster or official explained. On my reporting this to Wayne Smith, he turned up in the University Library an old official survey locating Pumpkin Hollow. Any one can see it. Take a Rand-McNally map of Pulaski Co. In the south center, just north of the Cumberland River, is the little village of Northfield, in the upper end of a little valley spreading south into the Cumberland River. That is Pumpkin Hollow: and immediately south of Northfield was the old Pumpkin Hollow School House, near which Wayne Smith lived for a year or so when a very small boy: when Godbeys were there, living later a mile northeast of the Cedar Grove R. R. Station, where his father died.

So John Monroe's approved account is a historical document of the first importance: particularly in the detail that John Godbey also settled there, and that some of his descendants were still in Pumpkin Hollow 16 bears after Wayne Smith's family moved to Missouri. John Monroe does not know when John Godbey came there. But he gives us a direct challenge. Why did William leave the well-established community on New River, where he had been renter or employee only, and strike out for Pumpkin Hollow knowing that he would be penniless and without farm tools when he got there? There seems only one answer. John was already settled there and offered him better terms than he could get on New River. The two worked together till William could buy a little land near Somerset.

And we have another cue as to date. The published Annals of SouthWest Virginia show that John Godbey was married to Elizabeth Walker 5-8-1793 by Rev. Richard Whitt. Any one can see that this John was not one of the Godbey's Cliffs family. And it is improbable that Revolutionary John waited ten years ere taking a second wife to care for his young children. William was only two years old in 1783. This can only be Williams older brother John, setting up, for himself 11 years before William started for Pumpkin Hollow.

Henderson Valentine unconsciously adds a little to John Monroe's letter, which he has never seen. He has insisted from the first that his grandfather William's brother John came into Pulaski Co. from the south, but did not stay long: went back south. Of Wayne Smith's, John and Gabriel of Boone Co., Indiana 100 years ago, he has insisted from the first that they could not be of William's family, nor of Gabriels from New River. They were children of an older man: certainly of John wo went back south. On 4-24-1939 he wrote specifically that "John brother of William settled somewhere between Bethelridge and Somerset, on the east side of Fishing Creek, southwest of Science Hill: but only stayed there a few days and went back". The entirely independence of this testimony enhances its value. But H. V. not knowing Pumpkin Hollow, could not know that when John "went back", he did not go outside of Pulaski Co. It must have been when John moved up on the east side of Fishing Creek that his sons John and Gabriel went on to Boone Co., Indiana.

Data in hand do not warrant further historical reconstruction. Descendants of John Godbey who may see this should be able to add information concerning the earliest times. Henderson Valentine has the old wooden clock of his grandfather William: and it is still keeping good time. There may be mementoes of John in existence. And since John was much older than William; some of his descendants may know a little more about their father Revolutionary John, than is shown here.

Dear Mrs. Lewis,

I first must apologize for the long delay between our conversation on the telephone and the writing of this letter. It was a pleasant surprise to me when you called during your visit to Dallas. I believe I told you something about my family on the phone, but I would like to repeat some of it here for your record.

My father, the son of a Methodist Circuit Riding Minister, was born in Kinmundy, Ills. in 1868. Soon after his birth, the family moved to Ky. He attended college at Ky. Wesleyan College, Owensboro, Ky. He met my mother there. My mother's maiden name was Emma lee Taylor and her father was President of the College. Professor Taylor was made President of Missouri Normal School in Maryville, Mo., and since my father was then still courting my Mother, he too went to Maryville for a short time after completing his degree at Ky. Wesleyan. My father then became associated with the Carlisle Military Academy, in Arlington, Texas during the first World War. Later, Professor Taylor joined him and bought out the Academy. My Mother and Father were married in Arlington (about halfway between Dallas and Fort Worth) where my sister was born in 1915. My father then went to the University of Texas, after selling his interest in the Academy, and earned his Master's degree in Education. Following this, he was made the Superintendent of Schools successively in Itasca and then Cisco, Texas. My brother was born in Itasca in 1919 and I was born in Cisco, in 1921. We moved from Cisco when I was three years old to Ardmore, Oklahoma, where my father was made the Superintendent of Schools. My father was killed in an automobile accident in 1935, and we moved to Dallas to be near my mother's mother. My Mother still lives here and is now 80 years old and still drives a car and does baby sitting.

I married Jo Fay Harrison in 1943 after graduating in Electrical Engineering from SMU. Jo Fay also attended SMU. I was in the Navy stationed in Washington, D. C. as a specialist Engineer and the Naval Research Laboratories until 1946. I then went to MIT to obtain a Master's Degree but transfered to the University of Texas before completing my requirements there. I obtained my degree from the University in 1947.

Jo Fay and I have three children: John K. Jr. - 21, Gayle Harrison 13, and Joseph Hastings 14. My brother also lives in the vicinity and is an Electrical Engineer also.

In all this rambling dialogue, I forgot to mention that my father's name was Josiah Jernigan Godbey. In the enclosed historical sketch by John Emory Godbey, you will find that the last sentence asks my father to visit him. Although my father never had the opportunity for this visit, I remember his saying how much he would like to do. I believe we decided that John Emory was my father's third or fourth cousin, however I do not now know how this determination was made.

Please forgive my verbosity, I am sure that I have probably omitted most of the facts that you might be interested in. Please let me know.

I will be looking forward to the cost-of-arms you promised in exchange for this history. If you can tell me the significance of the various parts, I would appreciate the explanation.

Very truly yours
/s/ John

THE GODBEY FAMILY IN AMERICA
BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES
BY JOHN EMORY GODBEY

Thomas R. Godbey, born in England 1587, came to Jamestown, Va. in the Ship Deliverance in 1608.

As the Colonists were required to practice military drill, the muster rolls are among the earlier historic data. These rolls, in the case of families, give steches of the families.

The muster roll of Elizabeth City, Va. for 1624 has "THOMAS GODBEY, his muster" Thomas Godbey came over in 1608 in Deliverance age 38, Joane Godbey came over in 1621 in Flying Heart Age 42, John Curtis came over in 1621 in Flying Heart age 22, Christopher Smith came over in Flying Heart age 24". It is presumed that Curtis and Smith came over with Joane and after she was married remained a time with the Godbeys. The ages were at the time of the muster.

Land Grant or Bred: The virginia Historical Magazine Vol. 1, pg. 191, has this record: "Thomas Godbey of Kicoughtan, Elizabeth City, Yeoman, as his first dividend, 100 acres, between New Port News and Blunts Point, granted 12-1-1624. Thomas Godbey, born 1587 came to Va. in Ship Deliverance, 1608 and Joan Godbey, 42, came in Flying Hart 1621". The above record indicates that Thomas Godbey was a member of a land syndicate. His will shows that his property was in land on Elizabeth River, Lower Norfolk Co.

The will of Thomas Godbey, of Elizabeth River, Lower Norfolk Co., Va. Planter Book C, p. 76 Apr. 8th, 1652 Recorded 2-20-1653. The estate is bequeathed to "Anne my deere and Loving wife, sole Executrix". There is a codicil date 2-10-1653. From these dates we may fix 2-15-1653 as within a few days of the date of Thomas Godbeys death. The will is certified by X, showing that Godbey was illiterate. This accounts also for the varied spelling of the name, which one finds in early official records, as Godbey, Godbye, Godbee, Godby. The name was evidently pronounced to the recorder who spelled it according to his own judgement.

There is no direct proof that any children were born to Thomas and Joan Godbey. Their names appear in a Census of date Feb. 16, 1623, but there are no children, and none are mentioned in the will. This latter circumstance, however, is not very significant, for the wills of those times show that it was the custom, rather for a man to leave all his property to his widow.

Thomas R. Godbey died 66 years of age, and had been married 28 years.

THOMAS GODBEY II

The colony records show another Thomas Godbey, of Elizabeth River, Lower Norfolk, Co., who was as I assume, from many evidences, the son of Thomas R. being of proper age for a son, and evidently connected with the emigrant of 1608, as indicated by his home and property. This is the record of his will. His wife also is named Ann. "Will - Thomas Godbey of Elizabeth River 9-28-1671 recorded 2-21-1686. "Unto Ann, my deare and loving wife all my lands and tennyments, which I now possess at the head of a branch that comes out of the southern branch of Elizabeth River, in the County of Lower Norfolk, Va." Witness Francis Sayer, Richard Whittle.

The above dates show that this will was made and signed 9-28-1671, and was put on record 2-21-1686 which latter date we may accept as about the date of the death of Thomas Godbey, the son of Thomas R.

Of the doings of this second Thomas Godbey we find scant record. He was a land holder, and tobacco raiser, and the fact that a friend bequeathed to him a distillery suggestive.

But Tom's wife, Ann, made herself interesting to the Colonists. She was fined for attending a Quaker meeting at the house of Richard Russell and Tom paid the fine with 200 pounds of tobacco. This was in 1663.

William and Mary Quarterly Vol. 1 - p. 59. The bound volumes of a paper published by the students of William and Mary College, in the Carnage Libary St. Louis, in an article on Witchcraft tells us that ann Godbey, wife of Thomas Godbey, was hailed before the court and fined for calling Nick Robinsons wife a witch. Again her husband paid the fine with 200 pounds of tobacco. The evidence that Ann Godbey was an (?) woman, and a person of mark in her community is found in a number of wills in which she is named as executrix. Also in gifts left to her in various wills. Richard Russel the Quaker, leaves her books, William Bordas, in his will bequeaths "my books and instruments of navigation to Ann Godbey, wife of Thomas Godbey." He directs that Ann Godbey or John Porter shall execute his will; evidently Ann Godbey if living. This will was put to record 10-15-1667. Our dates will show that Ann Godbey lived many years after this date. John Jacobs of Elizabeth River whose will was recorded 5-12-1681, left "to Ann Godbey my chest and all that it contains in it," and he makes Ann Godbey sole executrix of his will.

The will of Bordas, and the will of Jacobs, the peculiar character of the bequests which they make to Ann Godbey, and the fact that she is executrix of each, sets us guessing that Ann was the daughter of one of these men. Our guess is that she was the daughter of Bordas for why should he leave her his books and instruments of navigation but as an heirloom?

New England History and General Register has this entry: Cornelius Lloyd hath due three thousand acres for farms, of persons whose names are underwritten," Thomas Godbey is the 43rd name in this list. The date 12-15-1642, It is probable this record refers to the first Thomas Godbey. The records of the Virginia Land Office show the entry of land by Thomas Godbey in 1653 in Lower Norfolk Co.

Break in the History.

Reconing the death of the 2nd Thomas Godbey as occurring in 1686, whose will mentions no children, (as we have noted was common in the will of the times) we cannot, for lack of names trace the family line. We have a lot of fragments which might be put gotether, if official records were more thoroughly searched. I can only preserve the fragments, watchful for links which will unite them.

Fragments: The Register of Christ Church Middlesex, Co., Va. contains this record: "Edward and Frances Godbee" (The index has it Godbey) have their children christened: Mary born 10-10 baptized 10-27-1701, Rebecca Baptized 6-2-1703, John Baptized 4-2-1705. In the same Register I find marriage of Thomas (Sir name indistinct) and Frances Godbey, 1708. I can only guess that this is the widow of Edward Godbey and that this note, which I pick up in the St. Louis Library points to other records in Middlesex Co., which would if I could obtain them, connect the chain. I suspect however that the most valuable records were those of Caroline Co. which were burned in the Civil War. My grandfather was born in Caroline, during the revolution, his father being in the army.

GODBEY'S BLUFF: An article in Harpers monthly Vol. IV Dec. 1857 describes a bluff on New River, VA., named for the Godbey settlement on the bottom lands opposite. The article states, "The Godbeys grandfather, father and son have lived her for the but end of a century." The river makes the boundary between Pulaski and Montgomery counties. The place is about three miles from Newbern. The Godbey settlement was on the bottom lands in Montgomery County opposite the bluff.

Influenced by the magazine article I addressed a letter to the postmaster at Newbern to give me the name of some one best acquainted with the Godbeys. He gave me the name of F. M. Farmer. I wrote him in 1905 and he answered with this statement. "Godbey's Bluff or Looking Glass - so called from a great pannel in the Cliff is on the opposite side of the river from the farms. My grandfather, Francis Marion Godbey was born and died on the place. His brother Ben, inherited a place joining it. That place was sold sixty years ago. The old home, from what I can learn, has been in possession of the Godbeys for 150 to 200 years. The last heirs sold out in 1900. The county owns the place now as a poor farm."

From such data the time of the Godbey settlement on New River can only be approximately guessed. It was some time before the revolutionary war. The picture of the first house has been furnished me. It was built with beams set upright with portholes, like a stockade. This was for defense against indians.

It is interesting to know that the Godbeys were in America 124 years before the birth of George Washington.

FAMILY OF WILLIAM GODBEY, MONTGOMERY CO., VA.

Through the aid of Mr. Farmer, and my nephew Dr. A. H. Godbey, now professor in Duke University, I secure the following record of the family of William Godbey, who it appears, was the first settler at the Bluff on New River, Montgomery Co., Va. and hence known as Godbey's Bluff. William Godbey born in Hallifax, Co. Va., 9-28-1750, Zanna his wife born in Hallifax Co., Va. 11-10-1751. Their children: John born 3-30-1769 married Nannie Bane 12-10-1785, Patty born 12-10-1773 married Townsend Farmer 1792, William born 6-6-1775 married Nancy Dickerson, Gabriel born 11-15-1778 moved to Casey Co., Ky., Lucy born 3-13-1783 married Mr. James Hedge, Francis Marion, born 6-24-1784 married Roda Whitt, Sarah born 2-9-1789 married John Gunter, George born 2-28-1791 married Nancy Elswick, Susanna born 6-1-1793 married Sam Covey, Benjamin born 6-7-1798 married Nancy x x.

Resin Vermillion Godbey reported to me in 1906 that his grandfather William owned several farms at the Bluff. Besides the home place he had the horse shoe farm, the Pocket Farm and others.

The will of William Godbey is date 10-28-1829 proved 1-1833. The records show thatthe property was appraised at $4679.55 and was sold at 5008.00 and the children shared alike, except Benjamin whose property was held in trust to go to his children at his death, he having life use of it.

I have not been able to trace out all the branches of the family of William Godbey of Montgomery Co., Va. Here are some notes: John of the family of John, the eldest son, I have no record, official entries show that he remained at the Bluff. William born at the Bluff, 6-6-1775, married Nancy Dickerson of Montgomery Co., and in 1800 removed to Logan Co. (Now in West Va. in which section many of his descendents still remain. Chapmanville is the P. O. address of several.)

The names of Williams children were: Polly born 4-6-1799, Russell 12-2-1800, John 8-3-1802, Wm. F. 6-11-1805, Obed 6-22-1807, Letitia 6-20-1810, Eliza 12-2-1814, Nancy 6-17-1818.

My last correspondence with this group was with John H. Vickers of Chapmanville. He said the family was noted for its old people. He says the entire list given above lived to be very old.

Russell - named in the list, left Logan Co. and settled at Curtis, Ills. in 1830. An article in the Petersburg, Ill. Democrat, celebrating Russells' 88th birthday says "His land at Curtis was surveyed by Abraham Lincoln, for which service "Old Abe" received in payment two buckskins, tanned by Mr. Godbeys own hands. Mr. Lincoln utilized them to add to the serviceableness of his pantaloons."

Gabriel the third son of William of Montgomery moved to Casey Co., Ky. I doubt if I have full record of his family. His sons were: John a Baptist preacher, Timothy, also a preacher whose home was at Waynesville, Ky. He was born 1813, David of whom I have only the name. John the Baptist moved to Missouri in 1848 and settled at Cherry Valley, Crawford Co., He had a son William, born 1-17-1834, also Gabriel T. who died in 1865. George R. was a son of William, born 1850. He moved from Crawford Co. to St. Louis.

John W. (or Jr.) son of Gabriel T. was born 1864. He lives at Sligo, Mo. As descendants of Rev. Timothy Godbey of Waynesville, Ky. I have his son J. C. and grandson J. F. who is my informant, resident at Joyce, Ky. He has only furnished me initials and no dates.

George 5th son of William of Montgomery, born 2-28-1791 has left us a tolerably definite history. He was converted when 19 years old and joined the Methodist Church 7-9-1810. He was licensed to preach 9-1828, ordained a deacon by Bishop Emory at Winchester Va. in 1835, and elder by Bishop Morris at Cincinnati, Ohio in 1840. He removed to Tenn. and made his home at Cleveland where he died, 8-11-1875, being 84 years of age. He was never member of a confrence but was an earnest and efficient preacher. His children were: Rev. Crockett Godbey, a member of the Tenn. Conference, Jackson, Marish, Julia, Rachel. These children were born at the Bluff. Jackson settled at Jacksonville, Va. where he spent his life. He served as Clerk of the Court, lived to be old and reared a large family. I was entertained by his son Walter at our general conference in Memphis 1894. Walter afterward went to California. Rev. Crocket Godbey's children were Rev. Crocket C. a member of the Alabama Conference, and E. W. a lawyer of Decatur, Alabama. E. W.'s only child was Gladys.

Crockett C.'s children were: Eva born 1900, Edgar 1902, Luther 1904, Charline 1906, James McCoy and John C. Kilgore twins born 1912.

Jackson Godby's children born at Jacksonville, Va. were Nannie Pick, Alice Lee, Josephine Gay, Walter Henry, with whom I lodged at Memphis. Julia Ann married Rice Montague and they now live at Portland, Oregon.

Francis Marion, son of William Godbey of Montgomery Co., Va. His children were: William, Archibald, John, Resin V., Susan married a Briggs, Hannah married Ike Carpenter, Amanda married James Rankin, Rhoda married Andrew Miller, Mary married John Lenkhouse, Rachel married James D. Farmer.

I have not the order of birth or the dates for the above list of names. But I am of opinion that we have here a most remarkable record of longevity. F. M. Farmer, the son of Rachel, in the above list, wrote me in 1906 that all this list had passed 80 years of age. Four were still living all past 80, six had died all past 84. The father Francis Marion, died at 86, the mother at 94. F. M. Farmer who gave me this information was living in the old home neighborhood at Godbey's Bluff. About 1915, and after his death, I took up the case with his daughter, who assured me her father's statement was correct. All the persons were dead at that time, but she could not give dates. I doubt if any else can be found to equal this; father 86, mother 94 and ten children all passing 80 years of age at time of death.

With these notes I close the sketch of that branch of the Godbey family descended from William of Godbey's Bluff, New River, Montgomery Co., Va. One who would investigate the official records must seek them chiefly in Pulaski Co. for Montgomery, though presently the home of the Godbeys was in Pulaski until 1839. I have a good deal of matter from Christianburg, Pulaski representing will and deeds recorded there which are not included in the sketch here given. The article about Russell Godbey of Ill. in the Petersburg, Ill. Democrat states that his grandfather William of Montgomery was a soldier of the Revolution.

FAMILY OF JOHN GODBEY 1752, Godbey's Bluff, New River, Va.: William Godbey whose descendants I have sketched had a brother John. This John Godbey was also a revolutionary soldier, so stated by John Monroe Godbey who had it from the statement of William Godbey of Casey Co., Ky. the son of John whom we are considering. As his brother William was born in Halifax Co., Va. 1750 we assume that John was born there in 1752. After serving in the Revolutionary War it seems that John Godbey started to Kentucky. He had at the time a wife and three children. His wife falling sick he stoped in Greenbrier Co., now in W. Va. When his wife died this caused him to abandon his purpose. He remained in Greenbrier married again and there spent his days. His children were: By his first wife: John came to Ky., Wm. Also, and Fannie. By his second wife: George, Joseph Sallie. George I understand never married. He went to Tenn. Sallie never married, she lived with her brother William in Casey Co. and died 2-6-1856. John came to Kentucky and settled in Pumkin Hollow on the Cumberland River. He had a son Josiah, who was killed under the harrow, while harrowing his field. He also had a son John but I know little of this branch of the family. William Godbey, son of John of Greenbrier, being my grandfather, I have given attention especially to his immediate line.

WILLIAM GODBEY who came from Virginia to Ky. 1804. I observed that the obituary of Wm. Godbey of Casey Co., Ky. stated that he was born in Caroline Co., Va. 6-18-1781. This was during the War of the Revolution and I understand the father John, who was my great grandfather, was in the army at the time of William's birth. An unsettled question is whether said John Godbey had his home at the time in Caroline or at the Bluff in Montgomery Co., Va. on New River. (It must be noted that Montgomery County really was not then in existence, as it was formed of a division of Pulaski in 1839. The official records of the Godbeys, deeds, wills, and marriages, are chiefly found at Christianberg, the county seat of Pulaski). Those records name many Godbeys not mentioned in my sketch of William of Montgomery.)

Monroe Godbey of Bethelridge Casey Co., Ky. says John Godbey lived on New River and left there to go to Kentucky. Wm. Godbey came from Greenbriar Co., Va. to Kentucky about 1804. He reached Pumpkin Hollow on the Cumberland River with one dollar, a wife and three children. (I think Pumpkin Hollow was in Pulaski Co.) After some years he purchased a farm four or five miles east of Somerset in Pulaski Co. where he lived until 1831, when he removed to Casey Co. and remained there (At Bethelridge) til his death 4-2-1876 being 95 yrs. old. Wm. Godbey's first wife was Sarah Smith, she was the mother of all his children and died 9-15-1836. Mr. Godbey then married Martha Curl who survived him eight years. The family record is on the following page.

WILLIAM GODBEY'S FAMILY RECORD: William Godbey b. 1-18-1761 d. 4-2-1876, wife Sarah Smith b. 3-10-1783 d. 9-15-1836, 2nd wife Martha Curl b. 3-22-1793 d. 1-15 1884. Children: John born 12-23-1801 d. 1885 married Orphy Kelley, Jacob b. 3-1-1803 d. 3-22-1885 m. Fanny Jones, Fannie b. 7-18-1804 married James Reece, Nancy b. 1-23-1806 d. 9-14-1875 m. John Godbey, son of William of Casey, moved to Missouri in 1865 and settled at Smithton, Petis Co. and was killed by lightning aged 84. His children were:

William Buck, a Methodist Preacher and noted evangelist and writer, died 88, Josiah P. a Methodist Preacher now ('26) is superannuate, resident, Fayette, Mo. Sallie married John Pierce, Smithton, Mo., Martin deceased, died at Smithton, John K. deceased. He was a Baptist Preacher died at Smithton.

Jacob Cox Godbey, son of William of Pulaski spent his life near the old home. His children were: Thomas Jefferson, a Methodist Preacher of the Ky. Conference, now deceased, Ephraim - Hustonville, Ky., Elizabeth - married Robt. Moore, Caroline, Matilda - deceased, William - Lived at Humphrey, Ky. Fanny Reece's children so far as I knew them were: John, Sam Shelton, Sallie, Baber and Lizzie. There were others no doubt. John came with Josiah Godbey to Missouri in 1852 married and settled in Monitor Co. Nancy Debeard. I know nothing of this branch. Ibba Haynes moved to Pettis Co., Mo. Had but one child Sarah who married Robert McFarland. Matilda Gastaneau I know nothing, Sallie Cundiff I know nothing, Wm. son of William, I know nothing, Harrison died early leaving an only son Monroe brought up by his Grandfather. His son Perry, I met in 1905.

Joshua, son of William of Casey born 12-5-1815 died 2-12-1905 age 91. His children were: John born 8-11-1838, Josiah, Nimrod, William, James, Alexander, Jeremiah, Perry, Susy, Josephus, Joseph, Ibby, Eli, Timothy. I do not think this is a full list or that the names are in order of birth. Joshua, the father, John, Josiah, James, Eli, Timothy were all Methodist Preachers. Of the sons of Josiah I record L. A. Dante, Va., George, Tipton, Ind., Josiah Jernigan President of School at Arlington, Tex., Cisco ?, Ardmore, Okl.

JOSIAH GODBEYS FAMILY: Josiah son of William Godbey of Casey Co, Ky. born 6-30-1817 died 4-20-1890, aged 73 years married Sena Kelly born 5-25-1818 - 10-27-1836. Their children were: William Clinton born 9-15-1837, John Emory 8-11-1837, Martha Jane 6-16-1842, Milton April or Sept 10, 1845, Sarah Hellen 11-13-1847, Samuel McGinnis 6-3-1850. In 1852 they moved to Missouri.

Josiah 6-26-1853, Nancy Margaret 10-10-1856, Thomas Kelly 2-16-1858, Alice 5-26-1863. Alice had infantile paralysis and was the first to go away. She died at the age of 26. Josiah was next. He graduated from Central College, Fayette Mo., was licensed to preach, joined the Conference. Married Annie Priest of Pettis Co. was transferred to Texas and died of tuburculosis at Monterey, Mexico, aged 30 years. Milton was a Physician. He married Roberta Simpson, practiced medicine there and died at the age of 50. Nancy Margaret married Nathanniel Gower of Pettis Co., Mo. had three daughters and died of Tuburculosis at the age of 34. Samuel McGinnis graduated at Central College, Fayette Mo. Was licensed to preach, served various charges in Missouri, transferred to California, edited Pacific Methodist, returned to Mo., transferred to Ark. taught Prarie Grove Academy, Located to Texas, President Cappell Hill Female College, returned to S. W. Mo. Conference, made associate Editor Christian Advocate Nashville, Professor in Hendrix College. Moved to Fla. and died at Waldo, Fla. 69 years of age. His children one son and two daughters graduated at Vanderbilt. His son Robert was a drill officer in the World War. His daughter Lena translator of War orders into French and German and out of these languages into English in War Office Washington D. C. Lois was domestic science demonstrator in which she is still engaged. The widow and two daughters live at Barton, Florida. William C. was a preacher and college President and he died in Chicago at the age of 79. Martha Jane married Gerrase Smith, a Methodist Preacher who died many years ago. Martha died aged 83. Sarah Hellen married David Shy of Pettis Co., They reared a large family, two sons and five daughters. Both sons Physicians. One died last year the other Dr. Milton Shy is in Sedaris or Sedana where his mother is still living.

Thomas K. married in Cooper Co., Mo. and went to Waldo, Fla. where he has prospered as a horticulturalist and is called the Burbank of Fla.

A matter to note is that of the six sons of Josiah Godbey only William the eldest leave a child to perpetuate the Godbey name. Williams sons are: Allen H. Prof. of Semetics in Duke University, Durham, N. C., Victor A. Presiding Elder of Marshall District E. Texas. Conference. Prof. Ernest Godbey principal Public School Houston, Texas. Walter A. Principal of Shepherd School St. Louis. J. E. Godbey - my first wife and four children. I leave now to perpetuate the Godbey name. I was married to my second wife in 1911. We are in good health and comfortable circumstance and would be delighted to have a visit from Josiah Jernigan Godbey.

Mrs. Melvin T. Smith
Rich Creek, Va.

Dear Cousin Margaret.

I have copied the record just as grandfather Russell Godbey had recorded it and mother later on copied or had him copy for her.

I think I wrote you that New York Geneologist sent me the data on Thomas Godbey born 1527 and came to Va. in the Ship Deliverance, and Joan 42 came in the Flying Heart 1621.

In notes copied from W. Va. and its people by Miller and Maxwell: "Wm. Godbey was of English ancestry and was in the Revolutionary War. He received a note of recognization of his service in the war which Mr. Erret P. Godbey his great-grandson has in his possession today. The note had a value of thirty pounds or one hundred dollars, and was dated 1779 and signed by Grand Smith, H. Randolph and J. Hopkins. The note reads as follows: "One hundred milled dollars, or the value thereof in Gold or silver to be given in exchange for this Bill at the treasury of VA., persuant to an Act of assembly, passed 5-3-1779.

Francis B., son of William was a farmer, and resided in Pulaski Co., Va. He died at the age of eighty-seven.

Resin V. Godbey his son was born in Pulaski Co., 6-22-1822 and was an abolitionist preacher of the Christian Church. He was also a farmer, and was a man of very large frame and on that account was not recruited for service in the Civil War. He married Catherine, Daughter of John Miller who was a farmer of Craig Co., Va."

Erret V. Godbey born in 1857 married Eliza Tickel lieves in Bluefield, W. Va. and has several children." I had Grandfather record that his Grandfather William served in the Revolutionary War and as I was unable to find a record of his service either at Washington or Richmond, I sent a typed copy of Grandfathers and an affidavit signed by his son Ballard (my Uncle) as proof of his service for membership in the D.A.R. Have been a member for a few years and have held the office of Registrar for some time. I rather like the research work. My cousin Ettie Rule (our Mothers were sisters and her Father my half brother) is a member and Geraldine Godbey another cousin are members of the Pierre Menard Chapter at Petersburg, Ills. If you and your daughter want to join any time just refer to my National Number 64359.

Edward Chapman of Chapmanville, W. Va. says our William was with Major Triggs artillery with Washington at Yorktown and keeps telling me he helped to capture my great grandfather Brown an Irishman from County Down Toure? of Newsey Ireland, picked up and pressed into service by the British and brought here to help in the war. He was my Grandmother Elizabeth Brown Godbey's father. He stayed after the war was over and married an irish girl. He followed Grandmother and three of her sisters to Ills.

I have tried to find the record of the marriage of William and Zannah in order to find her name, but I had the date of her birth. Yes they had a son John their oldest child. William seemed quite young to marry. I am of the opinion that Dr. Allen was right in regard to William Sr. being the Ensign.

I have the record of my Great grand father William in the War of 1812. It reads: (It is from the Adjutants Office, Washington) "The records in this office show that William Godbey, also borne William Godbey served in the War of 1812 as a private in Captain Michael Yoakum's Company, from Hardy County - 1st Regiment (Connells) Virginia Malitia. His service commenced 9-15-1812 and ended 4-9-1813.

I have been invited to join the 1812 Daughters but there is no chapter nearer than Sandusky or Toledo and with Missionary and D.A.R. work can keep busy.

I have the marriages of William and Zannah except Gabriel. The record was compiled by Anne Lowry Worrell on Montgomery Co. A brief of Will and marriages found these in a book from (Archological) I mean Geneological Society at Chicago. Will send you that if you would like it. I think I told you Dr. Allen's Uncle gave me valuable data - Ancestors Will etc. and it was in his home at Kirkwood that I met Dr. Allen a few years ago.

Will be glad to hear from you at any time. By the way do you know any Craigs in your part of Va? Am trying to help a friend whose ancester Tolliver Craig was from Clark Co., Va.

Cordially Yours
Elizabeth E. Rule

GODBEY, ALLEN HOWARD, educator and clergyman, was born in Cooper Co., Mo. 11-21-1864, son of William Clinton and Caroline Malvina (Smith) Godbey, grandson of Josiah and Sena (KelIY) Godbey, and great-grandson of William and Sarah (Smith) Godbey. His father was a Methodist clergyman and during 1879-86 president of Morrisville (Mo.) College. After receiving his preliminary education under the tutorship of his parents, Allen H. Godbey was graduated A. M. at Mooresville College in 1883 and PhD. at the University of Chicago in 1905. He was ordained a minister of the Methodist church in 1891. Meanwhile, he began his career as professor of natural science and higher education at Morrisville Colleg in 1883 and continued in that capacity for three years. he then served as assistant editor of the Southwestern Methodist, Kansas City, Mo., during 1887-89 and from 1890 until 1894 did other literary and also pastoral work in that city. During 1894-95 he was professor of Latin and English literature at St. Charles (Mo.) College and during the following four years he held pastorates in several places, including Russellville and Corder, Mo. From 1899 until 1902 he was principal of the academic department of Central College, Fayette, Mo. While at the University of Chicago he did special work in the field of Semitics and, offered a special fellowship, worked on the reading of cuneiform inscriptions and within three months collaborated on the first American edition of "The Code of Hammurabi" (1904). He was professor of Latin and Greek at Morrisville College during 1905-06 and served as president of that institution from the latter year until 1909. He then was pastor of Bellefontaine Church, St. Louis, Mo. during 1909-13; Immanuel Church, St. Louis, during 1913-14; and Bridgeton and Stephan Memorial Church, St. Louis in the next three years. From 1917 until 1919 he held a pastorate in Beech Grove, Ky., and during 1919-26 in Carrsville, Ky. From the last named year until 1932

he was professor of the Old Testament at Duke University retiring as professor emeritus. He then engaged in research in American, Near Eastern, and Oriental Archaeology as applied to the old testament and was the author of a number of works on that subject. He also recovered lost documents on Methodism in Missouri. Godbey was the author of "Light in Darkness" (with John A. Godbey, 1888), "Stanley in Africa" (1890) "Great Disasters" (1890), "Notes on some Officials of the Sargonid Period" (1905), "The Lost Tribes a Myth" (1930), "The Psychology of Narcotism Among American Indians" (1931), "Forces Shaping Ancient Palestine" (1933), "New Light on the Old Testament" (1936), and "Pre-Mosiac Hebrew Religion" (1935). He also was a frequent contributor to various religious and scholarly publications. At one time he served as a member of the commission on law and philosophy of the World Conference on Narcotic Education. During the First World War he was food administrator for McLean County, Ky. He was a member of the American Oriental Society, Society of Oriental Research, Archaeological Institute of America, Society for American Archaeology, Palestinian Oriental Society, New Orient Society, Society of Biblical Literature, American Association for the Advancement of Science, the Masonic order and Pi Gamma. Politically he was a Democrat. He was married in Kansas City, Mo., 6-16-1892, to Emma Lisbeth daughter of John Logan Moreland of Johnson County, Kan, a farmer and had a daughter, Elizabeth Beulah, who married Glenn Ware Johnson. Godbey's death occurred in Boston, May 8, 1948.

PAST AND PRESENT OF MENARD COUNTY (Illinois) page 299

R. B. GODBEY, who is the owner of six hundred acres of rich farming land of Menard Co., and whose business capacity has been demonstrated in his successful control of his agricultural interests, was born in Rush Co., Indiana, 1-14-1830. His parents, Russell and Elizabeth (Brown) Godbey, were natives of Virginia and in 1829 left that state for Illinois, but stopped during the winter in Indiana, where the birth of our subject occurred. In the spring they continued on their way and located a mile south and a mile and a quarter west of where R. B. Godbey now resides. The father built a log house upon a tract of land of one hundred and sixty acres, which he entered from the government, and began the improvement of a farm, transforming the wild prairie into richly producing fields. He afterward added to his property and at the time of his death was the owner of two hundred acres of valuable land. He took an active part in the pioneer development of this part of the state and aided in laying broad and deep the foundation for the present progress and prosperity of the county. He located here when this was a pioneer district and he not only assisted materially in the upbuilding of the county, but was also acquainted with many of the prominent men of the time. He was a warm personal friend of Abraham Lincoln, who at one time surveyed a piece of land for Mr. Godbey and latter paid Lincoln for his work with two dressed deer skins, which Lincoln took to Aunt Hannah Armstrong, who sewed them upon his pants to protect him while he was going through the brush. Mr. Godbey died 12-25-1888, at the age of 87 yrs., his birth having occurred November 2, 1800. His wife, who was born 2-15-1799 died in 1854.

R. B. Godbey pursued his education in the subscription schools, which he attended for about three months each year, and he also spent one winter in Jubilee College, in Peoria County, Illinois. He performed the strenuous labor incident to the development of a new farm and remained upon his fathers place until twenty-three years of age, when he removed to his present home in township 19, range 6 west. Here he broke the prairie and after placing his land under the plow he planted his crops and in due time gathered good harvests. He erected all of the building now upon the place, his home being built in 1864, and he has always kept everything in good repair, conducting his farm work along progressive lines. In connection with the cultivation of grain he has also engaged in the raising of stock, principally feeding cattle, but in recent years he has largely left the active work of the farm to his sons. His landed possessions cover six hundred acres, the greater part of which lies in one body.

On the 20th of March, 1854, Mr. Godbey was united in marriage to Miss Susan Montgomery, a daughter of Charles L. and Eliza Montgomery, who came to this county from Virginia about 1821. Her father engaged in farming and died here about eighteen years ago. His wife, long surviving him, died about three years ago, at the advanced age of eighty-six years. Unto Mr. and Mrs. Godbey have been born nine children: Eliza Elizabeth, born 8-19-1855, is the wife of Clevin Crawford now of San Bernardino, California; Charles R. born in 1857, died in infancy; Edward Everet, born in 1859, resides near his father; Harry H. born 1-12-1862, died in June 1902; George born in 1864, is living upon the home farm; Emma and John died in infancy; Bertha died at the age of three yrs; and Eva born 4-26-1874, is the wife of John Downey, a farmer of this county.

Since 1870 Mr. Godbey has been a member of the Masonic Lodge of Greenview, and in his life he exemplifies the beneficent spirt of the craft. His wife is a member of the Christian church. Politically a Democrat, he keeps well informed on the question and issues of the day, but he has never been an office seeker. He served, however, for 20 years as a member of the school board. His interest has centered along line of public activity which conserve the general good and his cooperation has not been withheld from any movement which he believes will contribute to general progress and improvement.

Death of Thomas Godby

Benefit of Clergy Claimed

In March 1628 in Virginia, a person found guilty of manslaughter escaped death because he could read and write. The persons concerned in the case are not Surry people but it is thought this incident may be of general interest.

One William Bentley, who patented land in Elizabeth City in 1624 (C.P.), 50 - was brought before the General Court on a charg of manslaughter. The first witness was Richard Rich, aged 25, who testified "that on the 8th day of February last, Thomas Godby, the deceased, was at the house of William Parker at Merry Point, and that he, the deponent, and divers others, drank between them five pints of burnt claret wine, that Thomas Godby consumed about four cups of the same. At which time William Bentley, who had just come ashore in a boat came into the house and asked if it were not their orders when they heard men call to come and help them out of a boat, Whereupon Godby answered "do you think we have nothing to do but to fetch you out of the water,"  Bentley replied "hold your peace" and Godby called Bentley a rascal and a rogue and Bentley did the like to him. Thereupon the said Bentley, sitting upon the bench on the left side of Godby, struck him from the bench and presently rose up and gave him a kick as he lay upon the ground.  Godby could not sit up but tumbled down crying out, "Oh bentley, thou has killed me", and also said of him "I am cruelly foxed."  And in the morning Godby was found dead in the said house."

William Bentley had pleaded "not guilty" and had asked for a jury trial (Put himself upon the Country). A jury of 12 men of whom one was Francis Fowler of Surry, "found the said Bentley guilty of manslaughter and he being asked what he had to say for himself that he ought not to die demanded his clergy whereupon he was discharged to the Ordinary."

Before the ordinary in a church court Bentley would be required to plead not guilty and to produce witnesses who would state that they believed the defendant's oath. Nothing as to the fate of Bentley is shown but he probably escaped further punishment as no witnesses were heard against a prisoner in a church court and he was usually purged of the charge and set free.

Thus it seems the English doctrine of the Benefit of Clergy became part of the Virginia laws.

In England, when a prisoner claimed benefit of clergy, the text usually selected by the Court for him to read was the first verse of the 51st Psalm beginning "Miserere mei deus", "Lord have pity on me".

NOTES ON THE GODBEY FAMILY BY ALLAN M. TROUT

HARMONIA COLLEGE - PERRYVILLE, KY.

The faculty for the year 1861-62 was as follows: Rev. W. B. Godbey, President; Mrs. America E. Godbey, Ralph Georgi, Rev. J. K. Godbey, Miss Lizzie M. Yocum, J. B. Guthrie, Miss Ludie M. Barker, Isaiah Williams, and W. R. Godbey.

FROM A ROANOKE, VIRGINIA NEWSPAPER

GODBEY FAMILY RETURNS TO SEE ANCESTRAL LAND

RADFORD, SEPT. 18 -- The roots of a family that originally settled in Southwest Virginia, no matter how long and how thin, cannot be dislodged once they have settled deep into the soil.

They may wander to distant parts of this Nation, but there's always a definite part of them still in this land rich in natural beauty and resources. Such is the case of the Godbey family, whose ancestors first wandered over the mountains to start life anew.

From, Texas, Chicago, the Tar Heel state and points in between, the five Godbey sisters and some of their friends returned this week for a picnic at Claytor Lake, the site of their ancestral home.

Almost two centuries ago, a Revolutionary War veteran, William Godbey was the first to own this land on which they held their picnic. Francis Marion.

At his death in 1833 at the age of 86, he left a long will disposing of all his personal property including all of his slaves except one named Europe who was to be cared for by his sons. Among his heirs, Godbey divided his lands extending from the Godbey cliffs along the New River, to Clabboard Creek. These acres, he wrote were for their use during their lifetime; thence to their heirs, but not to be disposed of by them!

However, in these times, this nation had just begun its great trek westward that was to extend to the shores of the Pacific and out into the Orient before it was spent. To Kentucky, Tennessee, Missouri --went first one son; then another, selling their lands that their father had willed them and had said in his will that they were to remain in the family until eternity.

Only one, Francis, remained by the banks of the New River. He died just prior to 1860, and it was his son Reason who sold the residue of the original land grant to Pulaski County for a poor farm. All but one of Francis Godbey's sons, John, had taken up their families and their belongings and had moved on.

At the close of the War Between the States, John, a veteran of a great war like his ancestor, William Godbey, returned to his homeland. Ill and poverty stricken, he lived as a tenant on the land which his father had received. The land then had been sold to B. F. Wysor and William Elkins. John's son, Zachary, resolved before he was grown into manhood that he some day would own a farm on New River, as his forefathers had once done.

Many years later, Zachary bought this farm and he built a mill at the mouth of Clabboard Creek. His father returned to spend his remaining years with Zachary and they both died there. Before the river was finally buried by Claytor Lake, the sixth generation of this pioneer family had been born near its banks.

This week, members of that pioneer family that has endured through all the trials and tribulations of this great nation, that has lived through the pages of its history, returned to the banks of the New River to revisit their home.

FLAIR FOR FURNITURE MAKING ENHANCES GODBEY RESIDENCE

Imagine being able to walk into a store, see a piece of furniture you like, then go home and make it! This is the enviable talent of Okey O. Godbey of B. Street in St. Albans. Mr. Godbey chuckled and attributed his skill to being reared by a grandmother who wouldn't tolerate the word, "can't".

Mrs. Godbey pointed out some of their most cherished pieces such as the living room coffee table. The Godbeys saw one like it in a store, cast enviable eyes on the table and shocked ones on the price tag. Then Mr. Godbey jotted down some measurements, came home and made his own.

Mrs. Godbey called his attention to an unusual magazine rack pictured in a national magazine. Mr. Godbey took the picture to the basement and a few weeks later a new magazine rack was by the living room fireplace.

His contribution to the dining room was a table and chairs and a wall cabinet for the old china which Mrs. Godbey collects.

Some months ago Mr. Godbey made a grandfather clock. "I had always wanted one, but they were too expensive," he said.

When the grandfather clock was finished it was too large for their house. At the urging of Mrs. Philip Angel, he put it on exhibit at the Homespun Shop in Charleston General Hospital and turned his energies to making a grandmother clock to replace it.

Mr. Godbey's furniture making is pure hobby. He earns his living as a foreman in the Olefins Division of Carbide Chemicals Corp.

His hobby started some 20 years ago when they were new residents in St. Albans. The Godbeys got tired of waiting for a carpenter to finish the upstairs of the house and Mr. Godbey decided to do it himself. His success touched off a spark of creativity which is now visible throughout their home.

Some of his top jobs were rebuilding the wall back of the living room fireplace and doing over the front porch, using culled marble for the floring.

The Godbeys also like to browse through old antique shops and out of way places looking for pieces to buy and refinish.

Some of their favorites include an old Edison Phonograph, a bed salvaged from an Ohio flood, a solid walnut dresser and beautiful old antique mirror from the Goodwill Industries and an old fashioned platform rocker. Layers of paint, wax and neglect removed the furniture now stands in its original beauty.

Mrs. Godbey admitted with a sigh, "Last spring we sold nearly a basement full. We hated this but if you get too many antiques, they seem to smother you."

Mrs. Godbey encourages and often participates in her husband's hobby of furniture making. Only occasionally does she have a hostile thought. "Sometimes I wish the workshop was on the riverbank instead of in the basement. There's always so much dust."

ILLINOIS HISTORICAL MEMORIALS OF VIRGINIA CLERKS

Floyd was formed in 1831 from Montgomery. Jackson Godby clerk from 1864 to 1875.

During the military government, when the iron-clad oath was required, John F. Edwards qualified as clerk of both courts, and continued in office from 4-1869 to 7-1870, but J. Godby did the business of the office as his deputy. J. Godby was under political disabilites after 7-1870 for several years, and at one time William Campbell was appointed clerk of both courts, and B. P. Hylton at another time, but J. Godby discharged the duties of the offices.

SOME INTERESTING MENARD COUNTY HOMES (ILLINOIS)

GODBEY HOME

At the cross roads four miles west of Greenview stands this fine old red brick house. Built between 1830 and 1839 by Squire Russell Godbey, who came to Menard County from West Virginia in 1830, the year of the big snow. This house today stands as a fine example of workmanship.

Squire Russell Godbey was born in Montgomery Co., Va. in 1800. He was married in 1822 to Elizabeth brown. Mr. & Mrs. Godbey left Virginia in 1829 in a covered wagon, arriving at their destination near Greenview a year later. While building their log cabin, which stood on a sand hill one quarter of a mile east of this brick house, they lived in their covered wagon.

Bricks used in this house were burned in a kiln which stood across the road. The plastering was mixed with hog hair, and testifying to the results of this mixture is the fact that the original plaster is in excellent condition today. The slates were hand hewn, as were the sills. The floors are of hard oak and the woodwork of walnut. The original house was of two stories and had five rooms, however a kitchen and two upstairs rooms were added later. The rooms are large, and with the exception of the rooms which were added later, each room has a fireplace. When the house was completed, stairways led to two distinct sleeping quarters. There are four upstairs bedrooms, the south two were the girls upstairs and the north two the boys upstairs, and there was no connecting door between the two sections.

The construction of this house is interesting in that it is held together by a large rod, which runs the length of the house east and West. During a heavey wind one can feel this house sway, but at no time has any damage resulted from heavy winds. Walnut used in the house came from timber cut from the farm and window panes came from Beardstown.

West of this house stands the old brick building called the meat house. Half of the building had hand hewn flooring and half earth flooring where the meat was smoked. Close by is a frame building which was used as a loom house. Here Mrs. Godbey did all of her carding, spinning and weaving. Another building was the ice house, built with double walls, with sawdust between, where ice was stored each winter, cut from small lakes nearby. This was a self-sufficient farm house.

The original land grant was for 160 acres, however, Mr. Godbey later was the owner of 900 acres of land, Descendants are still in possession of the original parchment grant.

Mr. & Mrs. Godbey were the parents of 8 children: Nancy Dickerson Godbey; Overton Brown Godbey; William Godbey; Russell Ballard Godbey; Moses Godbey; Margaret Chapman Godbey (Ewers); Eliza Elizabeth Godbey (Wood); Mary Jane Godbey. Mrs. Elizabeth Godbey died in 1854.

Squire Russell Godbey was married the 2nd time to Mrs. Eleanor Lanterman Carpenter, who was the widow of Ill. State Treasurer Milton Carpenter. They were the parents of two children; Virginia Ann, who married John Burrus, and John Douglas Godbey, who married Anne Belle Quaintance, Squire Russell Godbey died in 1888 and Mrs. Eleanor Godbey died in 1887.

After the death of his parents the home was occupied by Mr. & Mrs. John D. Godbey. They were the parents of 4 daughters: Geraldine and Jennie of Greenview, Gwendolyn who married Allen Hawley and lived in Chillicothe. Mr. & Mrs. Godbey retired from the farm in 1919 and moved to Greenview.

The brick house is now owned and occupied by Mr. & Mrs. Edward Simmering and their family. The farm land is owned by George Weimers Jr.

HOXIE BROS. BIG 3 RING CIRCUS - Miami, Florida

L. B. Tucker (Hoxie)

BETTY AND HOXIE TUCKER, TEAM CAPTAINS
BIG CIRCUS TEAMWORK

When the big 3-Ring Circus comes to town, one witnesses an exhibition of teamwork and precision co-ordination that is incomparable anywhere. Moving a giant auditorium from city to city every day and presenting a vast performance involving scores of performers, animals and technicians is seemingly a superhuman task, but Betty and Hoxie Tucker make an anual tour of more than two hundred cities with the Hoxie Brothers 3-Ring Circus.

Betty takes charge of the performing personnel, designing of the wardrobe and creates the spectacles and pageantry displays. Hoxie colaborates with her on the performance routines and the technical points of rigging and lighting. Mr. Tucker also is the traffic manager and superintends the complicated operations of setting up the big tents, seats and the operation of all other paraphernalia.

The split-second timing of every department of the circus may mean the difference between life or death and every person has to be in the right place, doing thr right thing at the right time. The thrilling performance is a masterpiece of split-second timing and the property hands must always be ready for instant action. King Charles' Circus Band is the focal point of all the cues inside and outside the bigtop. Everyone with the circus knows just what is going on by listening to what the band is playing. The animal men, property men, performers and electrical technicians.

FROM AUTOBIOGRAPHY OF REV. W. B. GODBEY, A. M.

I was born 6-3-1833, by the waters of Clifty Creek, in Pulaski Co., Ky. During my infancy my parents migrated 6 miles east and settled on a farm which they had purchased by the waters of Pitman's Creek, four and one half miles north of Somerset, the county seat. There, in the providence of God, I lived until I was 20 yrs. old, the family remaining a number of years afterwards. There were ten of us children, five sons and five daughters; one of the former having gone to heaven in his infancy. The other nine all reached maturity. The four surviving sons all became preachers, but the daughters, by reason of prevailing dogma against womens ministry were unfortunately withheld from the privelege which I am satisfied they would have participated in with great delight. Half of our number - three sisters and two brothers are now in Glory. My youngest brother, Martin Adams, was very suddenly called to his heavenly home at the early age of 28. He went around and paid off all of his little debts and settled up everything, telling the family and friends that he was near the end of his life, whereas he was enjoying perfect health and bidding fair to live long. The day was bright and fair and the family, at that time consisting of father, mother and elder brother Josiah, were all at the house. The latter was leading his horse through the front yard, when Martin walked out after him, and the animal, doubtless mistaking him for a dog or some other animal, kicked him in the breast with all its power, the single stroke with the newly shod hoof proving his instantaneous release from his tenement of clay. His brother darted back and caught him in his arms as he said his last words, "Oh Lord, I am dead," and breathed no more. He was a very sweet singer, as well as a teacher and preacher, being a collegiate graduate. He was nearly always singing when he was walking about. On that occasion, when he walked out of the house for the last time, he went singing those beautiful words: "Will any one be at the beautiful gate, watching and waiting for me?" This took place in Pettis County, Mo., whither the family migrated after the close of the Confederate War. My two surviving brothers, John K. and Josiah P. are both preaching in Missouri.

MEMOIRS OF JOHN GODBEY

Rev. John Godbey was born at Bethelridge, Ky., 1-12-1841, died at his home in Science Hill, Ky. 2-25-1935 at the age of 94 yrs., one mo. and 13 days. He was united in marriage to Miss Mary Frances Weeks on 6-13-1861 to this union seven children were born. He was married the second time to Miss Lidia Ashley on 10-2-1877, to this union twelve children were born. Bro. Godbey professed faith in Christ in early life, and united with the Methodist Episcopal Church at Bethelridge. He felt the call to the gospel and answered, "Here am I, Lord, send me", and was admitted to membership in the Ky. Conference in 1866, and retired in 1891. After he retired he served on through the years as a supply pastor preaching his last sermon at Bethelridge, 6-1934. Brother Godbey spent his entire life in serving in the mountain pastorates of Ky. Conference, which carried with it much deprivation, and long hours of service over many miles of mountain trails, but he was never happier than when trudging through the mountain country ministering to the needs of his flock. He passed away in the fullness of time, like as a shock of corn in its season, leaving behind him a well-spent life, and his work will follow after him. Bro. Godbey preached the old-time gospel in no uncertain tones he was a good pastor, a fine brother, and a good husband and father. He loved his church with a devotion seldom equalled and never excelled. His funeral was conducted by his pastor, J. B. Jones, assisted by S. E. Rice, superintendt and G. W. Wright, retired minister and life-long friend to the deceased. Services were in the Methodist Church at Science Hill in the presence of a large audience of sympathetic friends and relatives.

James M. Godbey

There was a Lindsay Godbey who lived near Pulaski, I didn't know but two of his children, a boy called Alex and a girl called Rhody, she married A. I. Morgan, the son of Berry Morgan.

Then there was another Godbey called Joe (I am not sure but I think he was a brother to Lindsey) who had two sons and a daughter. I didn't know the girls named but she married Ike Willis the two boys were called Zack and Thomas. Zack married twice, the first time to a Walters, and second to a Farmer. Six children by his first wife and one by the last wife (she is still living in Pulaski) her name is Lizzy Godbey. The two boys of the six children were named Robert and William. Robert had a twin sister.

I just remembered, Reisen and Gabriel were brothers to Lindsey.
